ORDER AND REPORT- RECOMMENDATION

I. INTRODUCTION

This pro se prisoner civil rights action, commenced pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983, has been referred to me for Report and Recommendation on the issue of exhaustion of administrative remedies by the Honorable David N. Hurd, United States District Judge, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636(b) and Local Rule 72.3(c). (Dkt. No. 49.) Plaintiff Eric Casey asserts the following claims: (1) Eighth Amendment claim resulting from excessive force used against him in violation of his right to be free from cruel and unusual punishment; and (2) Eighth Amendment violation resulting from the failure to provide adequate medical care. (Dkt. No. 1 at 10-13.¹)

Currently pending before the Court is Defendants' motion to dismiss for failure to exhaust administrative remedies, pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6). (Dkt. No. 37.) For the reasons that follow, the Court recommends that Defendants' motion to dismiss be granted without prejudice as to all defendants.

II. BACKGROUND

At the time this action was commenced Plaintiff was a prison inmate in Department of Corrections and Community Supervision ("DOCCS") custody being held at Great Meadow Correctional Facility ("GMCF"). (Dkt. No. 1 at 5.) On May 22, 2013, at approximately 5:00 p.m., Plaintiff claims that he was returning to his cell and was “hit from behind in the back of [his] head with a hard object” as he entered the stairwell area. (Dkt. No. 1 at 7.) Plaintiff claims that he “fell to the floor and was brutally beaten” by Defendant correctional officers M. Brockley (“Brockley”), H. Colvin (“Colvin”), A. Mayo (“Mayo”), C. Goodrich (“Goodrich”), and Wanninger. (Dkt. No. 1 at 7.) Plaintiff claims that he was “kicked, stomped, sexually humiliated, and beat[en] with sticks all over [his] body” (Dkt. No. 1 at 7.) Plaintiff claims that he was referred to as “‘Rodney King’ and other racial and sexual slurs” while the beating took place. (Dkt. No. 1 at 7.) Specifically, Plaintiff makes the following claims: Colvin and Goodrich held Plaintiff’s legs open so Brockley could kick him the groin; Wanninger struck Plaintiff multiple times with her baton; and Mayo beat Plaintiff’s knees, shins, and ribs with a cudgel. (Dkt. No. 1 at 8.) Plaintiff claims that the beating lasted approximately five minutes. (Dkt. No. 1 at 8.)

Plaintiff was taken to a facility hospital and was treated by Defendant Registered Nurses Boyce (“Boyce”) and Clapper (“Clapper”). (Dkt. No. 1 at 8.) Clapper prepared an injury report that indicated Plaintiff had only “superficial abrasions.” (Dkt. No. 1 at 30.) Plaintiff claims that Clapper and Boyce “intentionally downplayed the severity of [his] injuries while disregarding the more serious ones” since they were not mentioned in the injury report. (Dkt. No. 1 at 8.) Plaintiff claims that Clapper only “questioned [him] from afar” and that Boyce only “electronically check[ed] [his] vital signs.” (Dkt. No. 1 at 9.) Plaintiff claims that Defendant Registered Nurse Hermance “utilized her time falsifying business records” to indicate that Colvin, Mayo, and Brockley suffered injuries rather than providing medical care. (Dkt. No. 1 at 8.) Photographs of Plaintiff were taken prior to leaving the hospital. (Dkt. No. 1 at 33-39.)

On June 3, 2013, Plaintiff filed Inmate Grievance Complaint GM-55615-13, alleging “cruel and unusual punishment, excessive force, and inadequate medical care.” (Dkt. No. 1 at 18-19.) After receiving no response from then GMCF superintendent Defendant S. Racette (“Racette”), within the allotted twenty-five day time period, Plaintiff appealed to the Central Office Review Committee (“CORC”). (Dkt. No. 1 at 4.) On July 22, 2013, S. Pelo (“Pelo”), the grievance supervisor, asked Plaintiff for an extension to the investigation period “to allow for a proper investigation.” (Dkt. No. 1 at 22.) Pelo also informed Plaintiff that “CORC will still have to wait for the investigation [to be completed] before they can render a decision.” (Dkt. No. 1 at 22.) Plaintiff denied Pelo’s extension request citing his “statutory right to appeal.” (Dkt. No. 1 at 4.) On August 7, 2013, Pelo confirmed that the appeal had been submitted to CORC and notified Plaintiff that a decision was forthcoming. (Dkt. No. 1 at 23.) On October 15, 2013, after not receiving a response from CORC within the allotted thirty day time period, Plaintiff commenced this action.² (Dkt. No. 1 at 4.)

III. APPLICABLE LEGAL STANDARDS

A. Rule 12(b)(6) motion

A defendant may move to dismiss a complaint “for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted” under Rule 12(b)(6). The motion tests the formal legal sufficiency of the complaint by determining whether it conforms to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8(a)(2), which requires that a complaint include “a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief.” Bush v. Masiello, 55 F.R.D. 72, 74 (S.D.N.Y. 1972). Satisfaction of the requirement that a plaintiff “show” that he or she is entitled to relief requires that the complaint “contain sufficient factual matter, accepted as true, to ‘state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.’” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2009) (quoting Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 570 (2007)). “Determining whether a complaint states a plausible claim for relief . . . requires the . . . court to draw on its judicial experience and common sense [W]here the well-pleaded facts do not permit the court to infer more than the mere possibility of misconduct, the complaint has alleged – but it has not shown – that the pleader is entitled to relief.” Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 679 (internal citation and punctuation omitted).

A complaint may be dismissed, pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6), only where it appears that there are not “enough facts to state a claim that is plausible on its face.” Twombly, 550 U.S. at 570. While Rule 8(a)(2) “does not require detailed factual allegations, . . . it demands more than an unadorned, the-defendant-harmed-me-accusation.” Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678 (citation and internal quotation marks omitted). A complaint which “tenders ‘naked assertion[s]’ devoid of ‘further factual enhancement’” does not suffice. Id. (citation omitted).

“In reviewing a complaint for dismissal under Rule 12(b)(6), the court must accept the material facts alleged in the complaint as true and construe all reasonable inferences in the plaintiff’s favor.” Hernandez v. Coughlin, 18 F.3d 133, 136 (2d Cir. 1994) (citation omitted). However, “the tenet that a court must accept as true all of the allegations contained in a complaint is inapplicable to legal conclusions. Threadbare recitals of the elements of a cause of action, supported by mere conclusory statements, do not suffice.” Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678.

Where a party is proceeding pro se, the court is obliged to “read [the pro se party’s] supporting papers liberally, and . . . interpret them to raise the strongest arguments that they suggest.” See Burgos v. Hopkins, 14 F.3d 787, 790 (2d Cir. 1994) (citations omitted); see also Harris v. Mills, 572 F.3d 66, 72 (2d Cir. 2009) (courts remain obligated to construe pro se complaints liberally even after Twombly).

Where a pro se complaint fails to state a cause of action, the court generally “should not dismiss without granting leave to amend at least once when a liberal reading of the complaint gives any indication that a valid claim might be stated.” Cuoco v. Moritsugu, 222 F.3d 99, 112 (2d Cir. 2000) (citation and internal quotation marks omitted). An opportunity to amend is not required where “the problem with [the plaintiff’s] causes of action is substantive” such that “better pleading will not cure it.” Id. (citation omitted).

B. The Prison Litigation Reform Act of 1996

As succinctly outlined by my colleague, Magistrate Judge David E. Peebles:

The Prison Litigation Reform Act of 1996 (“PLRA”), Pub. L. No. 104-134, 110 Stat. 1321 (1996), which imposes several restrictions on the ability of prisoners to maintain federal civil rights actions, expressly requires that no action shall be brought with respect to prison conditions under section 1983 of this title, or any other Federal law, by a prisoner confined in any jail, prison, or other correctional facility until such administrative remedies as are available are exhausted. The PLRA's exhaustion requirement applies to all inmate suits about prison life, whether they involve general circumstances or particular episodes, and whether they allege excessive force or some other wrong. An inmate plaintiff's complaint is subject to dismissal if the evidence establishes that he or she failed to properly exhaust available remedies prior to commencing the action Proper exhaustion requires a plaintiff to procedurally exhaust his or her claims by complying with the system's critical procedural rules. Complete exhaustion has not occurred, for purposes of the PLRA, until all of the steps of that available process have been taken.

Bailey v. Fortier, 09-CV-0742 (GLS/DEP), 2012 WL 6935254, at *4, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 185178, at *11-13 (N.D.N.Y. Oct. 4, 2012) (citations and punctuation omitted).³ “[T]he PLRA’s exhaustion requirement applies to all inmate suits about prison life, whether they involve general circumstances or particular episodes, and whether they allege excessive force or some other wrong.” Porter v. Nussle, 534 U.S. 516, 532 (2002). In order to properly exhaust administrative remedies under the PLRA, inmates are required to complete the administrative review process in accordance with the rules applicable to the particular institution in which they are confined. Jones v. Bock, 549 U.S. 199, 218 (2007) (citing Woodford v. Ngo, 548 U.S. 81, 88 (2006)). If a prisoner has failed to properly follow each of the applicable steps prior to commencing litigation, he has failed to exhaust his administrative remedies.⁴ Woodford, 548 U.S. at 93.

⁴ “[A]n inmate would be well advised to take advantage of internal prison procedures for resolving inmate grievances. When those procedures produce results, they will typically do so faster than judicial processes can. And even when they do not . . . , the inmate's task in court will obviously be much easier.” Farmer v. Brennan, 511 U.S. 825, 847 (1994).

C. Inmate Grievance Program

Exhaustion for a prison inmate in DOCCS custody is normally achieved through the Inmate Grievance Program (“IGP”). 7 N.Y. COMP. CODES. R. & REGS. tit. 7, §701.1 (2012). The IGP involves a three-step process. Id. at §701.5. First, the prison inmate must submit a grievance to the clerk within twenty-one days of the alleged action. Id. at §701.5(a)(1). The Inmate Grievance Program Committee (“IGPC”) must hold a hearing within sixteen days and issue a written decision within two days of the hearing. Id. at §§ 701.5(b)(2)(i), (ii). Second, the prison inmate may appeal the IGPC’s decision, within seven days of receipt, to the facility superintendent. Id. at §701.5(c)(1). Third and finally, the prison inmate may appeal the facility superintendent’s decision to CORC, within seven days of receipt. Id. at §§ 701.5(d)(i), (ii). CORC has thirty days to review the appeal and issue a decision. Id. at § 701.5(d)(2)(ii).

D. Hemphill v. State of New York

Because failure to exhaust is an affirmative defense, defendants bear the burden of showing by a preponderance of the evidence that a plaintiff has failed to exhaust his available administrative remedies. See Murray v. Palmer, No. 9:03-CV-1010 (GTS/GHL), 2010 WL 1235591, at *4, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 32014, at *16 (N.D.N.Y. Mar. 31, 2010); Bailey, 2012 WL 6935254, at *6 (the party asserting failure to exhaust bears the burden of proving its elements by a preponderance of the evidence); see also Andrews v. Whitman, No. 06-2447-LAB (NLS), 2009 WL 857604, at *6, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 30017, at *16 (S.D. Cal. Mar. 27, 2009) (defendant must prove non-exhaustion of administrative remedies by a preponderance of the evidence).

If a defendant meets that burden, however, a plaintiff's failure to exhaust does not end the review. "[O]nce a defendant has adduced reliable evidence that administrative remedies were available to Plaintiff and that Plaintiff nevertheless failed to exhaust those administrative remedies, Plaintiff must then 'counter' Defendants' assertion by showing exhaustion unavailability, estoppel, or 'special circumstances' [under Hemphill v. State of New York, 380 F.3d 680, 686 (2d Cir. 2004)]." Murray, 2010 WL 1235591, at *4. Hemphill sets forth a three-part inquiry for district courts. First, courts must determine if administrative remedies were in fact available to plaintiff. In Hemphill, the Second Circuit stated that "[t]he test for deciding whether the ordinary grievance procedures were available must be an objective one: that is, would 'a similarly situated individual of ordinary firmness' have deemed them available." Hemphill, 380 F.3d at 688. Courts have found administrative grievance procedures unavailable where an inmate was prevented from filing a grievance. See, e.g., Sandlin v. Poole, 575 F. Supp. 2d 484, 488 (W.D.N.Y. 2008) (The facility's "failure to provide grievance deposit boxes, denial of forms and writing materials, and a refusal to accept or forward plaintiff's appeals . . . effectively rendered the grievance appeal process unavailable to him.").

Second, courts must determine if the defendants are estopped from presenting non-exhaustion as an affirmative defense because they prevented the plaintiff inmate from exhausting his administrative remedies by "'beating him, threatening him, denying him grievance forms and writing implements, and transferring him to another correctional facility.'" Hemphill, 380 F.3d at 688 (citing Ziemba v. Wezner, 366 F.3d 161, 162 (2d Cir. 2004)). Generally, defendants cannot be estopped from asserting a non-exhaustion affirmative defense based upon the actions or inaction of other individuals. Murray, 2010 WL 1235591, at *5 & n.26 (collecting cases);

McCloud v. Tureglio, No. 07-CV-0650, 2008 WL 1772305, at *12, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 124388, at *44 (N.D.N.Y. Apr. 15, 2008) (Lowe, M.J.) (“None of those documents allege facts plausibly suggesting that Defendant’s own actions inhibited Plaintiff’s exhaustion of remedies during the time in question.”).

Third, the Second Circuit explained in Hemphill that there are certain “special circumstances” in which even though administrative remedies may have been available and the defendants may not be estopped from asserting a non-exhaustion defense, the inmate’s failure to exhaust may be justified.⁵ Hemphill, 380 F.3d at 686. “Special circumstances” have been found to include an incorrect but reasonable interpretation of the applicable grievance process or failing to file a grievance in the precise manner prescribed by the process as a result of threats. See, e.g., Giano v. Goord, 380 F.3d 670, 675-76 (2d Cir. 2004) (failure to exhaust was justified where plaintiff inmate’s interpretation of regulations was reasonable and prison official threatened inmate).

⁵ Subsequent to Hemphill, the Supreme Court decided Woodford v. Ngo, 548 U.S. 81 (2006). The question addressed in Woodford was whether “a prisoner can satisfy the [PLRA’s] exhaustion requirement by filing an untimely or otherwise procedurally defective administrative grievance or appeal.” Id. at 83-84. The Supreme Court resolved the question in the negative, explaining that the PLRA requires “proper exhaustion” – “using all steps that the agency holds out, and doing so properly (so that the agency addressed the issues on the merits).” Id. at 90 (citation omitted). Although the Second Circuit has acknowledged that there is some question as to whether the estoppel and special circumstances inquiries in Hemphill survived Woodford, the Court has as yet found it unnecessary to decide the issue and appears to still be considering all three Hemphill inquiries in exhaustion cases. See, e.g., Amador v. Andrews, 655 F.3d 89, 102-03 (2d Cir. 2011) (finding it unnecessary to decide whether Hemphill is still good law because plaintiff had failed to establish that defendants were estopped from raising non-exhaustion as an affirmative defense).

IV. ANALYSIS

A. Plaintiff Failed to Properly Exhaust Administrative Remedies

If a prison inmate fails to follow each of the applicable steps prior to commencing litigation, he has failed to properly exhaust his administrative remedies. Woodford, 548 U.S. at 90 (the PLRA requires “proper exhaustion” - “using all steps that the agency holds out, and doing so properly so that the agency addressed the issues on the merits”). Receiving a decision from CORC after commencing litigation does not satisfy PLRA’s requirement that administrative remedies be exhausted before filing suit, and any claim not exhausted prior to commencement of the suit must be dismissed without prejudice. Neal v. Goord, 267 F.3d 116, 122-23 (2d Cir. 2001), overruled on other grounds, Porter v. Nussle, 534 U.S. 516 (2002). Because Plaintiff commenced this action before CORC issued a decision on his appeal, the Court finds that he failed to exhaust his administrative remedies.

B. Hemphill Analysis

As noted above, an exhaustion review does not end when, as in this case, defendants are found to have met the burden of establishing a plaintiff’s failure to exhaust because the Court must still undertake an analysis of the Hemphill factors. See Hemphill, 380 F.3d at 686

Here, there is no dispute that at all relevant times, DOCCS had the IGP available for Plaintiff and other prison inmates. See 7 N.Y. COMP. CODES. R. & REGS. tit. 7, §701.1 (2012); Taylor v. Chalom, No. 9:10-CV-1494 (NAM/DEP), 2011 WL 6942891, at *4, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 150512, at *12 (N.D.N.Y. Dec. 13, 2011) (The IGP is “recognized as an ‘available’ remedy for purposes of the PLRA.”). Plaintiff undoubtedly had administrative remedies available to him since, on June 3, 2013, he filed Inmate Grievance Complaint GM-55615-13 alleging “cruel and unusual punishment, excessive force, and inadequate medical care.” (Dkt. No. 1 at 18-19.) Plaintiff does not allege that his failure to properly exhaust available administrative remedies was due to administrative remedies being unavailable to him. (Dkt. No. 39.) Plaintiff also does not allege that the named Defendants prevented him from properly exhausting available administrative remedies and should thus be estopped from asserting the defense. (Dkt. No. 39.)

Finally, there are no special circumstances that would justify Plaintiff’s failure to properly exhaust available administrative remedies. (Dkt. No. 39.) Plaintiff argued that his administrative remedies were sufficiently exhausted because his CORC appeal was not decided in a timely manner. Justification “must be determined by looking at the circumstances which might understandably lead . . . uncounseled prisoners to fail to grieve in the normally required way.” Giano, 380 F.3d at 678. As noted above, generally, the “special circumstances” doctrine is applied where a prisoner has been threatened with physical retaliation for exhausting administrative remedies or where the prisoner reasonably misinterprets the statutory requirements of the appeals process. Id. at 676. CORC’s failure to act within the time frame set out in the regulations does not constitute a special circumstance justifying the failure to exhaust. See Ford v. Smith, No. 9:12-CV-1109 (TJM/TWD), 2014 WL 652933, at *3, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 20581, at *8-9 (N.D.N.Y. Jan. 16, 2014) (citations omitted). Rodriguez v. Rosner, No. 9:12-CV-958, 2012 WL 7160117, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 186228 (N.D.N.Y. Dec. 5, 2012) (dismissing complaint for failure to exhaust where prisoner filed appeal with CORC on May 4, filed federal civil rights complaint on June 10, and received CORC response dated September

V. CONCLUSION

The Second Circuit “has recognized that failure to exhaust administrative remedies is usually a ‘curable procedural flaw’ that can be fixed by exhausting those remedies and then reinstituting suit.” Neal, 267 F.3d at 123 (citing Snider v. Melindez, 199 F3d 108, 11-12 (2d Cir. 1999)). The Court finds dismissal without prejudice for failure to exhaust to be proper in this case.

The parties have not provided information to the Court regarding if and when CORC issued a decision on Plaintiff’s appeal. If CORC issued a response to Plaintiff’s grievance subsequent to the commencement of this action on October 15, 2013, the Court recommends that the complaint be dismissed without prejudice for failure to exhaust and that Plaintiff be granted leave to refile his complaint upon the filing of a Decision and Order by the District Court on this Court’s Report and Recommendation. If CORC has not as yet issued a response, the Court recommends that the complaint be dismissed without prejudice, that CORC be directed to render a decision on Plaintiff’s pending grievance appeal within thirty days of the filing of the District Court’s Decision and Order on this Report-Recommendation, and that upon CORC’s failure to do so, Plaintiff’s administrative remedies be deemed unavailable to him and he be allowed to refile this suit indicating such.

ACCORDINGLY, it is hereby

RECOMMENDED that Defendants’ motion to dismiss Plaintiff’s complaint (Dkt. No. 37) in this action be GRANTED, and that the complaint (Dkt. No. 1) be DISMISSED WITHOUT PREJUDICE, based upon Plaintiff’s failure to fully exhaust his administrative remedies; and it is further

RECOMMENDED that: (1) in the event CORC has rendered a decision on Plaintiff's appeal on Inmate Grievance Complaint GM-55615-13, Plaintiff be granted leave to refile this suit upon the filing of a Decision and Order by the District court on this Court's Report-Recommendation; and (2) in the event CORC has not rendered a decision on Plaintiff's appeal, that CORC be directed to render a decision on Plaintiff's pending grievance within thirty days of the filing of the District Court's Decision and Order on this Report-Recommendation; and (3) if Plaintiff does not receive a decision from CORC within that time, administrative remedies may be deemed unavailable to him and he may therefore be excused from exhausting his administrative remedies and may refile this suit indicating such; and it is ORDERED that the Clerk provide Plaintiff with a copy of this Order and Report-Recommendation, along with copies of the unpublished decisions cited herein in accordance with the Second Circuit decision in Lebron v. Sanders, 557 F.3d 76 (2d Cir. 2009) (per curiam).

Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1), the parties have fourteen days within which to file written objections to the foregoing report. Such objections shall be filed with the Clerk of the Court. FAILURE TO OBJECT TO THIS REPORT WITHIN FOURTEEN DAYS WILL PRECLUDE APPELLATE REVIEW. Roldan v. Racette, 984 F.2d 85 (2d Cir. 1993) (citing Small v. Secretary of Health and Human Services, 892 F.2d 15 (2d Cir. 1989)); 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1); Fed. R. Civ. P. 72.

West KeySummary

1 Civil Rights

🔑 Criminal Law Enforcement; Prisons

A state prisoner's objection to the dismissal of his civil rights action on the grounds that defendants were required to prove non-exhaustion by clear and convincing evidence was overruled. The prisoner alleged he was sexually assaulted, prison officials retaliated against him, and he was prevented from fully exhausting his claim. The prisoner failed to submit the proper reports about the incident or any charges of staff misconduct even though the forms were made available, and that was sufficient to show the prisoner failed to exhaust his administrative remedies by a preponderance of the evidence, the correct legal standard. I. Procedural History

*1 Plaintiff, a prisoner proceeding pro se and in forma pauperis, filed his original complaint in this civil rights action on November 3, 2006. Defendants moved to dismiss, and on March 28, 2008, the Court issued an order (the "Dismissal Order") dismissing certain claims with prejudice and others without prejudice.

The Dismissal Order dismissed with prejudice all claims against the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation ("CDCR") and Plaintiff's Eighth Amendment claims that Defendants transferred him back into the general prison population in 2006. All other claims were dismissed without prejudice, and Plaintiff was permitted to file an amended complaint. The Dismissal Order also cautioned Plaintiff that he was not to add unexhausted or otherwise non-meritorious claims and that if he did so, they would be subject to sua sponte dismissal under 28 U.S.C. § 1915\(a\).

Plaintiff then filed his First Amended Complaint ("FAC"), and Defendants filed a motion to dismiss (the "Motion to Dismiss"). The FAC is 63 pages long, with an additional 62 pages of exhibits attached. Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636 and Civil Local Rule 72.1(d), the Motion to Dismiss was referred to Magistrate Judge Nita L. Stormes for report and recommendation. On October 8, 2008, Judge Stormes issued her report and recommendation (the "R & R") finding Plaintiff had failed to exhaust his administrative remedies and recommending Defendants' Motion to Dismiss be granted on that basis or, in the alternative, because the FAC fails to state a claim. The R & R recommended not charging Plaintiff with a strike under 28 U.S.C. § 1915\(g\).

Defendants filed objections, requesting that the FAC be dismissed for failure to state a claim and charged with a strike. Plaintiff then filed a series of motions, including a “Motion to Strike the Defendants’ Affirmative Defense of Failure to Exhaust Administrative Remedies,” (Dkt. no. 94), an “Ex Parte Request to File a Second Amended Complaint,” (Dkt. no. 96), and a “Motion to Strike the Defendants’ Objection to the Report and Recommendation.” (Dkt. no. 104). Because the first two of these motions go to the substance of the R & R, the Court construes them as objections to the R & R. The Court ruled separately on the third motion (Dkt. no. 104), which was based on matters not directly related to the R & R or the substance of the Motion to Dismiss. Plaintiff filed his objections to the R & R on December 12, 2008, and on December 19, 2008, he filed a reply to Defendants’ objections.

II. Legal Standards

A district judge “may accept, reject, or modify the recommended disposition; receive further evidence; or return the matter to the magistrate judge with instructions” on a dispositive matter prepared by a magistrate judge proceeding without the consent of the parties for all purposes. Fed.R.Civ.P. 72\(b\); see also 28 U.S.C. § 636\(b\)\(1\). An objecting party may “serve and file specific written objections to the proposed findings and recommendations,” and “a party may respond to another party’s objections.” Rule 72\(b\).

*2 In reviewing an R & R, “the court shall make a de novo determination of those portions of the report or specified proposed findings or recommendations to which objection is made.” 28 U.S.C. § 636\(b\)\(1\); United States v. Raddatz, 447 U.S. 667, 676, 100 S.Ct. 2406, 65 L.Ed.2d 424 (1980) (when objections are made, the court must make a de novo determination of the factual findings to which there are objections). “If neither party contests the magistrate’s proposed findings of fact, the court may assume their correctness and decide the motion on the applicable law.” Orand v. United States, 602 F.2d 207, 208 (9th Cir.1979). Objections must, however, be specific, not vague or generalized. See Fed.R.Civ.P. 72\(b\)\(2\) (requiring “specific” objections); Palmisano v. Yates, 2007 WL 2505565, slip op. at *2 (S.D.Cal. Aug. 31, 2007).

The Court has reviewed de novo the legal standards set forth in the R & R, and finds them to be correct. The Court will therefore apply the standards set forth there without again citing them at length here.

III. Screening

Because Plaintiff is a prisoner and proceeding in forma pauperis, the Court is obligated pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1915\(e\)\(2\) and 1915A, and 42 U.S.C. § 1997e\(c\) to dismiss the FAC to the extent it is frivolous or malicious, seeks monetary relief against a Defendant who is immune, or fails to state a claim. As noted, the Dismissal Order dismissed with prejudice all claims against the CDCR. Without leave, Plaintiff has again named the CDCR as a Defendant. The Court therefore REAFFIRMS its previous dismissal of these claims and will not consider them further.

The FAC raises claims against Defendants in both their individual and official capacities (FAC at 4), and Defendants have raised Eleventh Amendment immunity. (Mem. in Supp. of Motion to Dismiss, 8:5–22.) The R & R recommends dismissing these claims to the extent Plaintiff seeks damages, and the Court agrees. See Will v. Mich. Dep’t of State Police, 491 U.S. 58, 66, 71, 109 S.Ct. 2304, 105 L.Ed.2d 45 (1989) (holding that the Eleventh Amendment bars damages actions against state officials acting in their official capacity).

IV. Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies

A. Requirements and Legal Standards

Exhaustion of available administrative remedies is a prerequisite to bringing suit under the Prison Litigation Reform Act (“PLRA”), 42 U.S.C. § 1997e\(a\). Porter v. Nussle, 534 U.S. 516, 524–25, 122 S.Ct. 983, 152 L.Ed.2d 12 (2002). Claims must be exhausted before filing suit; exhaustion after filing suit will not suffice. McKinney v. Carey, 311 F.3d 1198, 1198 (9th Cir.2002).

Defendants may raise this defense in a non-enumerated motion under Fed.R.Civ.P. 12\(b\), and bear the burden of raising and proving non-exhaustion. Wyatt v. Terhune, 315 F.3d 1108, 1119 (9th Cir.2003). To prevail, Defendants must show Plaintiff had available administrative remedies he did not utilize. Id. They may go beyond the pleadings and provide evidence to support their argument, but Plaintiff must be provided an opportunity to develop the record to refute Defendants’ showing. Id. at 1120 n. 14. The Court may consider the parties’ submissions outside the pleadings and decide disputed issues of fact. Id. at 1119–20 (citing Ritza v. Int’l Longshoremen’s & Warehousemen’s Union, 837 F.2d 365, 369 (9th Cir.1988) (per curiam)).

*3 The exhaustion requirement takes on particular significance in this case because Defendants submitted evidence Plaintiff never properly exhausted any claims he now raises. The Court denied without prejudice Defendants' earlier motion to dismiss on the basis of non-exhaustion, finding they had not provided adequate details or evidence to refute Plaintiff's claim they thwarted his efforts to file his administrative complaint, or to explain how they were able to send Lt. Stratton to investigate Plaintiff's complaint against Sgt. Galban. In this renewed motion, Defendants again contend Plaintiff failed to properly exhaust his administrative remedies by pursuing an administrative complaint against Defendant Galban for allegedly assaulting Plaintiff, and against other Defendants for actions they allegedly took in the aftermath. As the Court explained in its Dismissal Order, Plaintiff could not have exhausted his administrative remedies for later alleged violations of his rights. (Dismissal Order at 7:1–27.)

To properly exhaust, a prisoner must complete the administrative review process according to the applicable rules. Woodford v. Ngo, 548 U.S. 81, 90, 126 S.Ct. 2378, 165 L.Ed.2d 368 (2006). In California, this means a prisoner must first attempt to informally resolve the problem with the staff member involved in the action or decision being appealed. [15 Cal.Code Regs.] § 3084.5(a). If unsuccessful, the prisoner must then submit a formal appeal on an inmate appeal form (a “602”) to the institution's Appeals Coordinator or Appeals Office. Id., § 3084.5(b). If the prisoner is again unsuccessful, he or she must submit a formal appeal for second level review, id., § 3084.5(c), which is conducted by the institution head or designee. Id. § 3084.5(e)(1). The third or “Director's Level” of review “shall be final and exhausts all administrative remedies available in the Department [of Corrections].” See Cal. Dep't. of Corrections Operations Manual, § 54100.11, “Levels of Review[.]”

Nichols v. Logan, 355 F.Supp.2d 1155, 1161 (S.D.Cal.2004).

Because a plaintiff must follow applicable regulations, using some alternative means or procedure to lodge or pursue a complaint does not satisfy exhaustion requirements. Under 15 Cal.Code Regs. § 3084.2 prisoners must use Form 602 to advance their grievances. The Cal. Dep't of Corrections Operations Manual, § 54100.25.1, requires use of the form even when allegations of staff misconduct are being separately investigated. (Grannis Suppl. Decl., ¶ 6.)

The Supreme Court has recognized this requirement may create harsh results, but has also emphasized the relative informality and simplicity of California's system, Woodford, 548 U.S. at 103, as well as the important concerns underlying the exhaustion requirement. Porter, 534 U.S. at 524–25.

Plaintiff need only exhaust available remedies, however. Any theoretically available remedies Defendants prevented him from pursuing, such as by withholding required forms or refusing to process forms, need not be exhausted. Mitchell v. Horn, 318 F.3d 523, 529 (3d Cir.2003) (citing Miller v. Norris, 247 F.3d 736,740 (8th Cir.2001) (holding that remedies prisoner officials prevent a prisoner from utilizing are not “available” for § 1997e(a) purposes)).

B. The R & R's Findings

*4 The R & R focuses on Plaintiff's claim that Sgt. Galban sexually assaulted him and prison officials retaliated against him. Plaintiff claims he either exhausted these and other claims or filed them but was prevented from fully exhausting them, and that Lt. Stratton investigated them. As the R & R correctly points out, the questions now before the Court concerning exhaustion are 1) whether whatever complaint Lt. Stratton investigated satisfied the exhaustion requirement, and 2) whether Defendants prevented Plaintiff from utilizing administrative remedies.

Previously, Defendants submitted evidence Plaintiff never submitted a Form 602 complaining of sexual assault and retaliation. In the Motion to Dismiss, they again submit evidence, but also provide detailed explanation of what happened. The R & R reviews this evidence in great detail. (R & R, 10:6–12:15.) In essence, Defendants have presented evidence to show Plaintiff never submitted a Form 602 complaint, and Lt. Stratton was investigating a spoken, not written, complaint. (Stratton Decl. ¶¶ 3, 6.) They also present evidence to show charges of serious staff misconduct may be investigated even when not submitted on the required Form 602, but a separate investigation does not substitute for the normal appeal process. (Grannis Suppl. Decl. ¶ 6.) Plaintiff himself, when communicating with officials, described his complaint as a “citizen's complaint,”¹ not a 602 appeal or any equivalent term, and specifically cites 15 Cal.Code Regs. § 3391(d). (Stratton Decl. ¶ 5, Ex. C.)

Defendants have submitted evidence showing a search was made for all 602 appeals Plaintiff submitted from November 1, 2002 to November 3, 2006, the date the original complaint was filed in this matter. (Edwards Suppl. Decl., ¶ 4.) Most of the appeals were screened because Plaintiff had attempted to bypass steps in the appeals process or because of other procedural defects he could have remedied but never did. (Id.)

Two 602 appeals are of particular interest. First, on November 6, 2005 Plaintiff appealed procedural irregularities in the October 7, 2005 disciplinary hearing, of which he said he was notified November 3, 2005. (Edwards Suppl. Decl., ¶ 4(c) and Ex. B.) Plaintiff's description of the problem, set forth on the form, describes only failure to hold an adequate hearing, appeals the finding of "guilty," and requests only the opportunity to appear and present evidence at a new hearing. (Id., Ex. B.) The evidence shows this appeal was granted on April 10, 2006 and Plaintiff was provided with a new hearing as he requested. (Id.) The evidence indicates he lodged no appeal concerning the new hearing. This particular 602 appeal would have put prison officials on notice of a possible procedural due process violation, but as the R & R correctly noted, the FAC does not raise such a claim. (R & R at 19:16–23; see also FAC at 25–26 (discussing events of early October, 2005), 29 (briefly discussing events of November, 2005).) The appeal did not identify the basis for any claim raised in the FAC. See Griffin v. Arpaio, 557 F.3d 1117, 2009 WL 539982, slip op. at *2–*3 (9th Cir. Mar. 5, 2009) (explaining that, to exhaust administrative remedies, a grievance must contain sufficient details to put prison officials on notice of the nature of the wrong for which redress is sought).

*5 Second, Plaintiff maintained to the Director's Level a 602 appeal complaining against unspecified officials concerning a different disciplinary proceeding. The disciplinary proceeding concerned charges of refusing a cellmate, and began May 10, 2006. The appeal, which was denied at the Director's Level, was not exhausted until November 30, 2006, nearly a month after Plaintiff filed this action. (Edwards Suppl. Decl. ¶ 4(g); Grannis Decl. ¶ 7(a).) Also, the R & R correctly notes this appeal would not have put Defendants on notice regarding allegations that Sgt. Galban sexually assaulted Plaintiff and staff prevented him from filing a complaint about it. (R & R, 13:5–22.)

The evidence therefore shows no appeals that would have put prison officials on notice of the grievances underlying claims raised in the FAC, either those involving Sgt. Galban, or official retaliation, or any other claim. (Edwards Suppl. Decl. ¶ 4.) Furthermore, the evidence shows Plaintiff was able to submit multiple 602 appeals, which were considered and, in one case, granted. (Id.)

The R & R also credited declarations showing Plaintiff never submitted a Third Level appeal against any Defendant. (R & R, 12:1–3.) Thus, even if Plaintiff had submitted an appeal on a Form 602 concerning his claims raised in the FAC, the R & R found he had not pursued it through all required levels.

The R & R found administrative remedies were available. On its face, the evidence indicates the screening out of certain appeals was not arbitrary, contrary to applicable rules, or designed to thwart Plaintiff's ability to bring or maintain appeals. (Edwards Suppl. Decl. ¶ 4.) Plaintiff says officials initially refused to provide him with a blank Form 602 so he could file a grievance and initially refused to allow him to file a grievance other than on a Form 602. (FAC at 17, 20, 24–25.) The FAC makes clear, however, that Plaintiff obtained this form from the prison library. (Id. at 26.)

Thus, assuming the R & R's findings of facts are correct, Plaintiff had administrative remedies available for claims he raises in the FAC but failed to exhaust them as to any claim raised in the FAC.

C. Plaintiff's Objections to the R & R

As discussed above, Plaintiff filed extensive and detailed objections to the R & R, most of which are irrelevant to the issue of exhaustion, and many of which are irrelevant to any material issue. The objections go line by line through the R & R, critiquing each sentence or paragraph. In large part, the objections find fault with the level of factual and legal detail provided in the R & R, or quibble baselessly with its wording. The Court will not address these objections, which have no bearing on the outcome of this case and which are thus moot. In only a few instances, which are addressed below, are Plaintiff's objections relevant to the issue of exhaustion of administrative remedies.

1. Objection: The R & R Applied the Wrong Legal Standards

*6 Plaintiff lodges two general objections regarding the standards the R & R applied. First, he argues the R & R was bound to apply the Rule 12\(b\)\(6\) standard to Defendants' defense of non-exhaustion by accepting his pleadings as true and drawing inferences in his favor rather than considering evidence. (See, e.g., Obj. to R & R at 13, 29 ("The R & R assumes a matter in dispute."))

As discussed above, this objection relies on the wrong standard. In deciding a non-enumerated Rule 12 motion to dismiss for failure to exhaust available administrative remedies, the Court may consider the parties' submissions outside the pleadings and decide disputed issues of fact. Wyatt, 315 F.3d at 1119–20. Defendant has been afforded an opportunity to develop the record, and has done so by pointing to and discussing extensive documentation to support his arguments. Id. at 1120 n. 14.

Second, Plaintiff argues Defendants were required to prove non-exhaustion by clear and convincing evidence (Obj. to R & R at 35–36 (“They are required to establish by clear and convincing proof”); 44 (“The Defendants have not submitted clear and convincing proof of unexhausted available remedies and this is what is required in order to satisfy the allocated burden of proof.”))

It would be extraordinary if defendants in civil actions were required to prove the nonoccurrence of an event by clear and convincing evidence, especially because weightier matters such as liability and jurisdiction need only be proved by a preponderance of the evidence. Thus, not surprisingly, the R & R did not state what standard it was applying. The correct standard is, however, that Defendants must prove non-exhaustion of administrative remedies by a preponderance of the evidence. See Kelley v. DeMasi, 2008 WL 4298475, slip op. at *4 (E.D.Mich, Sept. 18, 2008) (citing Lewis v. District of Columbia, 535 F.Supp.2d 1, 5 (D.D.C.2008)). See also Dale v. Poston, 548 F.3d 563, 564 (7th Cir.2008) (noting with approval that jury was asked to determine whether defendants in PLRA case had proven non-exhaustion by a preponderance of the evidence). The R & R did not err.

These objections are therefore OVERRULED.

2. Objection: The R & R Relied on Inadmissible Evidence

Plaintiff argues in various places that the R & R relied on incompetent evidence submitted by Defendants. He contends Lt. Stratton would have had no personal knowledge of the matters attested to in his declaration, such as who submitted which reports or who received various letters attached as exhibits to his declaration. (Obj. to R & R at 30–31.) He also claims, without much explanation, that Lt. Stratton would not have had time to conduct an actual investigation. (Id. at 35.)

These objections are largely frivolous and those that are not are trivial. Lt. Stratton would have had personal knowledge of what kind of investigation he was asked to conduct, what paper documentation he was provided, what he and Plaintiff talked about, and what reports he submitted after interviewing Plaintiff. (Stratton Decl. ¶¶ 3, 4.) The letters he was provided (id., Ex. C) are attached as exhibits, with addressed and postmarked envelopes, and their contents speak for themselves. Plaintiff does not question the authenticity of any letter he himself wrote or sent. The letter from Warden L.E. Scribner, which is also attached, is substantially similar to the letter Plaintiff himself attached as FAC Ex. 31,² and in any event is offered merely to show what Plaintiff was told and not for the truth of the matters asserted therein.

*7 Lt. Stratton also provided a factual basis, grounded primarily in his own experience, for his conclusions that Plaintiff filed no Form 602 appeals relating to accusations against Sgt. Galban, or against other staff for failing to process complaints of staff misconduct. (Stratton Decl. ¶ 6.) The only possibly incompetent testimony consists of characterizations of the attached letters and a report of a brief conversation with an administrator, but these are merely cumulative of other evidence and do not affect the outcome.

These objections are therefore OVERRULED.

3. Objection: Defendants Are Estopped from Arguing Non-Exhaustion

Plaintiff has filed a separate motion to strike (“Motion to Strike”) which, as noted above, the Court construes as part of Plaintiff's objections. The objections themselves repeatedly make reference to the estoppel argument. (See, e.g., Obj. to R & R at 57.) The motion itself, however, provides the most detailed argument.

Plaintiff claims Defendants misled him into believing his claims were exhausted, and no more remedies were available. (Motion to Strike at 3; Obj. to R & R at 53.) In support of his position, he cites Cal. Evid.Code § 623 (concerning estoppel) and Brown v. Valoff, 422 F.3d 926, 935 (9th Cir.2005). (Motion to Strike at 2.)

Plaintiff cites a particular letter in support of this argument, a letter from Warden Scribner, dated January 27, 2006, stating that Plaintiff's allegations were not sustained and further questions should be referred to administrative assistant R. Madden. (Obj. to R & R at 38, 53 (citing FAC, Ex. 31).)

Plaintiff contends this letter reliably informed him that no remedies were available. See Brown, 422 F.3d at 935 and n. 10.

Plaintiff misreads the letter, however. It informs him Warden Scribner was responding to a “recent letter” from Plaintiff in which Plaintiff says that on October 18, 2005 he submitted a “written Citizen’s Complaint in regards to Correctional Sergeant S. Rutledge.”(FAC Ex. 31.) The letter further informs Plaintiff:

A “fact-finding” was conducted into these and related allegations that you had previously made. The result of the “fact-finding” was that the allegations are NOT SUSTAINED, and that staff have acted and treated you in a professional manner.

Id.

This letter does not, as Plaintiff argues, inform him no remedies are available for him to exhaust. Rather, it tells him Warden Scribner was responding to a letter concerning a citizen’s complaint sent to the Director of Corrections—not a 602 appeal pursued through established channels. Plaintiff’s letter of complaint is apparently the letter attached as Exhibit C to the Stratton Declaration, which is discussed above.

Plaintiff’s letter charges that the complaint was never processed, that Plaintiff spoke to officials, and that no appropriate response was forthcoming. (Stratton Decl. ¶ 5, Ex. C.) It therefore requests a Director’s Review and an investigation. (Id.) Whatever Plaintiff may have intended to say or do, the letter he addressed to the Director of Corrections is not a 602 appeal, and Warden Scribner’s reply can only reasonably be construed as discussing an investigation made pursuant to other kinds of complaints, outside the established grievance process. It does not, as Plaintiff believes, inform him that remedies for the type of injury he alleges are unavailable through the established grievance process. It neither forbids nor discourages filing a 602 appeal.

*8 In a sense Plaintiff seems to be arguing that after receiving this letter there was no point in filing a 602 appeal. The Supreme Court’s holding in Woodford, 548 U.S. at 94–95, however, explains why this argument must fail. The Supreme Court’s holding makes absolutely clear a prisoner must follow the established prison grievance system, not some other system of his own devising. Nor may a prisoner satisfy the exhaustion requirement by bypassing the administrative process or violating its requirements until his complaint at last falls flat. Id. at 95, 97.

This objection is therefore OVERRULED.

4. Objection: The R & R Should Have Considered FAC Exhibit 45

This is the most substantial of Plaintiff’s objections. Plaintiff points to a 602 form attached as Exhibit 45 to the R & R (the “Retaliation 602”). In the area of the form where Plaintiff was asked to describe the problem, he wrote:

Emergency Appeal Pursuant to CCR Title 15, 3084.7. Circumstances are such that regular appeal time presents a threat to my safety. Classification committee CHo’d me to general population double cell. The action places me at risk. I have attempted to make a complaint against corrections officers and have been issued CDC 115’s and 128’s in retaliation.

(FAC Ex. 45.) In the area where he was to indicate the actions he was requesting, he wrote: “Stay of release to GP double cell and new Committee hearing and audit of my file.”(Id.) The form is dated December 15, 2005 and date-stamped as having been received by the appeals office on December 21, 2005.

Plaintiff repeatedly cites to the Retaliation 602 as evidence Defendants made administrative remedies unavailable to him. (Obj. to R & R at 18, 36–37 (accusing Appeals Coordinator D. Edwards of omitting pertinent details in his declaration and arguing this appeal was “undu[]ly rejected under the direction of the Defendants”), 40.)

This 602 form, if it had been properly filed and the appeal pursued, would have exhausted Plaintiff’s retaliation claim and possibly notified Defendants of other claims in the FAC. Edwards’ supplemental declaration (Dkt. no. 78–6) submitted in support of Defendants’ Motion to Dismiss explains why it was not: “On December 21, 2005, my office received an appeal from Inmate Andrews which was screened out on December 22, 2005, because he could only submit one non-emergency appeal per week.”(Edwards Suppl. Decl., ¶ 4(d).)

The declaration's previous paragraph, 4(c), identifies the other non-emergency appeal Plaintiff submitted, a 602 appeal concerning a disciplinary matter which had previously been submitted on November 6, 2005 and was resubmitted on December 15, 2005. This is attached as Exhibit B to the supplemental declaration. This other appeal is dated as having been resubmitted on December 15, 2005 and is date-stamped as having been received in the appeals office on December 21, 2005.³ It was this appeal that was eventually granted at the second level.

*9 These two 602 forms, then, were signed by Plaintiff and received by the appeals office on the exact same days. The Retaliation 602, which was screened out the day after it was received, is accompanied by a letter explaining:

The enclosed documents are being returned to you for the following reasons:

You may only submit one (1) non-emergency appeal within a seven-calendar day period.

Furthermore, you failed to attach a copy of your most recent CDC 128G Classification chrono to the appeal. This appeal does not meet the Emergency Appeal requirement set forth in [15 Cal Code Regs. § 3084.7]. Resubmit this appeal after 12/29/05.

(FAC, Ex. 44 (emphasis in original).)

The Supreme Court's holding in Woodford explains:

Proper exhaustion demands compliance with an agency's deadlines and other critical procedural rules because no adjudicative system can function effectively without imposing some orderly structure on the course of its proceedings.

548 U.S. at 90–91. If, as the letter indicates, the Retaliation 602 was properly screened out for either of the reasons set forth in the rejection letter, Plaintiff failed to comply with procedural rules and Defendants cannot rightly be blamed for screening it out rather than processing and acting on it.

Although the Retaliation 602 asserts it is an emergency, the record as a whole makes clear it is not. Since at least September, 2005, Plaintiff had been telling prison officials he thought he would not be safe if he were moved to a double cell in the general population, and had been disciplined for refusing to leave administrative segregation. (See, e.g., FAC, Ex. 32–33.) This particular request has every appearance of a repetition of older claims. The additional claim that officers were retaliating against him by issuing CDC 115's and 128's, though new, is likewise not an emergency. There is no suggestion that having the allegedly false reports dismissed or stopping the filing of new reports was a matter of any urgency, and Plaintiff did not ask for any relief concerning this charge.

Applicable regulations deal with the obvious potential for the submission of excessive appeals by prisoners by requiring the suspension of second and subsequent non-emergency appeals filed within the same seven-day calendar period. 15 Cal.Code Regs. § 3084.4(a)(1). Because neither 602 appeal received on December 21, 2005 was an emergency appeal, one of the two was therefore improperly filed and required to be screened out. By submitting two non-emergency appeals on the same day, Plaintiff was failing to comply with applicable rules.

Accepting the resubmitted 602, which had obviously been pending longer than the Retaliation 602 and which was not primarily a rehash of earlier complaints, was proper. On top of this, Plaintiff failed to attach his Classification chrono to the Retaliation 602 so the reviewing officer would have relevant information concerning his placement. Plaintiff was also specifically told he could cure his errors by resubmitting his Retaliation 602 after December 29, 2005, but he did not do so. And finally, a notice at the bottom of the rejection letter explains the procedure for correcting a screening error; thus, if he thought the wrong appeal was screened out he could have attempted to correct his error, though the pleadings make clear he did not do so.

*10 The Court therefore holds Plaintiff did not properly submit his Retaliation 602, which was correctly screened out. Although he had the opportunity to do so, he never resubmitted it. Plaintiff thus failed to exhaust claims raised in this Form 602, and he—not prison officials—was responsible for this.

This objection is therefore OVERRULED.

5. Objection: The FAC Did Allege a Due Process Claim

The R & R found Plaintiff had not alleged a due process claim in the FAC. (R & R at 19:16–23.) Plaintiff objects that he did in fact bring equal protection and due process claims. (Obj. to R & R at 48) and in his Motion to Amend suggests he stands ready to plead due process violations. (Motion to Amend, ¶ 20.) As discussed above, the only potential claim Plaintiff exhausted before filing suit was a possible procedural due process claim arising from a disciplinary hearing, log number 09–05–B08, which he complained he was not permitted to attend or present evidence at, although he had not waived these rights. (See Edwards Suppl. Decl., ¶ 4(c) and Ex. B (Form 602, submitted December 15, 2005, and related documents).) He also alleges other possible due process or equal protection claims, but clearly he has not exhausted any of these.

Even if Plaintiff could show his procedural due process rights were violated and even if he could show he was injured by the violation, neither the FAC nor the objections nor his Motion to Amend give any suggestion he is attempting to bring a claim based on this disciplinary hearing. Rather, he complains of “false writings.” (Obj. to R & R at 48.) The “false writing” is identified as Grannis' declaration, which Plaintiff believes wrongly includes a reference to an ultimate finding of a disciplinary violation. (Id., Motion to Amend ¶ 19.) The Grannis declaration Plaintiff is referring to, however, mentions a later conviction, log number 05–A5–06–005, dated May 10, 2006, and not the earlier disciplinary hearing. (Grannis Suppl. Decl. ¶ 4(a).) Plaintiff also refers generally to Defendants' refusal to report complaints of staff misconduct to the office of internal affairs, a duty he argues is statutorily mandated for prisoners' protection. (Obj. to R & R at 48.)

Plaintiff also vaguely refers to “other procedural and substantive due process violations,” and says he has “irrefutable evidence of exhaustion and prevented availability,” but says he is “unsure how to plead” them. (Motion to Amend, ¶ 20.) Whatever due process violations the objections may be referring to, it is clear they do not refer to the one possible claim the Court has identified as exhausted, because Plaintiff was able to summarize that claim easily in a Form 602.

Whether the Court construes this as an objection or a request for leave to amend, it must fail. Objections must be specific, not vague and general, and Plaintiff has not shown he can successfully amend to add the claims he wishes to bring. If anything, his Motion to Amend suggests the amendment would be insufficient because, even now, Plaintiff does not know what shape his amendments would take.

11 These objections are therefore OVERRULED.

6. Objection: Lt. Stratton's Report Was Improperly Withheld

Plaintiff objects to Lt. Stratton's assertion of privilege in his declaration. (Obj. to R & R at 32, 56.) Apparently he means two things by this: first, that the omission of some information renders Lt. Stratton's declaration suspect, and second, that the investigative reports Lt. Stratton refers to should have been disclosed.

Lt. Stratton's declaration refers to reports from “a full fact-finding review into Inmate Andrews' allegations” of an assault by Sgt. Galban and subsequent retaliation and cover-up. “Privilege” is a misnomer here; Lt. Stratton actually said the reports were confidential, though he cited evidence he found (or looked for and did not find), on which he based his report. Lt. Stratton is correct in stating that reports concerning an investigation of a law enforcement officer's alleged misconduct are treated as confidential. See, e.g., Williams v. Malfi, 2008 WL 618895, slip op. at *8 n. 11 (C.D.Cal. Jan. 25, 2008) (discussing procedures used to safeguard confidential law enforcement personnel files before disclosing them to litigants). In any event, it is the evidence underlying the report, and not the report itself that Lt. Stratton mentions.

To the extent Plaintiff is objecting to Defendants' failure to produce these files during discovery, he does not show he ever sought these reports, and in any case his objection comes much too late.

This objection is therefore OVERRULED.

7. Objection: Plaintiff Should Be Permitted to Amend to Add Claims and Defendants

The R & R recommended denying Plaintiff leave to amend his complaint a second time to add multiple Defendants. Plaintiff then filed a motion for leave to amend (Dkt. no. 96) (“Motion to Amend”), which the Court construes as part of his objections. He also included this in his objections to the R & R. (Obj. to R & R at 24, 49.)

Plaintiff's Motion to Amend is based on claims that he could not properly file the FAC because he was “under distress and fear” and he would now like to add claims he omitted in the FAC. He describes in great detail the emotional turmoil he suffered when, in connection with a transfer, his legal materials were lost. (See Decl. in Supp. of Motion to Amend, ¶ 5.) He mentions loss of his legal materials as a factor in his failing to file as good an amended complaint as he had hoped to. Then, unexpectedly, his materials turned up before the Court adopted the first report and recommendation in its Dismissal Order. (Id., ¶ 7.) For some reason, however, Plaintiff claims this was no real help to him, and merely caused him additional stress and delay. (Id., ¶ 9.)

Plaintiff also discusses the Dismissal Order, which the Court initially issued, then withdrew and modified. He says the issuance of the modified order caused him additional turmoil and distress because, he claims, the modified order “completely changed its previous determinations [and] I was required to start completely over.”(Id., ¶ 8.)

*12 With regard to the Court's order, this is completely untrue. Plaintiff's claimed turmoil, fear, and distress is either exaggerated or else a gross overreaction. The second, corrected Dismissal Order was issued a mere ten days after the first. It dismissed more claims than the first did, and left unaltered the Court's dismissal of Plaintiff's due process and equal protection claims. Therefore, it is difficult to see how Plaintiff lost very much of his work, if he lost any at all. A reasonable response would have been to leave the initially undismissed claims alone and work on the dismissed ones. When the second order replaced the first, Plaintiff would have realized he had more work than he originally thought, but he would not have had to throw his work out entirely. Even assuming Plaintiff worked assiduously in those ten days, the emotional stress of losing the benefit of some of that work would not reasonably cause emotional disability as Plaintiff now claims it did.

If Plaintiff needed more time to amend, he could have sought it, as evidenced by the fact that his unopposed motion for an extension of time in which to file his FAC was granted. If he filed the FAC too hastily and made errors, he could have sought leave to correct them in light of the Court's order granting him more time in which to amend. Plaintiff identifies no adequate reason to treat the original complaint and FAC as trial runs and allow him to amend again.

In the FAC, Plaintiff attempts to add Defendants, accusing them of being complicit in some kind of conspiracy against him to manipulate cell assignments to cause him harm. (FAC at 55.) He also seeks to add officials whom he accuses of retaliating against him by transferring him to Pelican Bay State Prison. (FAC at 56.) He mentions these claims in his objections to the R & R as well. (Obj. to R & R at 24, 49.) All these proposed claims are unexhausted, so granting leave to add them would be futile.

These objections are therefore OVERRULED.

V. Defendants' Objections

Defendants object to the R & R's recommendation that the FAC be dismissed because Plaintiff has not exhausted administrative remedies, rather than for failure to state a claim, and that Plaintiff not be charged with a strike.

As provided in 28 U.S.C. § 1915\(g\),

In no event shall a prisoner bring a civil action or appeal a judgment in a civil action or proceeding under this section if the prisoner has, on 3 or more prior occasions, while incarcerated or detained in any facility, brought an action or appeal in a court of the United States that was dismissed on the grounds that it is frivolous, malicious, or fails to state a claim upon which relief may be granted, unless the prisoner is under imminent danger of serious physical injury.

Here, the FAC is being dismissed without leave to amend for failure to exhaust administrative remedies, not on the grounds that it is frivolous, or malicious, or fails to state a claim.

*13 Defendants have not cited any authority, however, nor is the Court aware of any, requiring the Court to first reach the issue of whether a complaint states a claim before reaching the exhaustion question, when the same motion urges dismissal on both grounds. See, e.g., O'Neal v. Price, 531 F.3d 1146, 1154 n. 9 (9th Cir.2008) (citing with approval the observation of Tafari v. Hues, 473 F.3d 440, 444 (2d Cir.2007) that an appeal may be dismissed as premature even though it later proves to be frivolous).

The Ninth Circuit has apparently not addressed the issue of whether dismissal for failure to exhaust administrative remedies counts as a strike under § 1915\(g\), although a number of other circuits have. See Daniels v. Woodford, 2008 WL 2079010, slip op. at *5 (C.D.Cal., May 13, 2008) (citing cases). Compare also Kalinowski v. Bond, 358 F.3d 978, 979 (7th Cir.2004) (holding dismissal for failure to exhaust constitutes strike under § 1915\(g\)); Steele v. Federal Bureau of Prisons, 355 F.3d 1204, 1213 (10th Cir.2003) (same); Rivera v. Allin, 144 F.3d 719, 731 (11th Cir.1998) (same); and Patton v. Jefferson Correctional Ctr., 136 F.3d 458, 460 (5th Cir.1998) (same) with Owens v. Isaac, 487 F.3d 561, 563

(8th Cir.2007) (holding dismissal for failure to exhaust does not count as a strike); Green v. Young, 454 F.3d 405, 406 (4th Cir.2006) (same); Snider v. Melindez, 199 F.3d 108, 115 (2nd Cir.1999) (same).

The Ninth Circuit's favorable citation of Snider and its progeny Tafari in O'Neal at 1154 n. 9 for a related point, together with the court's reasoning in Daniels persuade the Court dismissal for failure to exhaust should not be counted as a strike under § 1915(g).

Defendants' objections are therefore OVERRULED. Bearing in mind future rulings may clarify the law on this point, however, neither Defendants nor any other parties are barred from seeking to have this dismissal counted as a strike for § 1915(g) purposes as appropriate at a later time.

VI. Conclusion and Order

For the reasons set forth above, the Court ADOPTS the R & R, with the additional explanations set forth above. Plaintiff's request for judicial notice of 15 Cal Code Regs. § 3401.5 is GRANTED. All claims against Defendants for money damages are DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE. The Court also REAFFIRMS its previous dismissal of all claims against the CDCR. In all other respects the FAC is hereby DISMISSED WITHOUT PREJUDICE but WITHOUT LEAVE TO AMEND, for failure to exhaust administrative remedies. Plaintiff's request for leave to add claims and Defendants is DENIED. Defendants' request that Plaintiff be charged with a strike under § 1915(g) is DENIED WITHOUT PREJUDICE.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DAVID RAYMOND ANDREWS, Plaintiff,

v.

M.C. WHITMAN, Corrections Counselor; G.J. JANDA, Chief Deputy Warden; M.E. BOURLAND, Chief Deputy Warden; T. OCHOA, Chief Deputy Warden; C. BUTLER, Captain; W.C. ROBERTS, Captain; F. RUTLEDGE, Sergeant; CALIFORNIA DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS, a public entity; ET ALIA UNIDENTIFIED DEFENDANTS, Defendants.

REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION FOR ORDER GRANTING DEFENDANTS' MOTION TO DISMISS

NITA L. STORMES, United States Magistrate Judge.

*14 David Raymond Andrews (Plaintiff), a California prisoner proceeding pro se, filed an initial complaint under 42 U.S.C. sections 1983 and 1985 on November 3, 2006. The Court dismissed the complaint without prejudice and granted Plaintiff leave to amend. Plaintiff filed a first amended complaint (FAC) against officials at Calipatria State Prison. He alleges that defendants California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (CDCR), T. Ochoa, M. Whitman, C. Butler, S. Rutledge III, G. Janda and W.C. Roberts (Defendants) violated his rights to due process, equal protection, petition the court, and to be free from cruel and unusual punishment. FAC at 5.

Defendants filed a motion to dismiss the FAC on these bases:

(1) Plaintiff failed to exhaust the required administrative remedies under the Prison Litigation Reform Act (PLRA); (2) the FAC fails to state a claim against any Defendant; and (3) Defendants are entitled to qualified immunity. Defendants also renewed their request that Plaintiff be charged a "strike" for filing a frivolous and malicious lawsuit, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g). Plaintiff opposes.

This Court has reviewed all the pleadings and filings in this case, and RECOMMENDS that Defendants' motion be GRANTED.

BACKGROUND

The Original Complaint.

Plaintiff's original complaint centered on his allegations that on September 15, 2005, Sergeant Galban sexually abused and threatened Plaintiff in housing unit B-5. Compl. at 7. Over the next several days Plaintiff was shuttled between administrative segregation and the general population due to his threat to the safety and security of the institution. Compl. at 7-8, 15. Plaintiff detailed his thwarted attempts to file an administrative complaint regarding Sergeant Galban's conduct. He alleged due process, equal protection, eighth amendment and first amendment retaliation claims against Defendants.

Order Dismissing the Original Complaint.

The Court issued an order on March 28, 2008 that dismissed all the original claims in the complaint, including some with prejudice. [Doc. No. 70.] It dismissed Plaintiff's due process, equal protection and first amendment retaliation claims and one eighth amendment claim without prejudice. The Court dismissed with prejudice the remaining eighth amendment claims involving Defendants' transfer of Plaintiff back into the general population in 2006.

Regarding exhaustion, the Court found that Plaintiff could not have exhausted claims relating to Defendants' transfer of Plaintiff back to the general prison population in 2006. The Court found that exhaustion would have been impossible because Plaintiff alleged he filed an administrative complaint on October 18, 2005, before the claims based on acts in 2006 could have arisen. Mar. 28 Order, p. 7. The Court determined that because Plaintiff could not now exhaust those 2006 claims, he could not have leave to amend them for this suit. Id.

*15 The Court also noted that Plaintiff did not state any claims against defendant Bourland because Bourland was never served in the action. Mar. 28 Order, p. 8. It also dismissed the CDCR as a Defendant on sovereign immunity grounds. Id.

Finally, the Court denied without prejudice Defendants' motion to dismiss for failure to exhaust because Defendants had not met their burden of proving non-exhaustion. Mar. 28 Order, p. 9.

Plaintiff's First Amended Complaint.

In general, Plaintiff realleges in the FAC his over-arching claim that Calipatria prison staff prevented him from filing a complaint against Sergeant Galban in 2005 for sexual misconduct, and for a conspiracy to organize stabbings and assaults of selected prisoners by inmates. FAC at 7. He claims Defendants engaged in cruel and unusual punishment by first placing him in Calipatria's administrative segregation and then eventually placing him in the Security Housing Unit (SHU) at Pelican Bay State Prison. Plaintiff alleges that every administrative act—including issuing and hearing various rules violation reports regarding Plaintiff's failure to abide by prison policies and procedures—was done in retaliation for his pursuing a complaint against Sergeant Galban. His allegations span events occurring from 2005 to 2008.

Plaintiff attaches several exhibits to the FAC. Those exhibits show, among other things, results of investigations into Plaintiff's complaints, rules violation reports, reasons for disciplinary decisions and placement notices.

Here, the Court assumes the following alleged facts in the FAC as true.¹

1. Events Before October 18, 2005.

Plaintiff was assaulted, stabbed and hospitalized in August 2003. FAC at 13. But Plaintiff does not identify who stabbed or assaulted him, nor implicates any Defendants in the matter. Id. As with the original complaint, Plaintiff does not appear to sue over this incident.

In the days following the incident with Sergeant Galban on September 15, 2005, various prison officials—including some not named as defendants—refused to process Plaintiff's complaint against Sergeant Galban. FAC at 16–20. Plaintiff requested a full Institution Classification Committee (ICC) hearing to discuss the incident. FAC at 16. He complains of correctional officers crafting false rules violation reports during this period. See, e.g., FAC at 21. Also during this time Plaintiff was placed in the “hole” (administrative segregation). FAC at 17.

Plaintiff was transferred back to the general population on September 29, 2005, where he was ridiculed and threatened. FAC at 22–25. The threats and retaliation caused him permanent psychological trauma and suffering, mental stress disorder and a nervous breakdown. FAC at 23.

On September 30, 2005, defendant Roberts refused to take Plaintiff's statement regarding his complaint against Sergeant Galban. FAC at 24. Plaintiff appeared before the ICC again on October 6, 2005. FAC at 25. The ICC was hostile toward Plaintiff and refused to document or acknowledge the circumstances of his complaint. FAC at 25. That day, defendant Whitman directed the drafting of a false rules violation report that falsely accused Plaintiff of refusing to leave administrative segregation on September 29, 2005. FAC at 26. The rules violation report was executed and delivered to Plaintiff on October 7, 2005. FAC at 26.

16 On October 11, 2005, Plaintiff obtained a 602 administrative grievance form from the prison library. FAC at 26.

Plaintiff received his fourth placement notice for administrative segregation on October 11, 2005. FAC at 26. He said defendant Whitman wrote the notice in retaliation for Plaintiff obtaining forms 1858 and 602 from the law library earlier that day. FAC at 26.

At another ICC hearing on October 14, 2005, Plaintiff was unduly accused of several rule violations and threatened with being deemed a program failure. FAC at 27.

2. Submission of Complaint.

On October 18, 2005, defendant Rutledge came to investigate Plaintiff's complaint against Sergeant Galban. FAC at 26–27. Plaintiff says he gave Rutledge a handwritten complaint that day. FAC at 27. Plaintiff never specifies whether the complaint was on the 602 form he had acquired. The complaint was never processed. FAC at 28–29.

Many of Plaintiff's allegations throughout the FAC allege that Defendants thwarted his attempts to follow up with or prosecute his written complaint.

3. Events After October 18, 2005.

Certain prison officials, including some not named as defendants, altered some of Plaintiff's rules violation reports. FAC at 21–22. Plaintiff did not learn of these acts until November 3, 2005. FAC at 21.

Plaintiff appeared before the ICC on December 8, 2005. He told them that any reports of rule violations were written in retaliation for inquiring about the status of the complaint he gave to defendant Rutledge on October 18, 2005. FAC at 29–30. Plaintiff's complaint regarding Sergeant Galban was ignored and he was placed one step closer to being “deemed a program failure.” FAC at 30.

On December 14, 2005, Lieutenant Stratton told Plaintiff he was investigating the complaint against Sergeant Galban, and that he would send Plaintiff a copy of the results of his investigation. FAC at 30–31. Plaintiff appeared before the ICC on December 15, 2005. FAC at 31. Defendant Bourland “pretended” to read from a piece of paper that allegedly reported the results of Stratton's investigation and the finding of no misconduct. FAC at 31. Plaintiff saw the paper Bourland was referring to and thought it was actually a blank sheet. FAC at 31. Plaintiff eventually saw the results of Stratton's investigation and believes the papers are false and purposefully misrepresented the actual circumstances. FAC at 38.

Plaintiff alleges that after the ICC hearing Defendants transferred him “to Facility C in order to provide Sergeant Galban with easier access to Plaintiff.” FAC at 32, 34. The transfer, however, apparently did not occur. On December 28, 2005 Plaintiff “was issued an administrative segregation unit placement notice despite never having left.” FAC at 32, 34.

Within four days of the December 15 hearing, Plaintiff submitted additional grievances—including one mailed to the Director of Corrections in Sacramento—complaining about (1) the conspiracy to set Plaintiff up; (2) Sergeant Galban's sexual misconduct; (3) Defendants' refusal to receive, file or record Plaintiff's complaints; and (4) Defendants' issuance of false rules violations reports. FAC at 33–34.

17 At another ICC hearing on December 29, 2005, Plaintiff was threatened with being placed for two years minimum in the Security Housing Unit (SHU) unless he stopped submitting complaints about Sergeant Galban. FAC at 34. After the hearing, Plaintiff was given a contrived, backdated rules violation report by a non-defendant written in retaliation for his complaints. FAC at 35. Plaintiff was unjustly found guilty of this rules violation report on January 23, 2006. FAC at 37.

In February 2006, in retaliation for his complaint against Galban, Defendants caused guards to send dangerous and aggressive inmates to Plaintiff's cell door so they could terrorize him. FAC at 39. These events emotionally traumatized Plaintiff to the point of insanity. FAC at 40.

On June 12, 2007, a non-defendant correctional officer twisted Plaintiff's arm and threatened him to not file an opposition to Defendants' first motion to dismiss filed in this case or to file complaints against any other correctional officer. FAC at 41. The officer threatened Plaintiff 12 other times over the next month. FAC at 41. Then, in retaliation for filing his opposition to the first motion to dismiss, Plaintiff was transferred to the SHU in Pelican Bay State Prison. FAC at 42.

4. Conspiracy Allegations.

Plaintiff alleges each Defendant is a member of the Green Wall prison guard gang and has entered a secret agreement to conspire with the other Defendants to terrorize Plaintiff. FAC at 45–56. He alleges Defendants acted “in a deliberate and calculated campaign of intimidation, threat, collusion, complicity, deceit, false record production.” FAC at 46. Specifically, he alleges they organized the production of false records, used inmates to inflict cruel and unusual punishment of terror, intimidation and assault, and—with deliberate indifference to Plaintiff’s safety—conspired to injure and/or murder him by using “pencil whipping” techniques and assenting to cell assignments that exposed Plaintiff to substantial risk of injury. FAC at 45–46, 47–51.

5. Claims Against the CDCR.

Plaintiff renews his claims against the CDCR. FAC at 9. He alleges the CDCR engages in coverups of interdepartmental practices and retaliated against Plaintiff. FAC at 53–54.

6. Plaintiff’s Injuries.

Plaintiff alleges—though not in relation to any specific claim—that he suffered physical injury in the form of “permanent impairment of ability, bone fracture permanent disfigurement and continuing physical and emotional pain and suffering.” FAC at 57. He claims Defendants’ evil motives exacerbated his emotional pain and suffering, which includes “permanent stress disorder, extreme anxiety, panic attacks, uncontrollable physical tremors, intermittent convulsive muscle contractions, hyperventilation and social phobia.” FAC at 57–58.

7. Plaintiff’s Attempt to Substitute In Defendants.

Plaintiff alleges the unidentified Defendants are members of the Green Wall prison gang. FAC at 52. He then tries to amend his complaint to also include these correctional officers as Defendants: Galban, Keener, Reynolds, German, Sanchez, Catlett, Heuy, Imada, Sanders, Malcomb, Colio, Trujillo and Pagaza for being complicit in the conspiracy to manipulate Plaintiff’s cell assignments to cause him harm. FAC at 55. Plaintiff does not allege specific actions by these Defendants nor relates them to any specific claim.

*18 Plaintiff also attempts to add Deputy Director T. Schwartz and Classification Services Chief E. Arnold for transferring him to the SHU in Pelican Bay State Prison in retaliation for exercising his first amendment rights. FAC at 56.

8. Prayer for Relief.

Plaintiff requests this relief: a declaration that Defendants’ acts and omissions violated Plaintiff’s rights; nominal damages in the amount of $1.00; compensatory damages in the amount of $10,000.00 against each Defendant; punitive damages in the amount of $10,000.00 against each Defendant; and costs. FAC at 61. He also seeks a preliminary and permanent injunction ordering Defendants to, essentially, stop fabricating papers and allegations against Plaintiff, stop exposing Plaintiff to dangerous or violent inmates in a non-general population housing unit, refrain from retaliatory actions, expunge any negative entries in Plaintiff’s record, and instill a plan where the CDCR itself no longer directly receives complaints against any CDCR employees. FAC at 61–63.

DISCUSSION

I. Eleventh Amendment.

The Eleventh Amendment prohibits damages actions against state officials acting in their official capacities. See Will v. Michigan Dept. of State Police, 491 U.S. 58, 71 n. 10, 109 S.Ct. 2304, 105 L.Ed.2d 45 (1989). It does not, however, “bar actions against state officers in their official capacities if the plaintiffs seek only a declaratory judgment or injunctive relief.” Chaloux v. Killeen, 886 F.2d 247, 252 (9th Cir.1989) (internal quotations omitted). Nor does it bar damages actions against state officials in their personal capacities. See Hafer v. Melo, 502 U.S. 21, 31, 112 S.Ct. 358, 116 L.Ed.2d 301 (1991). The Eleventh Amendment prohibits only damages actions against the “official’s office”—actions that are in reality suits against the state itself—rather than against its individuals. See id. at 26; Will, 491 U.S. at 71; Stivers v. Pierce, 71 F.3d 732, 749 (9th Cir.1995).

Here, Plaintiff sued Defendants in their individual and official capacities for both money damages and injunctive and declaratory relief. FAC at 4, 61. Because of the bar on damages actions against individuals acting in their official capacities, this Court RECOMMENDS that Defendants’ motion to dismiss Plaintiff's claims for money damages against Defendants in their official capacities be GRANTED.

II. Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies.

A. The PLRA.

Exhaustion is a prerequisite to bringing suit under the PLRA. 42 U.S.C. § 1997e(a); Porter v. Nussle, 534 U.S. 516, 524, 122 S.Ct. 983, 152 L.Ed.2d 12 (2002); Lira v. Herrera, 427 F.3d 1164, 1169 (9th Cir.2005). In a non-enumerated Rule 12(b)² motion to dismiss for failure to exhaust administrative remedies, defendants “have the burden of raising and proving exhaustion.” Wyatt v. Terhune, 315 F.3d 1108, 1119 (9th Cir.2003). Defendant, and not plaintiff, bears the burden of proving the plaintiff had available administrative remedies that he or she did not utilize. Id.

*19 To show failure to exhaust, defendants may go outside the pleadings and submit supporting affidavits or declarations. Id. The plaintiff, however, must be provided an opportunity to develop a record to refute defendants' prima facie showing of non-exhaustion. Id. at 1120 n. 14. In a non-enumerated Rule 12(b) motion to dismiss, the court may look at both parties' submissions outside the pleadings to resolve factual issues regarding exhaustion. Id.

The PLRA requires that a plaintiff exhaust only “available” administrative remedies. 42 U.S.C. § 1997(e)(a). For example, if an inmate's appeal is granted at a lower level, the inmate need not appeal because there is nothing left to exhaust. See Brady v. Attygala, 196 F.Supp.2d 1016, 1022–23 (C.D.Cal.2002) (finding further exhaustion not required where appeal was granted at the second level); Gomez v. Winslow, 177 F.Supp.2d 977, 985 (N.D.Cal.2001) (allowing an inmate to file suit where he had “won” his inmate appeal by receiving a “partial grant” at the second level). Also, refusing to give an inmate grievance forms could raise the inference the prisoner “exhausted” his administrative remedies. See Mitchell v. Horn, 318 F.3d 523, 529 (3rd Cir.2003) (reversing a district court's dismissal of a section 1983 case because it did not consider Plaintiff's allegation that prison officials refused to provide him with the grievance forms); Miller v. Norris, 247 F.3d 736, 740 (8th Cir.2001) (concluding that any remedy prison officials prevent a prisoner from utilizing is not an “available” remedy as section 1997(e)(a) defines that term).

B. The Exhaustion Process.

“Any inmate ... may appeal any departmental decision, action, condition, or policy perceived by those individuals as adversely affecting their welfare.” Cal.Code Regs. tit. 15 § 3084.1(a). An inmate must complete these steps to exhaust at the administrative level: (1) attempt to informally resolve the problem with the staff member involved, Id. at § 3084.5(a); (2) submit a grievance on the CDCR inmate 602 form, Id. at § 3084.5(b); (3) appeal to the institution head or his/her designee for a second level of review, Id. at § 3084.5(c); and (4) appeal to the Director of CDCR or his/her designee for a third and final level of review, Cal. Dept. of Corr. Operations Manual § 54100.11; Nichols v. Logan, 355 F.Supp.2d 1155, 1161 (S.D.Cal.2004). Prisoners must submit their appeal within 15 working days of the event or lower decision being appealed. Cal.Code Regs. tit. 15 § 3084.6(c).

To properly exhaust, a prisoner must complete the administrative review process according to the applicable rules, including meeting deadlines and complying with other critical procedural rules. Woodford v. Ngo, 548 U.S. 81, 90, 126 S.Ct. 2378, 165 L.Ed.2d 368 (2006). If a prisoner concedes that he or she did not exhaust, that concession is a valid ground for dismissal so long as no exception to exhaustion applies. Wyatt, 315 F.3d at 1120.

C. Plaintiff's Attempt to Exhaust.

*20 In the original complaint, Plaintiff alleged he submitted a complaint regarding Sergeant Galban's conduct but that the complaint was never processed. In their first motion to dismiss, Defendants presented evidence that Plaintiff did not submit a 602 form regarding Sergeant Galban's alleged misconduct or Defendants' subsequent alleged misconduct. See Edwards Supp'l Decl. ¶ 7, Grannis Supp'l Decl. ¶¶ 4–5. But Defendants left unexplained other issues regarding exhaustion. First, Defendants did not refute the allegation they thwarted Plaintiff's efforts to file his administrative complaint. Second, they did not explain how—if no complaints were received—they learned of Plaintiff's complaint against Sergeant Galban and sent Lieutenant Stratton to investigate it. Mar. 28 Order, p. 8, ll.24–26. The Court denied without prejudice Defendants' motion to dismiss for failure to exhaust because Defendants did not meet their burden of showing non-exhaustion. Mar. 28 Order, pp. 8–10.

Now, the remaining questions regarding exhaustion are: (1) whether the complaint Lieutenant Stratton investigated satisfied the administrative requirements against the Defendants; and (2) whether Defendants made the required administrative remedies unavailable to Plaintiff.

1. Lieutenant Stratton's Investigation of Plaintiff's Complaint.

Defendants submit new evidence in this motion to dismiss the FAC to rebut Plaintiff's assertion that he submitted a written complaint regarding Sergeant Galban's conduct. Most relevant, they bring forth the Declaration of Lieutenant Stratton, who explains he was investigating a verbal—and not a written—complaint regarding the alleged incident with Sergeant Galban. On December 14, 2005, Lieutenant Stratton, at the direction of Captain Roberts, interviewed Plaintiff regarding his verbal allegations about the incident with Sergeant Galban. Stratton Decl. ¶ 3. At the time, no paper documentation supported Plaintiff's claims. Id. During the interview Stratton advised Plaintiff of the CDCR appeals process and how to properly use the 602 form. Id. After the interview, Stratton recommended a single-cell placement and a mental health review for Plaintiff. Stratton Decl. ¶ 4; see FAC attachment pp. 25–26.

Next, Plaintiff sent letters to the CDCR Director on December 15 and December 18, 2005 claiming he submitted a citizen's complaint to Sergeant Rutledge in October 2005. Stratton Decl. ¶ 5, Ex. C. The CDCR Director re-directed the letters to Calipatria's warden, who then tasked Stratton with conducting a fact-finding review into Plaintiff's complaints. Stratton Decl. ¶¶ 5–6, Ex. C. While Stratton did not disclose the full report of that investigation to this Court because of its confidential nature, he shares these specific results from his fact-finding review:

Andrews did not file a CDCR Form 602 related to his allegations against Sergeant Galvan, or against other staff for their alleged refusal to process his complaints of staff misconduct. I know this for three reasons. First, my confidential reports do not contain any notation indicating an Administrative Appeal Log Number associated with the underlying allegations. It is my practice and custom to record the corresponding Administrative Appeal

Log Number for each administrative appeal I am assigned to investigate. The lack of an Administrative Appeal Log Number in my confidential reports indicates that Inmate Andrews did not file a CDCR Form 602 to advance these allegations. Second, Inmate Andrews' own hand-written documentation, in his letter to the Director of CDCR, dated September 15, 2005, shows that he alleges he submitted a citizen's complaint, reference in the California Code of Regulations, Title 15, section 3391\(d\), to Sergeant Rutledge, rather than a CDCR Form 602. Third, as part of my fact-finding review, I contacted H. Fasolo, then the Appeals Coordinator at Calipatria, who informed me that although Inmate Andrews had previously made use of the administrative appeals process, he had not filed any administrative appeal regarding his allegations against Sergeant Galvan or other prison officials related to the alleged misconduct.

*21 Stratton Decl. ¶ 6.

Plaintiff rebuts Stratton's assertions. While he acknowledges that Stratton interviewed him on December 14, Plaintiff says the interview occurred based on previously-submitted written, and not verbal, complaints. Andrews Decl., p. 2. The next day, Plaintiff appeared before the ICC and learned the investigation of his complaints was completed on December 14. Id.

Defendants submit two other declarations in further support of their argument that Stratton investigated a verbal, non-602 form complaint. First, Sergeant Rutledge does not ever remember Plaintiff or any inmate presenting him with a 602 form, or any other written complaint, alleging that another sergeant committed sexual assault. Rutledge Decl. ¶ 2. If Rutledge had received a written complaint, he would have forwarded it to his lieutenant or captain for investigation. Rutledge Decl. ¶ 3. Further, it is not unusual for prison officials to investigate allegations of staff misconduct even when those complaints are not submitted on the required 602 form. Supp. Grannis Decl. ¶ 6. A complaint not presented on the required form may be investigated where they allege serious violations of prison procedures and regulations and contain sufficient detail to be investigated. Id.

Investigating a non-602 form complaint does not supplant the required administrative exhaustion process. Id. First, the CDCR Department Operations Manual § 54100.25.1 requires inmates to use the 602 form even when allegations of staff misconduct are being separately investigated. Id. Second, inmates are routinely advised during the investigation that they have the right to, and should, pursue the administrative grievance process so that they can properly advance their claims. Id. Finally, staff complaints investigated outside the administrative appeals process rarely go beyond the institution where they arise. Id.

The Court finds that Defendants have presented sufficient evidence to explain how Lieutenant Stratton came to investigate Plaintiff's complaint without Plaintiff's submission of a 602 form. The newly-submitted Stratton Declaration complements the initial Declarations of Grannis, the Chief of the Inmate Appeals Branch, and Edwards, the Appeals Coordinator at Calipatria. These declarations revealed (1) Plaintiff did not submit a Third Level inmate appeal to the CDCR office against any of the defendants in this lawsuit, or against any prison officer or official concerning any staff conspiracy to cover up staff misconduct (Grannis Decl. ¶¶ 7, 8, 10); and (2) after a search in the Inmate/Parolee Appeals Tracking System for all appeals Plaintiff filed from November 1, 2002 to the date of the initial complaint, no appeal was submitted against defendants Whitman, Janda, Ochoa, Butler or Rutledge, or against any prison officer or official concerning any staff conspiracy to cover up staff misconduct (Edwards Decl. ¶¶ 4, 5). Further, in a supplemental declaration, Edwards explains the subjects of the nine appeals that Plaintiff filed at the second level of formal appeal, describes Plaintiff's letter to the Office of the Director of the CDCR relating to a citizen's complaint Plaintiff allegedly filed against Calipatria prison staff,³ and affirms Defendants did not locate any appeals alleging that Sergeant Galban sexually assaulted Plaintiff or otherwise acted inappropriately toward him. Edwards Supp. Decl. ¶¶ 4–7.

*22 The totality of the new plus the previously-submitted evidence provided together in this renewed motion to dismiss leads this Court to conclude that Plaintiff did not submit the required 602 form as the administrative grievance process requires. Therefore, Plaintiff could not have exhausted any of the claims in this lawsuit, unless exhaustion was made unavailable to Plaintiff.

2. Whether Defendants Made Administrative Remedies Unavailable.

Plaintiff alleges that on October 18, 2005, he gave Sergeant Rutledge a written complaint that Defendants never processed. At issue is whether Defendants thwarted Plaintiff's efforts to file that complaint.

Even if the Court assumes that Plaintiff alleges the complaint he submitted was on a 602 form, Defendants presented evidence that they never received it. Sergeant Rutledge explained that he never received a complaint from Plaintiff regarding a prison official's sexual misconduct. Rutledge Decl. ¶¶ 2–3. Even if Plaintiff had submitted a 602 form complaint to Rutledge, by at least December 14, 2005 Plaintiff was on notice the complaint was never received or processed. First, he never received a 602 form in return informing him about proceeding to the next level. Second, Lieutenant Stratton told Plaintiff on December 14 there was no written record of his complaint and advised him to comply with the administrative grievance process and how to properly use the 602 form. Stratton ¶ 3. Third, Plaintiff was aware of the administrative grievance process during this relevant time, as he submitted three other administrative appeals from November to December 2005. Edwards Supp. Decl. ¶¶ 4(b), (c),(d).

Finally, Plaintiff appears to claim that one of the administrative appeals he advanced through all three formal levels of review satisfies the exhaustion requirement here. See Director's Level Decision, FAC attachment p. 2. Plaintiff's administrative complaint for Log No. CAL 06–01961 related to Plaintiff being written-up for a rules violation for his refusal to accept a cellmate. Id. While in that appeal Plaintiff complained about staff manipulating Plaintiff's cell placements so that he would be with inmates who would attack him at a staff member's direction, that allegation alone is not sufficiently tied to Plaintiff's over-arching claim at the root of the FAC—that Sergeant Galban sexually assaulted Plaintiff in 2005 and the Calipatria prison staff prevented him from filing a complaint regarding that sexual misconduct.

Though the complaint about staff manipulation may relate to some of Plaintiff's conspiracy claims in the FAC, those FAC claims appear to tie together to a conspiracy against Plaintiff in retaliation for his filing, or attempting to file, a complaint against Sergeant Galban. But in the exhausted appeal, Plaintiff did not allege any sexual assault or attempts to thwart Plaintiff's efforts to file a complaint regarding Sergeant Galban. Neither did Plaintiff mention a conspiracy. Finally, Plaintiff did not receive a final decision regarding this appeal until November 30, 2006. Grannis Supp. Decl. ¶ 4(a). Plaintiff had already filed this lawsuit on November 3, 2006. Therefore, even if the administrative appeal could be construed as exhausting Plaintiff's claims—which is not the case—Plaintiff brought the lawsuit prior to exhausting that claim.

23 For the foregoing reasons, this Court RECOMMENDS that Defendants' motion to dismiss based on exhausted be GRANTED.

III. Rule 12(b)(6) Motion.

Defendants seek to dismiss Plaintiff's FAC for failure to state a claim on these grounds: (1) the first amendment retaliation claims are barred by the favorable termination doctrine; (2) Plaintiff fails to allege a lack of probable cause in his retaliation claim; (3) Plaintiff does not allege any eighth amendment cruel and unusual punishment claims; and (4) Plaintiff does not state a fourteenth amendment equal protection claim.

A. Legal Standard.

A Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss tests the legal sufficiency of the plaintiff's claims. Navarro v. Block, 250 F.3d 729, 732 (9th Cir.2001). The Court must assume all material factual allegations of the complaint as true and all reasonable inferences to be drawn from them. Cahill v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 80 F.3d 336, 338 (9th Cir.1996). Dismissal is proper only where there are insufficient facts to support a cognizable legal theory. Navarro, 250 F.3d at 732 (citation omitted).

B. First Amendment Retaliation Claim.

Plaintiff alleges Defendants retaliated against him for attempting to prosecute his complaint regarding the alleged incident with Sergeant Galban. He alleges Defendants manufactured false disciplinary charges and rules violation reports against him, which led to Plaintiff's confinement in administrative segregation. In the initial Report and Recommendation, this Court recommended finding that Plaintiff adequately stated a first amendment retaliation claim. Defendants objected to this finding, arguing that Plaintiff failed to show his disciplinary convictions were invalid, thereby not fulfilling the requirements of the favorable determination doctrine under Heck v. Humphrey, 512 U.S. 477, 114 S.Ct. 2364, 129 L.Ed.2d 383 (1994). They also objected that Plaintiff failed to allege the absence of probable cause under Hartman v. Moore, 547 U.S. 250, 126 S.Ct. 1695, 164 L.Ed.2d 441 (2006). The district judge sustained these objections and dismissed Plaintiff's first amendment claims with leave to amend. Mar. 28 Order, p. 6. The Court specifically directed Plaintiff to respond to these two objections. Id.

1. Favorable Termination Doctrine.

The “favorable termination” requirement applies to civil rights actions filed against state actors under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. Heck, 512 U.S. at 483–484. The doctrine bars a plaintiff from suing, under any constitutional theory, “for allegedly unconstitutional conviction or imprisonment, or for other harm caused by actions whose unlawfulness would render a conviction or sentence invalid,” unless the plaintiff first “proves that the conviction or sentence has been reversed on direct appeal, expunged by executive order, declared invalid by a state tribunal authorized to make such a determination, or called into question by a federal court's issuance of a writ of habeas corpus.” Id. at 487. The favorable determination doctrine may also apply to an inmate's claims that challenge a disciplinary proceeding that has affected the fact or duration of the inmate's confinement. Edwards v. Balisok, 520 U.S. 641, 646–647, 117 S.Ct. 1584, 137 L.Ed.2d 906 (1997). But insofar as the disciplinary action affects only a condition of confinement—which includes any deprivation that does not affect the fact or duration of a sentence—the favorable termination doctrine does apply. Ramirez v. Galaza, 334 F.3d 850, 856 (9th Cir.2003) (finding the favorable termination doctrine did not apply to a challenge to a prison disciplinary sanction of administrative segregation).

24 Here, Plaintiff alleges he suffered prison disciplinary convictions in retaliation for attempting to exercise a constitutional right. As a result of these convictions, Defendants imposed the punishment of sending Plaintiff to administrative segregation. In the FAC Plaintiff never alleges that the fact or duration of his sentence was affected. Defendants generally argue that the rules violation convictions “resulted in forfeiture of behavioral credits and thus impacted his term of incarceration.” Reply, p. 4, ll.26–28. Defendants, however, do not cite to any specific reports that show Plaintiff lost good-time credits. And upon reviewing the attachments to Plaintiff's complaint, this Court has not found an express forfeiture of behavioral credits. See, e.g., FAC Attachment p. 4 (based on Plaintiff's continued refusal to share a cell with another inmate the ICC recommended Plaintiff be sent to the SHU); FAC Attachment p. 12 (stating that as a result of being placed in administrative segregation Plaintiff's credit earning was "subject to change").

Plaintiff has not plead, Defendants have not pointed out, and the Court has not found, an express revocation or impact on the length of Plaintiff's sentence due to his placement in administrative segregation. Because Plaintiff alleges only a deprivation of the conditions of his confinement, as opposed to the duration of his sentence, the favorable termination doctrine does not apply.

2. Absence of Probable Cause.

In Hartman, the Supreme Court held that, under either a Bivens or a section 1983 action based on a malicious or wrongful criminal prosecution, the plaintiff must plead and show the absence of probable cause for prosecuting the underlying criminal charges. Hartman, 547 U.S. at 252, 263–266. Specifically, the plaintiff must show the absence of probable cause against criminal investigators for inducing a prosecution in retaliation for protected speech. Id. This pleading element applies only to “a particular subcategory of retaliation claims: retaliatory prosecution claims.” Skoog v. County of Clackamas, 469 F.3d 1221, 1233 (9th Cir.2006).

Defendants did not present, and this Court has not found, a Ninth Circuit case that applies the lack of probable cause element to a retaliation claim in the prison disciplinary context. Further, this Court finds that imposing such a requirement in the prison context would probably be futile. First, Plaintiff already must prove that he suffered an “adverse action”—here, the rules violation reports—that did not have a “legitimate correctional purpose” or advance any “legitimate correctional goal.” Rhodes v. Robinson, 408 F.3d 559, 567–568 (9th Cir.2005). In other words, Plaintiff must prove that Defendants launched their disciplinary proceedings to punish him for exercising his first amendment right to file a complaint, that the proceedings had a “chilling effect” on him, and that Defendants had no other legitimate purpose or goal in conducting those proceedings, so that their only purpose was to squelch his free speech. In practical terms, satisfying these elements under Rhodes essentially shows there was no probable cause to launch the disciplinary proceedings.⁴

*25 Based on the lack of authority before it, this Court declines to impose the additional element of pleading lack of probable cause. The requirement under Hartman applies to a particular subcategory of criminal prosecutorial retaliation claims based on malicious or wrongful criminal prosecutions. This Court will not recommend applying that requirement to a general retaliation claim in the prison context.

In sum, the FAC adequately addresses Defendants' two objections. First, Plaintiff never pleads that the discipline imposed affected the length of his sentence, so the favorable termination doctrine does not apply. Second, Plaintiff does not allege that the prison disciplinary proceedings were, by nature, malicious or wrongful criminal prosecutions, and this Court has not aware of any relevant authority so stating. Therefore, if the district court rejects this Court's recommendation to grant Defendants' motion to dismiss based on exhaustion, this Court RECOMMENDS that Defendants' motion to dismiss Plaintiff's first amendment retaliation claims be DENIED.

C. Eighth Amendment Claims.

Judge Burns' Order addressing the eighth amendment claims in the initial complaint broke down the claims between (1) those based on Defendants' transfer of Plaintiff back to the general population in 2006; (2) conspiracy claims against the named and Doe Defendants; and (3) Defendants' failure to protect Plaintiff from further attacks.

1. Claim Previously Dismissed with Prejudice.

This Court has already dismissed, with prejudice, Plaintiff's eighth amendment claims based on Defendants transferring Plaintiff back to the general population in 2006. Mar. 28 Order at 10. Plaintiff could not have exhausted these claims because he alleges the acts took place long after he submitted a complaint. Thus, these claims could not have been exhausted. This Court RECOMMENDS that the district court AFFIRM its prior order that Plaintiff's eighth amendment claims based on Defendants transferring Plaintiff back to the general population in 2006 are DISMISSED with prejudice.

2. Conspiracy Claim.

A plaintiff must plead conspiracy claims with enough specificity to put defendants on notice of the claims against them. Burns v. County of King, 883 F.2d 819, 821 (9th Cir.1989). Regarding the conspiracy claims in the initial complaint, Judge Burns found that Plaintiff did not allege any specific facts other than the existence of the Green Wall gang and Officer Galban's assault on him. Mar. 28 Order, p. 4. He did not allege who conspired to attack him, how the conspiracy resulted in Officer Galban's attack, or that Officer Galban was a member of the gang. Id. Judge Burns found that no Defendant or potential Defendant had been given adequate notice of the conspiracy claims against them and dismissed those claims without prejudice. Id. at 4–5.

In the FAC, Plaintiff alleges that each Defendant is a member of the Green Wall prison guard gang and has entered a secret agreement to conspire with the other Defendants to terrorize Plaintiff. FAC at 45–56. More specifically, he alleges they organized the production of false records, used inmates to inflict cruel and unusual punishment of terror, intimidation and assault, and—with deliberate indifference to Plaintiff's safety—conspired to injure and/or murder him by using “pencil whipping” techniques and assenting to cell assignments that exposed Plaintiff to substantial risk of injury. FAC at 45–46, 47–51. Plaintiff attaches to the FAC the rules violation and investigatory reports that he alleges are false. Plaintiff does not, however, provide any new details of any alleged conspiracy that resulted in Officer Galban's attack.

26 This Court finds that Plaintiff has not provided enough new details to sufficiently plead a conspiracy by Defendants to violate Plaintiff's eighth amendment rights. He does not allege who specifically conspired to attack him or how the conspiracy resulted in Sergeant Galban's alleged assault. He does not tie Sergeant Galban to the conspiracy. He does not allege how the production of false records and inmate intimidation resulted in him suffering from cruel and unusual punishment. While he says he suffered physical injury, he does not tie that injury to any specific claim or incident. FAC at 57. And through the FAC, the only injury he says he suffered was in 2003, related to an alleged stabbing by inmate Smith. Plaintiff, however, does not implicate any Defendants in the matter and does not appear to sue over this incident.

Defendants, therefore, are not on notice of any events they participated in that caused any physical injuries to Plaintiff. Therefore, if the district court declines to dismiss this action based on exhaustion, this Court RECOMMENDS that Defendants' motion to dismiss Plaintiff's eighth amendment claims based on a conspiracy be GRANTED and the claims be DISMISSED with prejudice.

3. Failure to Protect Claim.

The district judge found that Plaintiff did not adequately allege an eighth amendment claim for Defendants' failure to protect Plaintiff from further attacks because Plaintiff did not allege any facts showing there was any substantial risk after the attack by Galban, that Plaintiff was attacked again or otherwise suffered other harm, or that Defendants actually inferred Plaintiff was at further risk. Mar. 28 Order, p. 5. The Court gave Plaintiff leave to amend this claim. Id.

A plaintiff may plead an eighth amendment claim for cruel and unusual punishment by alleging failure to take reasonable measures to protect an inmate from serious risk to health and safety. See, e.g., Farmer v. Brennan, 511 U.S. 825, 837, 114 S.Ct. 1970, 128 L.Ed.2d 811 (1994). A prisoner claiming such an eighth amendment violation must show: (1) the deprivation he suffered was “objectively, sufficiently serious” (objective element); and (2) the defendant possessed a sufficiently culpable state of mind (subjective element). Id. at 834. Where the claim is predicated upon the failure to protect, the deprivation is deemed to be sufficiently serious if there was a substantial risk that the prisoner would suffer serious harm. Id. Regarding the subjective element, a prison official can only be held liable if he (1) is aware of the facts from which he could infer a substantial risk of serious harm, and (2) actually drew that inference. Id. at 837.

Plaintiff first alleges he was transferred back to the general population on September 29, 2005, where he was ridiculed and threatened. FAC at 22–25. The attachments to the FAC, however, contradict this allegation.⁵ Further, Plaintiff alleges the threats and retaliation due to this move caused him permanent psychological trauma and suffering, mental stress disorder and a nervous breakdown. FAC at 23. Even if the Court assumes the move back to the general population to be true, this general allegation of harm does not amount to the required showing that Plaintiff suffered a deprivation that was objectively, sufficiently serious or that Defendants possessed a culpable state of mind when they transferred Plaintiff back to the general population.

27 On his second attempt at this eighth amendment claim, Plaintiff does not adequately allege he suffered any harm that would rise to a deprivation of a constitutional right or that Defendants inferred he was at risk of suffering such a deprivation. If the district court declines to dismiss this action based on exhaustion, this Court RECOMMENDS that Defendants' motion to dismiss Plaintiff's eighth amendment claim for failure to protect be GRANTED and the claim be DISMISSED with prejudice.

D. Fourteenth Amendment Claims.

Judge Burns dismissed Plaintiff's due process and equal protection claims with leave to amend. Mar. 28 Order, p. 10. Plaintiff, however, did not reallege those claims. He only generally alleges on one page of the FAC that Defendants acted "for the purpose of denying Plaintiff the equal protection and due process of law as contemplated in the fourteenth amendment." FAC, p. 3. Plaintiff does not allege any of the other elements required to plead such claims. Therefore, if the district court declines to dismiss this action based on exhaustion, this Court RECOMMENDS that Defendants' motion to dismiss Plaintiff's fourteenth amendment claims for equal protection and due process be GRANTED and the claims be DISMISSED with prejudice.

IV. Remaining Issues.

A. Qualified Immunity.

State officials are protected from "liability for civil damages insofar as their conduct does not violate clearly established statutory or constitutional rights of which a reasonable person would have known." Harlow v. Fitzgerald, 457 U.S. 800, 818, 102 S.Ct. 2727, 73 L.Ed.2d 396 (1982). To analyze a qualified immunity claim, a court must first determine whether, taken in the light most favorable to the party asserting the injury, the facts alleged show that the defendants violated the claimant's constitutional rights. Saucier v. Katz, 533 U.S. 194, 201, 121 S.Ct. 2151, 150 L.Ed.2d 272 (2001). If the answer is no, the analysis ends. If, on the other hand, the answer is yes, the court must then consider whether the defendants are entitled to qualified immunity. See id.; Robinson v. Solano County, 278 F.3d 1007, 1013 (9th Cir.2002) (en banc); Valdez v. Rosenbaum, 302 F.3d 1039, 1044 (9th Cir.2002). The second step requires determining "whether the right was clearly established." Saucier, 533 U.S. at 201. The relevant inquiry focuses on "what the officer reasonably understood his powers and responsibilities to be, when he acted, under clearly established standards." Id. at 208. The plaintiff bears the burden of proving that the right allegedly violated was clearly established at the time of the violation. See Sorrells v. McKee, 290 F.3d 965, 969 (9th Cir.2002).

Here, Plaintiff has adequately alleged a first amendment claim. During the time period of the alleged acts, an inmate's right to be free of retaliation for filling out an administrative grievance was clearly established by existing case law. The question, however, of whether any or all of the Defendants could reasonably have believed that their conduct was lawful is more properly resolved on a motion for summary judgment or at trial, when Defendants are entitled to present evidence on their behalf and the Court may properly consider such evidence. Thus, for the purposes of the instant motion, the Court cannot resolve the issue of whether any or all of the Defendants is entitled to qualified immunity as to the first amendment claim. Further, if the district court adopts this Court's recommendation as to the exhaustion issue, then the question of qualified immunity becomes moot. Therefore, the Court RECOMMENDS that Defendants' claim that they are entitled to qualified immunity be DENIED without prejudice.

B. Claims Against the CDCR.

28 AFFIRM that Plaintiff's claims against the CDCR are DISMISSED with prejudice, per Judge Burns' Order of March 28, 2008 Order at 10.

C. Attempt to Amend the Complaint to Add Additional Defendants.

To the extent on page 55 of the FAC Plaintiff intends to identify defendants previously sued as Does, or to add 20 new defendants, he was not granted permission to add those defendants. See Mar. 28 Order, p. 11 (granting leave only to amend claims and not to add new defendants). Further, a review of the docket shows that Plaintiff has not served, and cannot serve, those proposed defendants within 120 days of filing the complaint, as required by Rule 4(m). Finally, even if Plaintiff could add those new defendants, such an act would be futile because this Court recommends dismissing Plaintiff's FAC for failure to exhaust. This Court RECOMMENDS that Plaintiff's attempt to add 20 new defendants to this action be DENIED.

D. Request to Charge Plaintiff with a Strike.

Defendants again urge the Court to charge Plaintiff with a strike under 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g). They argue Plaintiff filed the lawsuit to punish prison officials for their efforts to hold Plaintiff accountable for his refusal to accept a cellmate, and that it has created a tremendous amount of work for the Court and the Defendants. They also argue that Plaintiff's false accusation that Defendants prevented him from exhausting his administrative remedies goes to the malicious nature of the lawsuit.

An inmate may be charged with a strike if a complaint is dismissed for being frivolous, malicious, or for failing to state a claim. An inmate charged with three strikes cannot bring further civil rights actions. 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g).

This action appears to be Plaintiff's first section 1983 action to proceed in this Court.⁶ Upon reviewing the file in this case, Plaintiff's claim that he attempted to exhaust his administrative grievance, but was prevented from doing so, does not appear to rise to the level of maliciousness that Defendants claim. And, there is no sufficient showing that Plaintiff intended to punish prison officials by bringing this suit. Further, Defendants had the burden to prove the defense of non-exhaustion. They did not do so in their first motion to dismiss, which is what brought this case to another round of briefing for a second motion to dismiss. Considering all these facts, the Court RECOMMENDS that Defendants' request to charge Plaintiff with a strike be DENIED.

E. Plaintiff's Request for Judicial Notice.

Plaintiff asks that this Court take judicial notice of 15 Cal.Code Reg. § 3401.5. Federal Rule of Evidence 201 allows a court to take judicial notice of a fact "not subject to reasonable dispute in that it is either (1) generally known within the territorial jurisdiction of the trial court, or (2) capable of accurate and ready determination by resort to sources whose accuracy cannot reasonably be questioned." "A court shall take judicial notice if requested by a party and supplied with the necessary information. Fed.R.Evid. 201(c). The Court RECOMMENDS that Plaintiff's request for judicial notice of 15 Cal.Code Reg. § 3401.5 be GRANTED, as its content is capable of accurate determination.

CONCLUSION

29 For all of the above reasons, the Court RECOMMENDS the following:

1. Defendants' motion to dismiss Plaintiff's claims for money damages against Defendants in their official capacities be GRANTED.
2. Defendants' motion to dismiss based on exhausted be GRANTED.
3. If the district court rejects this Court's recommendation to grant Defendants' motion to dismiss based on exhaustion, this Court RECOMMENDS that Defendants' motion to dismiss Plaintiff's first amendment retaliation claim be DENIED.
4. AFFIRM that Plaintiff's eighth amendment claims based on Defendants transferring him back to the general population in 2006 are DISMISSED with prejudice, per Judge Burns' Order of March 28, 2008 Order at 10.
5. If the district court declines to dismiss this action based on exhaustion, this Court RECOMMENDS that Defendants' motion to dismiss Plaintiff's eighth amendment claim based on a conspiracy be GRANTED and the claim be DISMISSED with prejudice.
6. If the district court declines to dismiss this action based on exhaustion, this Court RECOMMENDS that Defendants' motion to dismiss Plaintiff's eighth amendment claim for failure to protect be GRANTED and the claim be DISMISSED with prejudice.
7. If the district court declines to dismiss this action based on exhaustion, this Court RECOMMENDS that Defendants' motion to dismiss Plaintiff's fourteenth amendment claims for equal protection and due process be GRANTED and the claims be DISMISSED with prejudice.
8. If the district court declines to dismiss this action based on exhaustion, this Court RECOMMENDS that Defendants' claim that they are entitled to qualified immunity be DENIED without prejudice.
9. AFFIRM that Plaintiff's claims against the CDCR are DISMISSED with prejudice, per Judge Burns' Order of March 28, 2008 Order at 10.
10. Plaintiff's attempt to amend the complaint to add 20 new defendants to this action be DENIED.

11. Defendants' request to charge Plaintiff with a strike be DENIED.

12. Plaintiff's request for judicial notice of 15 Cal.Code Reg. § 3401.5 be GRANTED.

This report and recommendation of the undersigned Magistrate Judge is submitted pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636\(b\)\(1\) to the United States District Judge assigned to this case.

IT IS ORDERED that no later than October 31, 2008 any party to this action may file written objections with the Court and serve a copy on all parties. The document should be captioned "Objections to Report and Recommendation."

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that any reply to the objections shall be filed with the Court and served on all parties no later than November 10, 2008. v.

M. FORTIER, Defendant.

Civ. Action No. 9:09–CV–0742
(GLS/DEP). | Oct. 4, 2012.Attorneys and Law FirmsHancock Estabrook LLP, Michael J. Sciotti, Esq., Robert Thorpe, Esq., of Counsel, Syracuse, NY, for Plaintiff.Hon. Richard S. Hartunian, United States Attorney, Charles E. Roberts, Esq., Assistant U.S. Attorney, of counsel, Syracuse, NY, for Defendant.REPORT AND RECOMMENDATIONDAVID E. PEEBLES, United States Magistrate Judge.

*1 Plaintiff Everton Bailey, a federal prison inmate, has commenced this Bivens¹ action against defendant Michelle Fortier, a corrections officer stationed at the prison facility in which Bailey was confined at the relevant times, alleging deprivation of his civil rights. Bailey's claims are based upon Fortier's alleged failure to protect him from an assault by a cellmate, despite having registered prior complaints expressing fear for his safety.

Currently at the forefront of the action is the threshold question of whether Bailey, who admits that he did not file a grievance following the procedures in place at Bureau of Prisons ("BOP") facilities, should be excused from the requirement of exhausting administrative remedies before commencing suit due to the alleged refusal of prison officials to provide him with the forms necessary to file a grievance. Because I find, based upon an evidentiary hearing conducted, that Bailey was not prevented by the actions of prison officials from filing a grievance regarding his claim against Fortier, and that he has offered no special circumstances providing a basis to excuse his failure to exhaust administrative remedies, I recommend that his complaint be dismissed on this procedural basis, without addressing its merits.

I. BACKGROUND

Bailey is a federal prison inmate currently being held in the custody of the BOP as a result of a 2007 criminal conviction entered in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania. See generally Complaint (Dkt. No. 1); see also VanWeelden Decl. (Dkt. No. 10–4) ¶ 5; June 20, 2012 Hearing Transcript (Dkt. No. 44) at p. 84.² While he is presently housed in another BOP facility, at times relevant to this litigation Bailey was designated by the BOP to the Ray Brook Federal Correctional Institution ("FCI Ray Brook"), located in Ray Brook, New York.Id.

On the morning of February 23, 2009, while housed in a six-person cell in the Mohawk Housing Unit at FCI Ray Brook, Bailey was confronted and physically assaulted by one of his cellmates after being accused of stealing that inmate's prayer oil. Complaint (Dkt. No. 1) ¶¶ 8–9; see also VanWeelden Decl. (Dkt. No. 10–4) Exh. D. Bailey reported the incident to Fortier, and requested that he be moved to another cell. Complaint (Dkt. No. 1) ¶ 10. That request was denied, and Bailey was directed by Fortier to return to his cell in light of an impending inmate count. Id. at ¶ 11.

Following the inmate count, Bailey again was accosted by the same inmate, who on this occasion threw hot oil from a ceramic mug onto his face.³ Complaint (Dkt. No. 1) ¶ 13; VanWeelden Decl. (Dkt. No. 10–4) Exh. D; Tr. 100, 145. Bailey suffered second degree burns to his face resulting in his being hospitalized at an outside medical facility for a period of fourteen days. Complaint (Dkt. No. 1) ¶¶ 13–14; Tr. 32, 84–85. Upon his return to FCI Ray Brook, Bailey was placed in a special housing unit ("SHU") cell, where he remained until he was transferred to another BOP facility. Tr. 59–60, 85.

*2 The BOP has established an Administrative Remedy Program ("ARP"), comprised of a four-step administrative process through which inmates can seek formal internal review of any complaint regarding any aspect of their imprisonment. Tr. 10; 28 C.F.R. § 542.10 et seq.; see also Macias v. Zenk, 495 F.3d 37, 42 (2d Cir.2007). In accordance with the established ARP protocol, an inmate must first attempt informal resolution of his or her complaint by presenting the issue informally to staff, and staff must attempt to resolve the issue. 28 C.F.R. § 542.13\(a\); see also Johnson v. Testman, 380 F.3d 691, 693 (2d Cir.2004). This informal, initial procedure typically begins with the filing of a "cop-out," which can be submitted either on a BP–8 form available to inmates through several sources, including their assigned counselors, or on paper of any other description. Tr. 10, 22, 27, 66–67, 129, 142.

If the complaint cannot be resolved informally, the inmate may next submit a formal written Administrative Remedy Request (“ARR”) to the warden of the facility, utilizing a BP–9 form, within twenty calendar days of the event that generated the inmate's complaint.⁴ Tr. 22, 32, 44; 28 C.F.R. § 542.14(a); see also Johnson, 380 F.3d at 693. That twenty-day period, however, can be extended in appropriate circumstances.⁵ Tr. 33, 54, 144. If that formal request is denied, the inmate may next appeal the matter to the appropriate BOP Regional Director, utilizing a BP–10 form, within twenty calendar days of the date the grievance is denied by the facility warden. Tr. 22; 28 C.F.R. § 542.15(a); see also Johnson, 380 F.3d at 693. An unfavorable decision from the Regional Director can then be appealed to the General Counsel's office, utilizing a BP–11 form, within twenty calendar days of the date of the Regional Director's response. Tr. 22; 28 C.F.R. § 542.15(a).

Despite the existence of the ARP, Bailey did not avail himself of that process by filing a grievance regarding the assault or the defendant's alleged failure to protect him from it. Tr. 101–02, 106. Bailey claims that he requested the appropriate forms for commencing the grievance process from several prison workers, including Hawley Snyder, Barbara Darrah, and the warden at FCI Ray Brook. Tr. 86–88, 91, 93–95, 107–09. Employees at FCI Ray Brook, however, uniformly testified that Bailey never requested the appropriate grievance forms from them. See Tr. 72, 131, 146–47, 153, 155, 168; see also Tr. 49 (Robin Van Weelden); 161 (Jean Marie Diehl); 166 (Michelle Gonyea). I credit the testimony of defendant's witnesses and find that Bailey failed to ask his corrections counselor, or any other BOP employee at FCI Ray Brook, for the necessary forms to commence the grievance process.

The record also reflects that Bailey had abundant opportunity to secure the necessary grievance forms. In February and March of 2009, he was assigned a unit team that included Barbara Darrah, his unit manager; Michelle Gonyea, a case worker; Hawley Snyder, his assigned corrections counselor; and one other corrections counselor.⁶ Tr. 46, 86, 140–41. Members of Bailey's unit team, particularly his corrections counselor, were in frequent contact with him. See, e.g., Tr. 126, 129–30, 140–41, 165.

*3 Various other BOP officials were also in regular contact with Bailey, making periodic rounds of the FCI Ray Brook SHU. Tr. 35. For example, at the times relevant to this litigation, the facility's warden typically visited the SHU every Wednesday morning, normally accompanied by Robin Van Weelden, who in February 2009 served as a legal assistant, as well as one or two associate wardens, a corrections captain, and unit team members. Tr. 35, 55. When making those rounds the group would proceed from cell to cell, knocking on doors and asking whether an inmate in a particular cell wished to voice any needs. Tr. 57. In addition, Barbara Darrah, as a unit manager, was required to visit inmates in the SHU twice weekly, although she testified that she was in that portion of the facility “pretty much daily.” Tr. 126. When visiting the SHU, Darrah generally carried with her a folder of various forms, including BP–8, BP–9, BP–10, BP–11 and cop-out forms, earning her the nickname “the form lady.” Tr. 70–71, 120, 124–27, 131. Like the warden and the warden's group, when visiting the SHU facility Darrah normally would proceed from cell-to-cell. Tr. 128. Similarly Michelle Gonyea, as plaintiff's case manager during February and March of 2009, was required to visit the SHU at least once weekly. Tr. 165.

Despite all of those visits and requests as to whether he needed anything, Bailey did not ask any of those individuals for the forms necessary to grieve Fortier's alleged failure to protect him from harm. Tr. 161–62, 166, 49–50, 72, 132, 144, 154–55, 161, 166.

As previously indicated, plaintiff was absent from FCI Ray Brook receiving outside treatment for his injuries during the fourteen-day period immediately following the inmate assault. In accordance with FCI Ray Brook policy requiring visits by prison officials to any inmate hospitalized for more than five days, Darrah, as plaintiff's unit manager, visited him in or about March of 2009, while he was a patient at the Adirondack Medical Center in Saranac Lake, in order to insure that his needs were being met. Tr. 133. When asked on that occasion whether he needed anything, Bailey replied, “No.”⁷ Id.

II. PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Bailey commenced this action on June 29, 2009. Dkt. No. 1. His complaint identifies Corrections Officer M. Fortier as the sole named defendant, and alleges that she violated his constitutional rights by failing to protect him from foreseeable harm. Id.

On January 8, 2010, prior to answering, Fortier moved to dismiss Bailey's complaint for failure to state a claim upon which relief may be granted, pursuant to Rule 12\(b\)\(6\) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure or, alternatively, for summary judgment pursuant to Rule 56. Dkt. No. 10. The sole basis for Fortier's motion was her contention that Bailey's complaint is subject to dismissal based upon his failure to exhaust available administrative remedies before commencing suit, as required under 42 U.S.C. § 1997e\(a\). That motion resulted in my issuance of a report on August 30, 2010, recommending that the motion be denied, based upon the existence of genuine disputes of material fact to be resolved before addressing whether a proper basis for excusing the governing exhaustion requirement had been demonstrated. Dkt. No. 19. That recommendation was adopted by Chief District Judge Gary L. Sharpe on October 12, 2010. Dkt. No. 21.

*4 Following the issuance and acceptance of my report and recommendation, the parties were afforded the opportunity to engage in discovery, and a scheduling order was entered requiring, inter alia, that any additional dispositive motions be filed on or before October 3, 2011. See Dkt. No. 23. All deadlines under that scheduling order have passed, without the filing of any additional motions, and the case is now trial-ready. In light of the existence of a threshold procedural issue regarding exhaustion, the matter was referred to me for the purpose of conducting an evidentiary hearing, pursuant to Messa v. Goord, 652 F.3d 305 (2d Cir.2011), in order to develop the record concerning Bailey's efforts to satisfy his exhaustion requirement. See Text Entry 11/02/11. That hearing was conducted on June 20, 2012, see Text Entry 6/20/12, and, following the close of the hearing, decision was reserved pending briefing by the parties. ⁸ , ⁹

III. DISCUSSION

A. Governing Legal Principles

The Prison Litigation Reform Act of 1996 ("PLRA"), Pub.L. No. 104-134, 110 Stat. 1321 \(1996\), which imposes several restrictions on the ability of prisoners to maintain federal civil rights actions, expressly requires that "[n]o action shall be brought with respect to prison conditions under section 1983 of this title, or any other Federal law, by a prisoner confined in any jail, prison, or other correctional facility until such administrative remedies as are available are exhausted." 42 U.S.C. § 1997e\(a\); see Woodford v. Ngo, 548 U.S. 81, 84, 126 S.Ct. 2378, 2382, 165 L.Ed.2d 368 (2006); Hargrove v. Riley,

No. CV-04-4587, 2007 WL 389003, at *5-6 (E.D.N.Y. Jan.31, 2007). "[T]he PLRA's exhaustion requirement applies to all inmate suits about prison life, whether they involve general circumstances or particular episodes, and whether they allege excessive force or some other wrong." Porter v. Nussle, 534 U.S. 516, 532, 122 S.Ct. 983, 992, 152 L.Ed.2d 12 (2002). An inmate plaintiff's complaint is subject to dismissal if the evidence establishes that he or she failed to properly exhaust available remedies prior to commencing the action, his or her complaint is subject to dismissal. See Pettus v. McCoy, No. 04-CV-0471, 2006 WL 2639369, at *1 (N.D.N.Y. Sept. 13, 2006) (McAvoy, J.); see also Woodford, 548 U.S. at 94-95, 126 S.Ct. at 2387-88 (holding that the PLRA requires "proper exhaustion" of available remedies). "Proper exhaustion" requires a plaintiff to procedurally exhaust his or her claims by "compl[ying] with the system's critical procedural rules." Woodford, 548 U.S. at 95, 126 S.Ct. at 2388; see also Macias, 495 F.3d at 43 (citing Woodford). Complete exhaustion has not occurred, for purposes of the PLRA, until all of the steps of that available process have been taken. Macias, 495 F.3d at 44; see also Johnson v. Rowley, 569 F.3d 40, 45 (2d Cir.2009); Strong v. Lapin, No. 90-CV-3522, 2010 WL 276206, at *4 (E.D.N.Y. Jan.15, 2010) ("Until the BOP's Central Office considers the appeal, no administrative remedy is considered to be fully exhausted.").

*5 In a series of decisions rendered since the enactment of the PLRA, the Second Circuit has crafted a three-part test for determining whether dismissal of an inmate plaintiff's complaint is warranted in the event of a failure to satisfy the PLRA's exhaustion requirement. Macias, 495 F.3d at 41; see Hemphill v. New York, 380 F.3d 680, 686 (2d Cir.2004). Under the prescribed rubric, a court must first determine whether administrative remedies were available to the plaintiff at the relevant times. Macias, 495 F.3d at 41; Hemphill, 380 F.3d at 686. If such a remedy existed and was available, the court must next examine whether the defendant should be deemed to have forfeited the affirmative defense of non-exhaustion by failing to properly raise or preserve it, or whether, through the defendant's own actions preventing the plaintiff from exhausting otherwise available remedies, he or she should be estopped from asserting failure to exhaust as a defense. Id. In the event the proffered defense survives these first two levels of scrutiny, the court must determine whether the plaintiff has established the existence of special circumstances sufficient "to justify the failure to comply with applicable administrative procedural requirements." ¹⁰ , ¹¹ Id.

B. Burden of Proof

Before applying the foregoing legal principles, I must first consider who bears the burden of proof, and whether that burden shifts throughout the analysis prescribed under Hemphill.

As an affirmative defense, Jones v. Bock, 549 U.S. 199, 216, 127 S.Ct. 910, 166 L.Ed.2d 798 (2007), exhaustion is a claim upon which the party asserting it typically bears the ultimate burden of proving its essential elements by a preponderance of the evidence. Soria v. Girdich, No. 9:04-CV-727, 2007 WL 4790807, at *2 (N.D.N.Y. Dec. 2007) (DiBianco, M.J.) (citing McCoy v. Goord, 255 F.Supp.2d 233, 247 (S.D.N.Y.2003)); McEachin v. Selsky, No. 9:04-CV-83(FJS/RFT), 2005 WL 2128851, at *4 (N.D.N.Y. Aug.30, 2005) (Scullin, C.J.) (citing Howard v. Goord, No. 98-CV-7471, 1999 WL 1288679, *3 (E.D.N.Y. Dec. 28, 1999)), aff'd in part, vacated in part, 225 F. App'x 36 (2d Cir.2007). The issue is somewhat complicated, however, by consideration of the three-part analysis mandated by Hemphill and related cases because that line of cases incorporates concepts—such as estoppel, for example—that typically require the party asserting them to bear the ultimate burden of proof. See e.g., Abbas v. Dixon, 480 F.3d 636, 642 (2d Cir.2007) (“The plaintiff bears the burden of showing that the action was brought within a reasonable period of time after the facts giving rise to the equitable tolling or equitable estoppel”); In re Heflin, 464 B.R. 545, 554 (D.Conn.2011) (“The burden of providing every element of an estoppel is upon the party seeking to set up the estoppel.”) (citing Comm'r v. Union Pac. R.R. Co., 86 F.2d 637, 640 (2d Cir.1936)).

*6 Also complicating matters is the fact that several courts have held that once a defendant satisfies the burden of demonstrating that an inmate has failed to exhaust administrative remedies, it then becomes incumbent upon the plaintiff to counter with a showing of unavailability, estoppel, or special circumstances. See, e.g., Murray v. Palmer, No. 9:03-CV-1010 (GTS/GHL), 2010 WL 1235591, at *4 and n. 17 (N.D.N.Y. Mar.31, 2010) (Suddaby, J.); see also Calloway v. Grimshaw, No. 9:09-CV-1354, 2011 WL 4345299, at *5 and n. 5 (N.D.N.Y. Aug.10, 2011) (Lowe, M.J.) (citing cases); report and recommendation adopted, 2011 WL 4345296 (N.D.N.Y. Sep.15, 2011) (McAvoy, S.J.); Cohn v. KeySpan Corp., 713 F.Supp.2d 143, 155 (E.D.N.Y.2010) (finding that, in the employment discrimination context, defendants bear the burden of establishing the affirmative defense of failure to timely exhaust his administrative remedies, but once defendants have done so, the plaintiff must plead and prove facts supporting equitable avoidance of the defense.). Those decisions, while referencing the burden of proof on an affirmative defense, seem to primarily address an inmate's burden of production, or of going forward, to show facts that would form the basis for finding of unavailability, estoppel, or a finding of special circumstances, rather than speaking to the ultimate burden of persuasion.

I have been unable to uncover any cases squarely holding that the defendant bears the ultimate burden of proof with regard to all elements of a Hemphill analysis. In the final analysis, however, Hemphill addresses all of the elements a court is required to consider when analyzing an exhaustion defense. See Macias, 495 F.3d at 41 (“In Hemphill we “read together” [a series of cases] and formulated a three-part test....”) (emphasis added). Therefore, I recommend a finding that, while the burden of production may shift to the plaintiff when a court undertakes a Hemphill analysis, the ultimate burden of proof with respect to the exhaustion defense remains, at all times, with the defendant. See Soria, 2007 WL 4790807, at *2 (“[A]s with other affirmative defenses, the defendant has the burden of proof to show that plaintiff failed to exhaust his administrative remedies.”).

C. Application of Governing Legal Principles

1. Availability of Administrative Remedy

In this instance, the question of whether the ARP was available to Bailey is at the heart of the exhaustion analysis. The hearing testimony confirmed, and Bailey admitted, that at all times relevant to this litigation, there was an inmate grievance procedure in place at FCI Ray Brook. This, however, does not necessarily mean that it was “available” to the plaintiff.

Bailey contends that the grievance process was not available to him in light of the alleged refusal of prison officials to provide him with the forms necessary to file an ARR and pursue the grievance to culmination. Having considered the competing testimony, however, I conclude that Fortier has established, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the forms necessary to pursue a grievance in accordance with the ARP in place at FCI Ray Brook were available to Bailey through several sources, but were not requested. As such, Fortier has satisfied the first Hemphill factor.

2. Presentation of Defense/Estoppel

*7 The focus of the second prong of the Hemphill analysis is upon “whether the defendants may have forfeited the affirmative defense of non-exhaustion by failing to raise or preserve it, or whether the defendants' own actions inhibiting the inmate's exhaustion of remedies may estop one or more of the defendants from raising the plaintiff's failure to exhaust as a defense.” Hemphill, 380 F.3d at 686 (citations omitted). In her answer, Fortier raised exhaustion as a defense in a timely fashion. See Answer (Dkt. No. 22) Second Defense (“Plaintiff clearly failed to exhaust his administrative remedies, as required by the Prison Litigation Reform Act, 42 U.S.C. § 1997e(a).”). Bailey argues, however, that his failure to follow the prescribed grievance process was a direct result of the refusal of prison officials to cooperate in his efforts to grieve the matter.

“ ‘Generally, a defendant in an action may not be estopped from asserting the affirmative defense of failure to exhaust administrative remedies based on the actions (or inactions) of other individuals.’ ” Atkins v. Menard, No. 9:11-CV-9366, 2012 WL 4026840, at *3 (N.D.N.Y. Sept.12, 2012) (Suddaby, J.) (citing Murray, 2010 WL 1235591, at *5 and n. 26 (collecting cases)). Put differently, a plaintiff must allege that a defendant named in the lawsuit acted to interfere with his ability to exhaust in order to establish a basis to estop that defendant from invoking the exhaustion defense. Calloway, 2011 WL 4345299, at *4 (citing Bennett v. James, 737 F.Supp.2d 219, 226 (S.D.N.Y.2010), aff'd, 441 F. App'x 816 (2d Cir.2011)) (other citations omitted).

The question of whether, in this instance, prison officials should be estopped from asserting failure to exhaust as an affirmative defense as a result of their conduct is inextricably intertwined with the question of availability of the remedy. Assuming, however, that this presents a distinct inquiry, the court must examine whether, through her conduct, Fortier has provided a basis to estop her from asserting an exhaustion defense.

In this instance, Bailey does not allege that Fortier engaged in a campaign to preclude him from filing a grievance regarding her actions. Instead, his focus is upon the alleged refusal of other officials at FCI Ray Brook to provide him with necessary forms and cooperate in his efforts to present his grievance against Fortier. Accordingly, Bailey has failed to present any evidence that would support an estoppel against the defendant from raising the issue of exhaustion. Atkins, 2012 WL 4026840, at * 3. Therefore, I conclude that Fortier has proven, by a preponderance of the evidence, that she did not, through her own actions, preclude Bailey from taking advantage of the ARP and therefore should not be estopped from asserting the defense.

3. Special Circumstances

The third, catchall factor that must be considered under the Second Circuit's prescribed exhaustion rubric centers upon whether special circumstances sufficient to justify excusing the plaintiff's failure to exhaust administrative remedies have been demonstrated. Hemphill, 380 F.3d at 689; see also Giano, 380 F.3d at 676–77; Hargrove, 2007 WL 389003, at *10. Among the circumstances potentially qualifying as “special” under this prong of the test is where a plaintiff's reasonable interpretation of applicable regulations regarding the grievance process differs from that of prison officials and leads him or her to conclude that the dispute is not grievable. Giano, 380 F.3d at 676–77; see also Hargrove, 2007 WL 389003, at *10 (quoting and citing Giano). Special circumstances may also exist when a facility's “[f]ailure to provide grievance deposit boxes, denial of forms and writing materials, and a refusal to accept or forward plaintiff's appeals—which effectively rendered the grievance process unavailable to him.” Murray, 2010 WL 1235591, at *6 (quoting Sandlin v. Poole, 488 (W.D.N.Y.2008) (noting that “[s]uch facts support a finding that defendant's are estopped from relying on exhaustion defense as ‘special circumstances’ excusing plaintiff's failure to exhaust”)).

*8 During the evidentiary hearing, Bailey testified to his awareness of the existence of the ARP at FCI Ray Brook. See, e.g., Tr. 102. Bailey's testimony regarding his alleged efforts to secure the forms necessary to pursue the grievance plainly evidences his knowledge of the requirement that he exhaust available administrative remedies, and negates a finding of any reasonable belief on his part that the dispute in issue was not grievable and could not have been presented through the BOP's internal grievance process. Accordingly, again allocating the ultimate burden of proof on the issue of special circumstances to the defendant, I nonetheless conclude that she has demonstrated, by a preponderance of the evidence, the absence of any special circumstances that would serve to excuse plaintiff's failure to exhaust administrative remedies.

IV. SUMMARY AND RECOMMENDATION

The credible testimony and evidence adduced at the recent hearing, held to address the merits of defendant's exhaustion defense, establishes that (1) Bailey failed to avail himself of the BOP grievance process, which was available to him, before commencing this action; (2) Fortier did not, through her actions, preclude Bailey from filing a grievance regarding the claims set forth in his complaint, or otherwise engage in conduct for which she should be estopped from asserting failure to exhaust as an affirmative defense; and (3) Bailey has offered no special circumstances warranting that he be excused from the PLRA's exhaustion requirement. Accordingly, it is therefore hereby respectfully RECOMMENDED, that plaintiff's complaint in this action be DISMISSED, based upon his failure to comply with the exhaustion requirements of 42 U.S.C. § 1997e(a).

NOTICE: Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1), the parties may lodge written objections to the foregoing report. Such objections must be filed with the Clerk of the Court within FOURTEEN days of service of this report. FAILURE TO SO OBJECT TO THIS REPORT WILL PRECLUDE APPELLATE REVIEW. 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1); Fed.R.Civ.P. 6(a), 6(d), 72; Roldan v. Racette, 984 F.2d 85 (2d Cir.1993).

It is hereby ORDERED that the clerk of the court serve a copy of this report and recommendation upon the parties in accordance with this court's local rules.

- 10 In Macias, which, like this action, involved an Eighth Amendment claim under Bivens, as well as claims under the Federal Court Claims Act, 28 U.S.C. § 2671 et seq., defendants asserted that plaintiff's complaint was subject to dismissal under the PLRA based upon his failure to exhaust available administrative remedies. Macias, 495 F.3d at 40. Reiterating the importance of exhaustion in both a substantive and a procedural sense, the Second Circuit concluded that, while a prisoner may have substantively exhausted remedies by making informal complaints regarding the conditions at issue, the PLRA, as illuminated by Woodford, 548 U.S. 81, 126 S.Ct. 2378, 165 L.Ed.2d 368, requires proper procedural exhaustion through the available grievance channels. Id. at 41. The court left open, however, the possibility that, notwithstanding the Supreme Court's decision in Woodford, a defendant could be precluded from asserting failure to exhaust available administrative remedies in the event of a finding that threats by prison officials may have deterred compliance with the PLRA exhaustion requirements, including under Hemphill. Id. at 44-45. The court in Macias also noted that the plaintiff in that case did not assert that the available internal remedial scheme was so confusing as to excuse his failure to avail himself of that process, thereby obviating the need for the court to determine what effect, if any, Woodford would have upon the Hemphill holding to the effect that a reasonable misinterpretation of the available scheme could justify an inmate's failure to follow the procedural rules. See Amador v. Superintendents of Dep't of Correctional Serv., No. 03 CIV. 0650 \(KTD/CWG\), 2007 WL 4326747, at *6 \(S.D.N.Y. Dec.4, 2007\). It therefore appears that the teachings of Hemphill remain intact, at least with regard to the first two points of inquiry. Id. at *7.

Corey FORD, Plaintiff,

v.

Joseph T. SMITH, Neville Andrews, Defendants.

No. 9:12-CV-1109 (TJM/
TWD). | Feb. 19, 2014.Attorneys and Law Firms

Corey Ford, Wallkill, NY, pro se.

Hon. Eric T. Schneiderman, Attorney General for the State of New York, Keith A. Muse, Esq., of Counsel, Albany, NY, for Defendants.DECISION and ORDERTHOMAS J. McAVOY, Senior District Judge.I. INTRODUCTION

*1 This pro se action brought pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983 was referred to the Hon. Thérèse Wiley Dancks, United States Magistrate Judge, for a Report and Recommendation pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636\(b\) and Local Rule N.D.N.Y. 72.3(c). In her January 16, 2014 Report–Recommendation and Order (Dkt. No. 44), Magistrate Judge Dancks recommends that Defendants' motion for summary judgment (Dkt. No. 39) be granted and Plaintiff's motion for summary judgment (Dkt. No. 33) be denied as moot. No objections to the Report–Recommendation and Order have been filed, and the time to do so has expired.

II. DISCUSSION

After examining the record, this Court has determined that the ReportRecommendation and Order is not subject to attack for plain error or manifest injustice.

III. CONCLUSION

Accordingly, the Court ADOPTS the Report–Recommendation and Order for the reasons stated therein. Defendants' motion for summary judgment (Dkt. No. 39) is GRANTED, and Plaintiff's motion for summary judgment (Dkt. No. 33) is DENIED as moot.

IT IS SO ORDERED.REPORT–RECOMMENDATION and ORDERTHÉRÈSE WILEY DANCKS, United States Magistrate Judge.

This pro se prisoner civil rights action, commenced pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983, has been referred to me for Report and Recommendation by the Honorable Thomas J. McAvoy, Senior United States District Judge, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636\(b\) and Local Rule 72.3(c). Plaintiff Corey Ford claims that Defendants violated his rights under the First and Fourteenth Amendments and the Religious Land Use and Institutionalized Persons Act by denying him religious meals associated with the observances of Id–Ul–Fitr and Id–Ul–Adha. (Dkt. No. 1.) Currently pending before the Court are Plaintiff's motion for summary judgment (Dkt. No. 33) and Defendants' cross-motion for summary judgment (Dkt. No. 39) pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 56. Because Plaintiff admits that he failed to exhaust his administrative remedies before filing this action and there is no evidence that this failure was justified, I recommend that the Court grant Defendants' motion and deny Plaintiff's motion as moot.

I. LEGAL STANDARD GOVERNING MOTIONS FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

Under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 56, summary judgment is warranted “if the movant shows that there is no genuine dispute as to any material fact and the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.” Fed.R.Civ.P. 56\(a\). The party moving for summary judgment bears the initial burden of showing, through the production of admissible evidence, that no genuine issue of material fact exists. Salahuddin v. Goord, 467 F.3d 263, 272–73 (2d Cir.2006). Only after the moving party has met this burden is the nonmoving party required to produce evidence demonstrating that genuine issues of material fact exist. Id. at 273. The nonmoving party must do more than “rest upon the mere allegations ... of the [plaintiff's] pleading” or “simply show that there is some metaphysical doubt as to the material facts.” Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 586 & n. 11, 106 S.Ct. 1348, 89 L.Ed.2d 538 (1986). Rather, a dispute regarding a material fact is genuine “if the evidence is such that a reasonable jury could return a verdict for the nonmoving party.” Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248, 106 S.Ct. 2505, 91 L.Ed.2d 202 (1986). In determining whether a genuine issue of material¹ fact exists, the Court must resolve all ambiguities and draw all reasonable inferences against the moving party. Major League Baseball Props., Inc. v. Salvino, Inc., 542 F.3d 290, 309 (2d Cir.2008).

II. ANALYSIS

*2 Defendants argue that this action must be dismissed because Plaintiff failed to exhaust his administrative remedies as required by the Prison Litigation Reform Act (“PLRA”) before filing his complaint. (Dkt. No. 39–4 at 14–17.²) Defendants are correct.

Under the PLRA, “[n]o action shall be brought with respect to prison conditions under section 1983... by a prisoner confined in any jail, prison, or other correctional facility until such administrative remedies as are available are exhausted.” 42 U.S.C. § 1997e(a). “[T]he PLRA’s exhaustion requirement applies to all inmate suits about prison life, whether they involve general circumstances or particular episodes, and whether they allege excessive force or some other wrong.” Porter v. Nussle, 534 U.S. 516, 532, 122 S.Ct. 983, 152 L.Ed.2d 12 (2002). In order to properly exhaust administrative remedies under the PLRA, inmates are required to complete the administrative review process in accordance with the rules applicable to the particular institution to which they are confined. Jones v. Bock, 549 U.S. 199, 218, 127 S.Ct. 910, 166 L.Ed.2d 798 (2007) (citing Woodford v. Ngo, 548 U.S. 81, 88, 126 S.Ct. 2378, 165 L.Ed.2d 368 (2006)). In New York state prisons, the Department of Corrections and Community Supervision (“DOCCS”) has a well-established three-step inmate grievance program. N.Y. Comp. Codes R. & Regs. tit. 7, § 701.5 (2013).

Generally, the DOCCS Inmate Grievance Program (“IGP”) involves the following procedure for the filing of grievances. First, an inmate must file a complaint with the facility’s IGP clerk within twenty-one calendar days of the alleged occurrence. Id. at § 701.5(a) (2010). A representative of the facility’s inmate grievance resolution committee (“IGRC”) has sixteen calendar days from receipt of the grievance to informally resolve the issue. Id. at 701.5(b)(1). If there is no such informal resolution, then the full IGRC conducts a hearing within sixteen calendar days of receipt of the grievance (Id. at § 701.5(b)(2)), and issues a written decision within two working days of the conclusion of the hearing. Id. at § 701.5(b)(3).

Second, a grievant may appeal the IGRC decision to the facility’s superintendent within seven calendar days of receipt of the IGRC’s written decision. Id. at 701.5(c)(1). If the grievance involves an institutional issue (as opposed to a DOCCS-wide policy issue), the superintendent must issue a written decision within twenty calendar days of receipt of the grievant’s appeal. Id. at § 701.5(c)(3)(ii). Grievances regarding DOCCS-wide policy issues are forwarded directly to the central office review committee (“CORC”) for a decision under the process applicable to the third step. Id. at 701.5(c)(3)(I).

Third, a grievant may appeal to CORC within seven working days of receipt of the superintendent’s written decision. Id. at 701.5(d)(1)(I). CORC is to render a written decision within thirty calendar days of receipt of the appeal. Id. at 701.5(d)(3)(ii).

*3 If a prisoner has failed to properly follow each of the applicable steps prior to commencing litigation, he has failed to exhaust his administrative remedies. Woodford, 548 U.S. at 93. Receiving a decision from CORC after filing a federal lawsuit does not satisfy the PLRA’s requirement that administrative remedies be exhausted before filing suit, and any such action must be dismissed without prejudice. Neal v. Goord, 267 F.3d 116, 122–23 (2d Cir.2001), overruled on other grounds by Porter v. Nussle, 534 U.S. 516, 122 S.Ct. 983, 152 L.Ed.2d 12 (2002).

Here, Plaintiff filed his complaint on July 13, 2012. (Dkt. No. 1.) Plaintiff admits that he did not receive a decision from CORC until September 5, 2012. (Dkt. No. 41–2 at 21.) Thus, Plaintiff failed to exhaust his administrative remedies.

Plaintiff’s failure to exhaust, however, does not end the review. The Second Circuit has held that a three-part inquiry is appropriate where a prisoner has failed to exhaust his available administrative remedies. Hemphill v. New York, 380 F.3d 680, 686, 691 (2d Cir.2004).³ First, “the court must ask whether [the] administrative remedies [not pursued by the prisoner] were in fact ‘available’ to the prisoner.” Id. at 686 (citation omitted). Second, if those remedies were available:

the court should ... inquire as to whether [some or all of] the defendants may have forfeited the affirmative defense of nonexhaustion by failing to raise or preserve it ... or whether the defendants' own actions inhibiting the [prisoner's] exhaustion of remedies may estop one or more of the defendants from raising the plaintiff's failure to exhaust as a defense.

Id. (citations omitted). Third, if the remedies were available and some of the defendants did not forfeit, and were not estopped from raising, the non-exhaustion defense, "the court should consider whether 'special circumstances' have been plausibly alleged that justify the prisoner's failure to comply with the administrative procedural requirements." Id. (citations and internal quotations omitted).

Here, as discussed above, administrative remedies were available to Plaintiff. Indeed, Plaintiff admits that he pursued those remedies. (Dkt. No. 41–2 at 20–21.) Defendants preserved the exhaustion defense by pleading it in their answer. (Dkt. No. 15 ¶ 17; Jones, 549 U.S. at 216; Alster v. Goord, 745 F.Supp.2d 317, 332 (S.D.N.Y.2010).) There is no evidence in the record that Defendants' own conduct estops them from asserting the exhaustion defense. Cf. Ziemba v. Wezner, 366 F.3d 161, 162–64 (2d Cir.2004) (district court directed to consider whether defendants were estopped from asserting exhaustion defense where inmate alleged that he was beaten, threatened, denied grievance forms, and transferred to another prison).

Read broadly, Plaintiff's opposition papers argue that special circumstances justify his failure to exhaust before filing suit. Specifically, Plaintiff argues that his failure to exhaust was justified because CORC took six months to respond to his appeal rather than the thirty days allowed by the regulations. (Dkt. No. 41–2 at 21.) Justification "must be determined by looking at the circumstances which might understandably lead ... uncounselled prisoners to fail to grieve in the normally required way." Giano v. Goord, 380 F.3d 670, 678 (2d Cir.2004). Generally, the 'special circumstances' doctrine is applied where a prisoner has been threatened with physical retaliation for exhausting administrative remedies or where the prisoner reasonably misinterprets the statutory requirements of the appeals process. Id. at 676. CORC's failure to act within the time frame set out in the regulations does not constitute a special circumstance justifying the failure to exhaust. See Rodriguez v. Rosner, No. 9:12–CV–958 (TJM/ATB), 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 186228, 2012 WL 7160117 (N.D.N.Y. Dec.5, 2012) (dismissing complaint for failure to exhaust where prisoner filed appeal with CORC on May 4, filed federal civil rights complaint on June 10, and received CORC response dated September 26).⁴ Therefore, I recommend that the Court find that Plaintiff's failure to exhaust is not excused and dismiss this action without prejudice.

4 ACCORDINGLY, it is

RECOMMENDED that Defendants' motion for summary judgment (Dkt. No. 39) be GRANTED; and it is further

RECOMMENDED that Plaintiff's motion for summary judgment (Dkt. No. 33) be DENIED AS MOOT; and it is further ORDERED that the Clerk provide Plaintiff with a copy of Rodriguez v. Rosner, No. 9:12–CV–958 (TJM/ATB), 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 186228, 2012 WL 7160117 (N.D.N.Y. Dec.5, 2012).

Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1), the parties have fourteen days within which to file written objections to the foregoing report. Such objections shall be filed with the Clerk of the Court. FAILURE TO OBJECT TO THIS REPORT WITHIN FOURTEEN DAYS WILL PRECLUDE APPELLATE REVIEW. *Roldan v. REPORT-RECOMMENDATIONGEORGE H. LOWE, United States Magistrate Judge.

This pro se prisoner civil rights action, filed pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983, has been referred to me for Report and Recommendation by the Honorable Norman A. Mordue, Chief United States District Judge, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636\(b\) and Local Rule 72.3(c) of the Local Rules of Practice for this Court. In his Complaint, Christopher McCloud ("Plaintiff") alleges that, on May 31, 2007, at Green Correctional Facility ("Green C.F."), Correctional Officer C. Turriglio ("Defendant") physically assaulted and threatened Plaintiff in violation of his constitutional rights. (Dkt. No. 1, ¶ 6 [Plf.'s Compl.].) Currently before the Court is Defendant's motion to dismiss Plaintiff's Complaint for failure to state a claim upon which relief might be granted, pursuant to Fed.R.Civ.P. 12\(b\)\(6\). (Dkt. No. 11.) For the reasons set forth below, I recommend that the Court grant Defendants' motion to dismiss.

I. BACKGROUNDA. Summary of Plaintiff's Complaint

On June 20, 2007, Plaintiff filed his Complaint in this action. (Dkt. No. 1 [Plf.'s Compl.].) The factual allegations giving rise to Plaintiff's (unspecified) constitutional claim against Defendant Turriglio are as follows:

On May 31, [20]07 I came to my program late[.] [My program] ... is Mess [H]all [during the] P.M. and late eve[ning shift]. [F]or coming in late I was placed in the pot room[.] [M]y regular job title is 2 ser[v]er on the C-side line[.][W]hile I was in the pot room I was making noise and Officer Tureglio [sic] came into the pot room and started banging pots and curs[ing] at me [.] telling me to shut up[.] [A]fter that he told me to stop eye balling him or he'll pull my eyes from my skull[.] [A]t 2:30 P.M. [it] is count time and all inmates must report to the din[ing] are[a] for count[.] [A]fter count he called me to his office and took me to the back of the Mess [H]all out of plain view and placed me o[n] the wall and started to slap me [o]n the back of the head[.] [A]fter his as[sa]ult he placed his pocket knife to his face and told me he'll cut hi[m]self and say I did it [in order to] let the other inmates know he's not play[ing around].

*2 (Dkt. No. 1, ¶ 6 [Plf.'s Compl.].) As a result of this alleged misconduct, Plaintiff is requesting three forms of relief: (1) a court order “secur[ing] [Plaintiff's] safety and mak[ing] sure there will be [] no [] retaliation from coworkers or staff”; (2) a court order directing that a search be performed of Defendant's “file to see if [a]ny complaints or grievances [have] been filed against him in the past concerning brutality”; and (3) “$1,000,000 for mental anguish and distress.” (Id. at ¶¶ 7, 9.)

It is important to note that, in his form Complaint, Plaintiff provided some information regarding his efforts to exhaust his available administrative remedies before filing this action. Specifically, in response to a question reading “Is there a prisoner grievance procedure at this facility?” Plaintiff checked the box reading “Yes.” (Id. at ¶ 4[a].) In response to a question reading “If your answer to 4(a) is YES, did you present the facts relating to your complaint in this grievance program?” Plaintiff checked the box reading “No.” (Id. at ¶ 4[b].) In response to a question reading “If your answer to 4(b) is NO: Why did you choose to not present the facts relating to your complaint in the prison's grievance program?” Plaintiff stated, “Because I fear retaliation from officers and the officer [I]’m fil[ing] against brag[s] about the grievance system not working and he claims his uncle is a superintendent.” (Id.) Finally, in elaboration on this last assertion, Plaintiff stated later on in the Complaint that “[t]he officer [I]’m fil[ing] [this action] againsts uncle [sic] is a Superintendent here at Green Corr.” (Id. at ¶ 4[c].)

B. Plaintiff's Abandoned Efforts to File an Amended Complaint and a Supplemental Complaint

On June 22, 2007, Plaintiff filed a letter to the Clerk of the Court. (Dkt. No. 6.) The stated purpose of the letter was to serve “as evidence in [Plaintiff's] case.” (Id.) The letter requested that his Complaint be amended to reflect that the correct spelling of Defendant's name was “C. Turriglio,” not “Tureglio.” (Id.) (The Court subsequently directed that the docket be so amended.) In addition, the letter requested that a claim be “add [ed] to [Plaintiff's] complaint....” (Id.) The factual allegation giving rise to this claim was as follows:

On June 18, 2007 Officer Turriglio made intimidating comments [to] me [and] taunt[ed] me[,] saying [‘]McCloud knows I doesn't [sic] play[.] Let them know [.] [By ‘them’ he was] talking about new Mess [H]all workers. I assumed he was back from vacation time or answering a grievance because he [was] brag[g]in' about laying on the beach when some inmates here at the facility filed a grievance against him.

(Id.)

On July 5, 2007, I directed the Clerk to strike Plaintiff's submission from the docket for two reasons: (1) to the extent that Plaintiff was requesting court permission for leave to amend his Complaint, such permission was unnecessary under Fed.R.Civ.P. 15\(a\) since Defendant had not yet filed a responsive pleading; and (2) to the extent that Plaintiff was requesting that his (one-page, single-spaced) letter serve as his amended pleading, such an amendment was prohibited by Local Rule 7.1(a), which required that amended pleadings be complete pleadings that superseded the original pleadings in all respects. (Dkt. No. 7.)

*3 However, Plaintiff did not subsequently file an Amended Complaint. Rather, on August 8, 2007, Plaintiff filed another letter with the Court. (Dkt. No. 12.) The stated purpose of the letter was to again request “the court[']s permission to amend [Plaintiff's] complaint.” (Id.) Although Plaintiff used the word “amend,” it was clear that what he was intending was a “supplemental” complaint. See Fed.R.Civ.P. 15\(d\). This is because the factual allegations he asserted in the letter arose from incidents occurring after the filing of his Complaint on June 20, 2007. (Dkt. No. 12.) In pertinent part, Plaintiff alleged as follows:

On July 14, [20]07 the very next day [after speaking to a prison psychologist and Iman about the anxiety I was suffering due to my experience with Officer Turriglio] I was approached by [O]fficer Turriglio once I arrived ... [at my] program. Officer Turriglio told me [‘]I want to talk to you.[‘] After program assi[gn]ments ... [were] completed [O]fficer Turriglio pulled me to the side away from other inmate[]mess hall workers on the B side in the din[ing] area; [O]fficer Turriglio['s] exact words ... [were] 'I spok[e] to the Imam [about] what[']s going on[.] [Y]ou can talk to me man to man. I must admit I was nervous when [O]fficer Turriglio approached me. I started studdering [sic] when I spoke and made up a lie.... After that [O]fficer Turriglio walked away.

(Id. at 1.) In addition, Plaintiff attempted to assert a claim against various (unidentified) nonparties. In pertinent part, Plaintiff alleged as follows:

On July 24, [20]07 I was called to the sergeant[']s office[] and forced to write a statement [about what had taken place between Plaintiff and Officer Turriglio] that is false.... When I arrived at the sergeant[']s office[,] three sergeants or lieutenants ... [were] there[.] [O]ne left and the other two stayed[.] [O]ne of them asked what happen[ed] between me and Turriglio. [The] [I]nspector [G]eneral's [O]ffice [had] informed them of what [had] happen[ed]. One of the sergeant[']s or lieutenants told me what to write. I tried to write what really took place between me and [O]fficer Turriglio. I was told [T]hat [']s not good enough.['] I informed the sergeant or lieutenants that I[had] filed a federal complaint against [O]fficer Turriglio. I was still told what to write[.][W]hen I refused that[']s when threats ... [were] made and I was called a nigger. I was told [I']m not leaving the sergeant[']s office intell [sic] I give them what th[e]y want [sic].... I repeat [that] my statement was false and forced and I took no oath[;] it was given out of fear for my safety.... I can [']t identify [the two sergeants or lieutenants] by name because th[e]y were not wearing badges or name tags.... I [would] like to add [as defendants in my action] Green Cor. Fac.[,] D.O.C. as a while[,] [and the] New Yo[r]k State employees here at Greene [Correctional Facility]

*4 (Id. at 2.)

On August 13, 2007, I directed the Clerk to strike Plaintiff's submission from the docket for two reasons: (1) to the extent that Plaintiff was requesting court permission for leave to supplement his Complaint, such permission was unnecessary under Fed.R.Civ.P. 15\(a\) since Defendant had not yet filed a responsive pleading; and (2) to the extent that Plaintiff was requesting that his (two-page, single-spaced) letter serve as his supplemental pleading, such a supplemental pleading was not in conformity with Fed.R.Civ.P. 10\(b\), Local Rule 10.1, and Local Rule 7.1(a)(4) in that the document was not double spaced, the text was not broken down into paragraphs, and the paragraphs were not numbered consecutively to the paragraphs contained in the original pleading. (Dkt. No. 14.)

However, Plaintiff did not subsequently file a Supplemental Complaint. Rather, on August 29, 2007, Plaintiff filed another letter with the Court. (Dkt. No. 15.) In the letter, Plaintiff requested "the court[']s permission to make a formal complaint, 'not to amend my complaint.'" (Id. at 1.) The claim that Plaintiff wished to assert arose from events occurring on August 21, 2007, at Greene C.F., involving the delayed arrival of a piece of his legal mail. (Id. at 1-2.) More specifically, Plaintiff alleged that (1) at approximately 3:30 p.m. in Plaintiff's housing unit, Correctional Officer Forbes handed Plaintiff a piece of legal mail (a time-sensitive court order issued by the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York on May 31, 2007) unaccompanied by the addressed envelope in which it had arrived at the prison, and (2) that same day, while signing for legal mail (from the New York State Court of Claims) in front of Officer Turriglio at the law library, Plaintiff was led to "fear [that] Officer Turriglio has tampered with my mail ... [because he was] the officer who had access to all inmate[']s legal mail." (Id.) As a form of relief, Plaintiff requested that the Court "issue a[n] order to have the Defendant Officer Turriglio removed from the law library intell [sic] this matter is resolved." (Id. at 2.)

On September 6, 2007, I directed the Clerk to strike Plaintiff's submission from the docket for the exact two reasons given in my Order of August 13, 2007 (i.e., that Plaintiff need not request permission to file a Supplemental Complaint since he had the right to do so without permission under the circumstances, and that his two-page, single-spaced letter could not serve as his supplemental pleading since the document was not double spaced, the text was not broken down into paragraphs, and the paragraphs were not numbered consecutively to the paragraphs contained in the original pleading), as well as for the additional reason that Plaintiff had failed to indicate that he had served his submission on opposing counsel, as required by Local Rule 5.1(a). (Dkt. No. 16.)

However, again, Plaintiff did not subsequently file a Supplemental Complaint.

C. Defendant's Motion to Dismiss and Plaintiff's Response

*5 On August 2, 2007, Defendant filed a motion to dismiss Plaintiff's Complaint for failure to state a claim upon which relief might be granted, pursuant to Fed.R.Civ.P. 12\(b\)\(6\). (Dkt. No. 11.) Defendant's motion is premised on two independent grounds: (1) that Plaintiff's action is barred by the Prison Litigation Reform Act ("PLRA") due to his failure to exhaust his available administrative remedies before filing this action; and (2) that Plaintiff's action is barred by the PLRA since that statute requires that any inmate claiming damages related to mental and emotional distress, as is Plaintiff, must make a prior showing of physical injury, which Plaintiff has not made. (Dkt. No. 11, Part 2, at 4-6 [Def.'s Memo. of Law].)

In response to Defendant's first argument (i.e., regarding Plaintiff's failure to exhaust his available administrative remedies), Plaintiff argues that (1) Defendant's own actions inhibited Plaintiff's exhaustion of administrative remedies so as to estop Defendant from asserting Plaintiff's failure to exhaust as a defense, and/or (2) under the circumstances, special circumstances existed justifying his failure to exhaust his administrative remedies. (Dkt. No. 18, Plf.'s Memo. of Law, "Point I.") In response to Defendant's second argument (i.e., regarding Plaintiff's failure to make a prior showing of physical injury), Plaintiff essentially argues that the "continuous injuries" inflicted on Plaintiff by Defendant constitute the showing of physical injury required by the PLRA. (Dkt. No. 18, Plf.'s Memo. of Law, "Point II.")

II. RECENTLY CLARIFIED LEGAL STANDARD FOR MOTIONS TO DISMISS

Under Fed.R.Civ.P. 12\(b\)\(6\), a defendant may move to dismiss a complaint for "failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted." Fed.R.Civ.P. 12\(b\)\(6\). It has long been understood that a defendant may base such a motion on either or both of two grounds: (1) a challenge to the "sufficiency of the pleading" under Rule 8(a)(2);¹ or (2) a challenge to the legal cognizability of the claim.²

Rule 8\(a\)\(2\) requires that a pleading include "a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief." Fed.R.Civ.P. 8\(a\)\(2\). Such a statement must "give the defendant fair notice of what the plaintiff's claim is and the grounds upon which it rests."³ The purpose of this rule is to "facilitate a proper decision on the merits."⁴ A complaint that fails to comply with this rule "presents far too a heavy burden in terms of defendants' duty to shape a comprehensive defense and provides no meaningful basis for the Court to assess the sufficiency of [plaintiff's] claims."⁵

The Supreme Court has long characterized this pleading requirement under Rule 8\(a\)\(2\) as "simplified" and "liberal," and has repeatedly rejected judicially established pleading requirements that exceed this liberal requirement.⁶ However, it is well established that even this liberal notice pleading standard "has its limits."⁷ As a result, several Supreme Court and Second Circuit decisions exist, holding that a pleading has failed to meet this liberal notice pleading standard.⁸

*6 Most notably, in the recent decision of Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, the Supreme Court, in reversing an appellate decision holding that a complaint had stated a claim upon which relief could be granted, "retire[d]" the famous statement by the Court in Conley v. Gibson, 355 U.S. 41, 45-46 (1957), that "a complaint should not be dismissed for failure to state a claim unless it appears beyond doubt that the plaintiff can prove no set of facts in support of his claim which would entitle him to relief." 127 S.Ct. 1955, 1968-69 (2007).⁹ Rather than turning on the conceivability of an actionable claim, the Court clarified, the Rule 8 standard turns on the "plausibility" of an actionable claim. Id. at 1965-74. More specifically, the Court held that, for a plaintiff's complaint to state a claim, his "[f]actual allegations must be enough to raise a right to relief above the speculative level [to a plausible level]" assuming, of course, that all the allegations in the complaint are true. Id. at 1965 [citations omitted]. What this means, on a practical level, is that there must be "plausible grounds to infer [actionable conduct]," or, in other words, "enough fact to raise a reasonable expectation that discovery will reveal evidence of [actionable conduct]." Id.; see also Iqbal v. Hasty, 490 F.3d 143, 157-58 (2d Cir.2007) ("[W]e believe the [Supreme] Court [in Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly] is ... requiring a flexible 'plausibility standard,' which obliges a pleader to amplify a claim with some factual allegations in those contexts where such amplification is needed to render the claim plausible.") [emphasis in original].

Having said that, it should be emphasized that, “[i]n reviewing a complaint for dismissal under Rule 12\(b\)\(6\), the court must accept the material facts alleged in the complaint as true and construe all reasonable inferences in the plaintiff’s favor.”¹⁰ Moreover, it should be noted that “[t]his standard is applied with even greater force where the plaintiff alleges civil rights violations or where the complaint is submitted pro se.”¹¹ In other words, while all pleadings are to be construed liberally, pro se civil rights pleadings are generally to be construed with an extra degree of liberality. Indeed, generally “courts must construe pro se pleadings broadly, and interpret them to raise the strongest arguments that they suggest.”¹² In addition, when addressing a pro se complaint, generally a district court “should not dismiss without granting leave to amend at least once when a liberal reading of the complaint gives any indication that a valid claim might be stated.”¹³

However, when a plaintiff is proceeding pro se, “all normal rules of pleading are not absolutely suspended.”¹⁴ Moreover, an opportunity to amend should be denied where “the problem with [plaintiff’s] causes of action is substantive” such that “[b]etter pleading will not cure it.”¹⁵

*7 Finally, it should be remembered that Fed.R.Civ.P. 12\(b\)\(6\) motions to dismiss are limited to the facts alleged in the complaint and must be converted into a Fed.R.Civ.P. 56 motion for summary judgment if the court considers materials outside the pleadings.¹⁶ However, of course, the court may, without converting the motion to dismiss into a motion for summary judgment, consider any documents provided by the plaintiff in opposition to defendants’ motion to dismiss, to the extent those documents are consistent with the allegations in the complaint.¹⁷

III. ANALYSIS

As stated above in Part I.C. of this Report-Recommendation, Defendant’s motion is premised on two independent grounds: (1) that Plaintiff’s action is barred by the Prison Litigation Reform Act (“PLRA”) due to his failure to exhaust his available administrative remedies before filing this action; and (2) that Plaintiff’s action is barred by the PLRA since that statute requires that any inmate claiming damages related to mental and emotional distress, as is Plaintiff, must make a prior showing of physical injury, which Plaintiff has not made. (Dkt. No. 11, Part 2, at 4-6 [Def.’s Memo. of Law].) Because I conclude that Defendant’s lack-of-physical-injury argument for dismissal is somewhat stronger than is his failure-to-exhaust argument, I address the lack-of-physical-injury argument first.

A. Requirement of Physical Injury

The Prison Litigation Reform Act of 1995 (“PLRA”) provides, in pertinent part, as follows: “No Federal civil action may be brought by a prisoner confined in a jail, prison, or other correctional facility, for mental or emotional injury suffered while in custody without a prior showing of physical injury.”42 U.S.C.1997e\(e\).

Here, Plaintiff alleges that, on May 31, 2007, Defendant (1) “bang[ed] pots” in the prison’s “pot room,” (2) “curs[ed]” at Plaintiff, (3) told Plaintiff “to shut up,” (4) told Plaintiff to stop “eye balling him” or he would “pull [Plaintiff’s] eyes from [his] skull,” (5) “placed [Plaintiff] o[n] the wall and started to slap me [o]n the back of the head,” and (6) “placed his pocket knife to his [own] face and told [Plaintiff] he’ll cut hi[m]self and say I did it [in order to] let the other inmates know he’s not play[ing around].” (Dkt. No. 1, ¶ 6 [Plf.’s Compl.].) As a result of this misconduct, Plaintiff alleges that he suffered “mental anguish and distress.” (Id. at ¶¶ 7, 9.)

These factual allegations do not plausibly suggest that Plaintiff suffered any physical injury as a result of Defendant’s alleged misconduct. Generally, some slaps on the back of the head do not constitute a cognizable physical injury under the PLRA. See Jackson v. Johnson, 04-CV-0110, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 21720, at *18-19, 32 (M.D. Ga. June 17, 2005) (no physical injury under PLRA occurred where corrections officer, inter alia, “slapp[ed] [prisoner] in the face immediately [after shouting derogatory remark to him]”). This is especially true where, as here, there is no allegation that the slaps resulted in any observable or diagnosable medical condition requiring treatment by a medical care professional. See Jarriett v. Wilson, 162 Fed. App’x 394, 400-01 (6th Cir.2005) (mild swelling of left toe with some pain but no need for medical treatment was not cognizable physical injury under PLRA); Dixon v. Toole, 225 Fed. App’x 797, 799 (11th Cir.2007) (“mere bruising from the application of restraints [resulting in welts]” was not cognizable physical injury under PLRA); Silgar v. Hightower, 112 F.3d 191, 193-94 (5th Cir.1997) (prisoner’s “sore, bruised ear lasting for three days” was not cognizable physical injury under PLRA); cf. Liner v. Goord, 196 F.3d 132, 135 (2d Cir.1998) (citing Silgar v. Hightower for the point of law that the physical injury under the PLRA must be more than “de minimis”), accord, Voorhees v. Goord, 05-CV-1407, 2006 WL 1888638, at *10, n. 2 (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 24, 2006) (same), Leon v. Johnson, 96 F.Supp.2d 244, 248 (W.D.N.Y.2000) (same).¹⁸

*8 I note that repeated punches by correctional officials (while, of course, deplorable if unprovoked) have been specifically held by district courts in this Circuit to not constitute physical injury under the PLRA, where they resulted in only superficial and temporary irritations or abrasions. See Espinal v. Goord, 00-CV-2242, 2001 WL 476070, at *3-4, 12-13 (S.D.N.Y. May 7, 2001) (“red face” suffered by inmate after correctional officer “struck [him] a couple times,” “punch[ing][him] in the head and face,” did not constitute physical injury cognizable under PLRA); Warren v. Westchester County Jail, 106 F.Supp.2d 559, 563, 569 (S.D.N.Y.2000) (minor scratches suffered by jail inmate as a result of two to three punches by guard, including two scratches to inmate's face, and very small cut inside mouth, did not constitute physical injury cognizable under PLRA); cf. Abreu v. Nicholls, 04-CV-7778, 2007 WL 2111086, at *5 (S.D.N.Y. July 24, 2007) [collecting cases in which minor blows to inmates' faces and heads were not actionable under the Eighth Amendment].¹⁹

Furthermore, even if (out of special solicitude to Plaintiff) I were to consider the factual allegations contained in Plaintiff's three aborted efforts at filing an amended or supplemental pleading, and the factual allegations contained in Plaintiff's papers in opposition to Defendant's motion, I would reach the same conclusion. None of those documents assert any allegations plausibly suggesting that Plaintiff suffered any physical injury as a result of Defendant's alleged misconduct on May 31, 2007. (See Dkt. No. 6 [Plf.'s Letter filed 6/22/07]; Dkt. No. 12 [Plf.'s Letter filed 8/8/07]; Dkt. No. 15 [Plf.'s Letter filed 8/29/07]; Dkt. No. 18 [Plf.'s Opposition Papers].)

Plaintiff alleges, in his letter to the Court of June 22, 2007, that, on June 18, 2007, Officer Turriglio made “intimidating comments” to Plaintiff, and “taunt[ed]” him, by saying to other Mess Hall workers, “McCloud knows I doesn't [sic] play.” (Dkt. No. 6.) He alleges, in his letter to the Court of August 8, 2007, that, on July 14, 2007, during a conversation with Defendant, Plaintiff became “nervous” and “started studdering [sic] when [he] spoke” to Defendant. (Dkt. No. 12, at 1.) He alleges, in his letter to the Court of August 29, 2007, that, on August 21, 2007, he “fear[ed] [that] Officer Turriglio ha[d] tampered with [his] mail ... [because Officer Turriglio was] the officer who had access to all inmate[']s legal mail.” (Dkt. No. 15, at 1-2.) None of these three documents contains any allegation that Plaintiff suffered any physical injury at all. Furthermore, none of the three documents sufficiently connects any of the emotional distress described therein to the incident on May 31, 2007; rather, the documents all allege facts plausibly suggesting that the cause of the emotional distress described in the documents was contact between Plaintiff and Defendant occurring more than two weeks after May 31, 2007.

*9 The closest Plaintiff comes to alleging facts plausibly suggesting that he suffered a “physical injury” as a result of the incident on May 31, 2007, is when he alleges, in his letter to the Court of August 8, 2007, that, on July 14, 2007, a prison psychologist diagnosed Plaintiff with “anxiety.” (Dkt. No. 12, at 1.) However, this allegation of “anxiety” is insufficient for two reasons. First, Plaintiff does not allege that the diagnosis of “anxiety” on July 14, 2007, was caused by the incident on May 31, 2007—as opposed to being caused by the incident on June 18, 2007 (which is not at issue in this action), or some sort of pre-existing emotional disorder. Second, and much more importantly, numerous courts have held—correctly, I believe—that physical manifestations of emotional injuries (e.g., anxiety, depression, stress, nausea, hyperventilation, headaches, insomnia, dizziness, appetite loss, weight loss, etc.) are not “physical injuries” for purposes of the PLRA.²⁰ This is especially true where, as here, the plaintiff does not allege an extensive list of physical manifestations but only one, i.e., “anxiety.”

Finally, for reasons similar to those articulated above, I find that the affidavit submitted by Plaintiff in opposition to Defendant's motion alleges no facts plausibly suggesting that he suffered a physical injury as a result of the incident on May 31, 2007 (or even any physical injury as a result of subsequent incidents). (Dkt. No. 18, Plf.'s Affid., ¶¶ 4, 5[A]-[H].)

For all of these reasons, I recommend that the Court dismiss Plaintiff's Complaint for failing to allege facts plausibly suggesting that he experienced any physical injury as a result of Defendant's alleged misconduct.

B. Exhaustion of Available Administrative Remedies

In addition, the PLRA requires, in pertinent part, that prisoners who bring suit in federal court must first exhaust their available administrative remedies: “No action shall be brought with respect to prison conditions under § 1983... by a prisoner confined in any jail, prison, or other correctional facility until such administrative remedies as are available are exhausted.”²¹ “[T]he PLRA's exhaustion requirement applies to all inmate suits about prison life, whether they involve general circumstances or particular episodes, and whether they allege excessive force or some other wrong.”²² The Department of Correctional Services (“DOCS”) has available a well-established three-step inmate grievance program.²³

Generally, the DOCS Inmate Grievance Program (“IGP”) involves the following procedure.²⁴ First, an inmate must file a complaint with the facility’s IGP clerk within fourteen (14) calendar days of the alleged occurrence. A representative of the facility’s inmate grievance resolution committee (“IGRC”) has seven working days from receipt of the grievance to informally resolve the issue. If there is no such informal resolution, then the full IGRC conducts a hearing within seven (7) working days of receipt of the grievance, and issues a written decision within two (2) working days of the conclusion of the hearing. Second, a grievant may appeal the IGRC decision to the facility’s superintendent within four (4) working days of receipt of the IGRC’s written decision. The superintendent is to issue a written decision within ten (10) working days of receipt of the grievant’s appeal. Third, a grievant may appeal to the central office review committee (“CORC”) within four (4) working days of receipt of the superintendent’s written decision. CORC is to render a written decision within twenty (20) working days of receipt of the appeal.

10 It is important to emphasize that any failure by the IGRC or the superintendent to adequately respond to a grievance or first-level appeal, respectively, can be appealed to the next level, including CORC, to complete the grievance process.²⁵ It is also important to emphasize that DOCS provides for an expedited procedure for the review of grievances alleging employee harassment.²⁶ While this procedure provides for review of the grievance directly by the facility superintendent, it still requires the filing of a grievance by the inmate.²⁷ Furthermore, the superintendent’s decision must be appealed to CORC in order for the inmate to complete the grievance process.²⁸

Generally, if a prisoner has failed to follow each of these steps prior to commencing litigation, he has failed to exhaust his administrative remedies.²⁹ However, the Second Circuit has held that a three-part inquiry is appropriate where a defendant contends that a prisoner has failed to exhaust his available administrative remedies, as required by the PLRA.³⁰ First, “the court must ask whether [the] administrative remedies [not pursued by the prisoner] were in fact ‘available’ to the prisoner.”³¹ Second, if those remedies were available, “the court should ... inquire as to whether [some or all of] the defendants may have forfeited the affirmative defense of non-exhaustion by failing to raise or preserve it ... or whether the defendants’ own actions inhibiting the [prisoner’s] exhaustion of remedies may estop one or more of the defendants from raising the plaintiff’s failure to exhaust as a defense.”³² Third, if the remedies were available and some of the defendants did not forfeit, and were not estopped from raising, the non-exhaustion defense, “the Court should consider whether ‘special circumstances’ have been plausibly alleged that justify the prisoner’s failure to comply with the administrative procedural requirements.”³³

Before I proceed to an analysis of the above-referenced three-part inquiry established by the Second Circuit, I should briefly discuss the appropriateness (or inappropriateness) of a failure-to-exhaust argument during a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim upon which relief might be granted, pursuant to Fed.R.Civ.P. 12\(b\)\(6\).

For some years now, it has been the majority rule (followed by the Second Circuit) that a prisoner’s fulfillment of his duty to exhaust his available administrative remedies under the Prison Litigation Reform Act (“PLRA”) is not a fact that the prisoner had to plead in order to state a claim under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 but a fact that may be challenged by a defendant through an affirmative defense (such as on a motion for summary judgment pursuant to Fed.R.Civ.P. 56, or a motion to dismiss for lack of subject-matter jurisdiction pursuant to Fed.R.Civ.P. 12\(b\)\(1\)) established by the PLRA. See, e.g., Jenkins v. Haubert, 179 F.3d 19, 28-29 (2d Cir.1999) (“Because, under the PLRA, a prisoner must exhaust administrative remedies before filing a § 1983 suit ..., a defendant in a prisoner § 1983 suit may also assert as an affirmative defense the plaintiff’s failure to comply with the PLRA’s requirements.”); Snider v. Melindez, 199 F.3d 108, 114 (2d Cir.1999) (“A court may not dismiss for failure to exhaust administrative remedies unless the court determines that such remedies are available. Snider’s answers [on a form complaint] cannot establish that.”).

11 Recently, the Supreme Court upheld this interpretation of the exhaustion requirement, prohibiting circuits (such as the Sixth, Tenth and Eleventh Circuits) from using exhaustion as a heightened pleading requirement in prisoner civil rights case. See Jones v. Block, 127 S.Ct. 910, 914-915, 918-923 (2007). A prisoner has no independent duty to plead facts plausibly suggesting that he exhausted his available administrative remedies, in order to state an actionable claim under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. Block, 127 S.Ct. at 919-21. “[T]his is not to say that failure to exhaust cannot be a basis for dismissal for failure to state a claim.” Id. at 921. If a prisoner chooses to plead facts regarding exhaustion, and those facts plausibly suggest that he failed to exhaust his available administrative remedies, then his Complaint may be dismissed for failure to state a claim. Id. at 920-21. Simply stated, if a prisoner says nothing or little about exhaustion in his pro se civil rights complaint, he is likely protected from a Fed.R.Civ.P. 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss premised on failure to exhaust. However, if he says too much about exhaustion in that complaint so that his non-exhaustion is readily apparent, he may “plead himself out of court,” as the saying goes. This is what has happened here, according to Defendants.

1. Availability of Administrative Remedies

With regard to the first inquiry (i.e., whether the administrative remedies not pursued by Plaintiff were in fact available to Plaintiff), I answer this question in the affirmative, based on even the most liberal of constructions of Plaintiff's Complaint. More specifically, I find that Plaintiff has not alleged any facts plausibly suggesting that administrative remedies were not available to prisoners at Greene C.F. during the time in question (i.e., between the occurrence of the event in question, on May 31, 2007, and the expiration of the deadline by which to file a grievance 14 days later, on or about June 14, 2007). Indeed, Plaintiff quite expressly alleges that there was a prisoner grievance procedure at Greene C.F. (Dkt. No. 1, ¶ 4[a] [Plf.'s Compl.].)

2. Estoppel

With regard to the second inquiry (i.e., whether Defendant's own actions inhibited Plaintiff's exhaustion of remedies so as to estop Defendant from raising Plaintiff's failure to exhaust as a defense), I answer this question in the negative, based on even the most liberal of constructions of Plaintiff's Complaint. In his Complaint, Plaintiff alleges no facts plausibly suggesting that Defendant took any actions whatsoever that inhibited Plaintiff from exhausting his available administrative remedies at Greene C.F. during the time in question (i.e., between the occurrence of the event in question, on May 31, 2007, and the expiration of the deadline by which to file a grievance 14 days later, on or about June 14, 2007). Rather, Plaintiff alleges that he chose to not present the facts relating to his Complaint in the prison's grievance program “[b]ecause I fear retaliation from officers and the officer [I]’m fil []ing against brag[s] about the grievance system not working and he claims his uncle is a superintendent [at Greene C.F.].” (Id.) Plaintiff's feeling of fear of “retaliation from [unidentified] officers” is completely unexplained and wholly conclusory. Furthermore, Defendant's action of “brag[ing] about the grievance system not working” and claiming that his uncle was a superintendent at Greene C.F. in no way constitutes an action by Defendant that inhibited Plaintiff from filing a grievance at Greene C.F. about the events giving rise to his claims in this action. At best, these statements by Defendant constituted an indication that Plaintiff might be unsuccessful in the grievance process before any appeal reached to the final level of review, by DOCS' Central Office Review Committee (“CORC”). Notifying an inmate of the prospect of initial failure (due to alleged antipathy for inmates or even sympathy for correctional officers, held by various other officials, participating in the grievance process) is hardly the sort of adverse action that is required to estop a correctional officer from asserting the legal defense of non-exhaustion.

*12 Nor do the other factual allegations of Plaintiff's Complaint plausibly suggest that Defendant took any actions that inhibited Plaintiff from exhausting his available administrative remedies at Greene C.F. so as to estop Defendant from raising Plaintiff's failure to exhaust as a defense. Plaintiff alleges, on May 31, 2007, Defendant (1) told Plaintiff to “stop eye balling him” or he would “pull [Plaintiff's] eyes from [his] skull,” (2) “slap[ped] [Plaintiff] on the side of his head,” and (3) placed a pocket knife to his own face and threatened to cut his own face and blame it on Plaintiff in order to let the other inmates know he was not “play[ing]” around. (Dkt. No. 1, ¶ 6 [Plf.'s Compl.].) The problem with these allegations (at least from Plaintiff's perspective) is that they have absolutely nothing to do with the filing of any grievance, or even the making of any verbal complaint, by Plaintiff. Simply stated, while the alleged conduct is (of course) deplorable, it did not (as alleged) have either the design or effect of preventing Plaintiff from exhausting his administrative remedies.

Moreover, even if (out of special solicitude to Plaintiff) I were to consider the factual allegations contained in Plaintiff's three aborted efforts at filing an amended or supplemental pleading, and the factual allegations contained in Plaintiff's papers in opposition to Defendant's motion, I would reach the same conclusion. None of those documents allege facts plausibly suggesting that Defendant's own actions inhibited Plaintiff's exhaustion of remedies during the time in question. (See Dkt. No. 6 [Plf.'s Letter filed 6/22/07]; Dkt. No. 12 [Plf.'s Letter filed 8/8/07]; Dkt. No. 15 [Plf.'s Letter filed 8/29/07]; Dkt. No. 18 [Plf.'s Opposition Papers].)

In particular, Plaintiff's letter to the Court of June 22, 2007, alleges that, on June 18, 2007, Defendant "intimidat[ed]" and "taunt[ed]" Plaintiff by saying to other inmates, "McCloud knows I [don't] play" around. (Dkt. No. 6.) This allegation fails for the same reason as the allegation about Defendant's earlier comments to Plaintiff fails: it had absolutely nothing to do with the filing of any grievance, or the making of any complaint, by Plaintiff. Moreover, Defendant's utterance of these words occurred on June 22, 2007, more than a week after Plaintiff had decided not to exhaust his available administrative remedies. (The deadline by which Plaintiff had to file a grievance regarding the incident on May 31, 2007, expired on or about June 14, 2007.)³⁴ Thus, it could not have possibly inhibited Plaintiff from exhausting his available administrative remedies.

Plaintiff's letter to the Court of August 8, 2007, alleges that, on July 14, 2007, Defendant said to Plaintiff, "I spok[e] to the Imam [about] what[']s going on[.] [Y]ou can talk to me man to man." (Dkt. No. 12.) An attempt to informally resolve a dispute (which is encouraged in DOCS' grievance process) is not an act inhibiting an inmate from exhausting his available administrative remedies. Plaintiff's letter of August 8, 2007, further alleges that on July 24, 2007, persons other than Defendant coerced Plaintiff into making a false statement about what had taken place between Plaintiff and Defendant. (Id.) Plaintiff alleges no action by Defendant on July 24, 2007. Nor does Plaintiff explain how the false statement on July 14, 2007-whatever that false statement may have been-in any way caused his decision by June 14, 2007, not to exhaust his available administrative remedies.

*13 Plaintiff's letter to the Court of August 29, 2007, alleges that Plaintiff obtained reason to "fear" that Defendant was responsible for the delayed arrival of a piece of his legal mail on August 21, 2007. (Dkt. No. 15.) However, the sole reason for this fear was the (alleged) fact that Defendant "had access to all inmate[']s legal mail." (Dkt. No. 15.) Moreover, this fear occurred on August 21, 2007, which was more than two months after Plaintiff had decided to not exhaust his available administrative remedies by June 14, 2007.

In an affidavit submitted in opposition to Defendant's motion, Plaintiff swears that, before the incident on May 31, 2007, a fellow inmate, Saheithe Pigford, filed both a federal court action and a grievance against Officer Turriglio and was "beaten on several occasions, threaten[ed] and had his personal area searched during late evening or at predawn hours." (Dkt. No. 18, Plf.'s Affid., ¶ 4.) Plaintiff also swears that, on May 31, 2007, "Plaintiff was aware of what had happened to ... [Inmate] Shakeith Pigford as a result of filing his grievance [against Officer Turriglio]" since the "Pigford ... incident[] occurred prior to that of the plaintiffs' [sic]." (Id. at ¶ 5[A].)

For the sake of argument, I will assume that Plaintiff is swearing that Mr. Pigford was beaten by Officer Turriglio (since actions by third-persons can hardly estop Officer Turriglio from asserting Plaintiff's failure to exhaust as a legal defense). The problem with Plaintiff's sworn assertion is that it is so patently false as to be implausible (if not sanctionable). I take judicial notice of the fact that Inmate Pigford did not file the action to which Plaintiff is referring (which is the only federal court action that has been filed by Shakeith Pigford, according to the Federal Judiciary's PACER service) until nearly a month after the incident giving rise to the current action, on May 31, 2007. See Pigford v. Turriglio, 07-CV-0687, Complaint (N.D.N.Y. filed June 29, 2007, and dated June 25, 2007). Furthermore, I take judicial notice of the fact that the event giving rise to Inmate Pigford's action against Officer Turriglio did not occur until three days after the event giving rise to the current action, on May 31, 2007. See Pigford v. Turriglio, 07-CV-0687, Complaint, ¶ 6 (N.D.N.Y.). No mention is made in Inmate Pigford's Complaint as to when he filed his grievance and was assaulted. Id. at ¶¶ 4(b), 6. However, given the clear factual inaccuracies of Plaintiff's other sworn statements regarding Inmate Pigford's experience, I find that Plaintiff's allegation that Inmate Pigford's experience dissuaded Plaintiff from filing a grievance in this action (from May 31, 2007, to June 14, 2007) to be wholly implausible.

Furthermore, because I find that the absence of this factual allegation (regarding Inmate Pigford's having been assaulted for filing a grievance against Officer Turriglio) from Plaintiff's Complaint (which is otherwise quite specific as to why Plaintiff "fear[ed] retaliation" if he filed a grievance) to be conspicuous, I find that this late-blossoming factual allegation to be inconsistent with the factual allegations of Plaintiff's Complaint. Therefore, I find that this portion of Plaintiff's Opposition Affidavit may not serve to effectively amend Plaintiff's Complaint. (See, supra, note 17 of this Report-Recommendation [citing cases].)

14 In his affidavit, Plaintiff also swears that, before the incident on May 31, 2007, a fellow inmate, Mohammed Montalvo, filed a grievance against Officer Turriglio for "brandish[ing] a knife" and was "threaten[ed] thereafter with bodily harm until he agreed to sign-off [sic] on the grievance...." (Dkt. No. 18, Plf.'s Affid., ¶ 4.) For the sake of brevity, I will set aside the fact that Plaintiff does not assert precisely when Inmate Montalvo was so threatened. I will also set aside incredulity with which I view this late-blossoming, self-serving sworn statement, given Plaintiff's other misrepresentations to the Court-discussed above, and below. (See, infra, Part III.C. of this Report-Recommendation.) The more important fact is that Plaintiff does not allege that it was Officer Turriglio who threatened Inmate Montalvo with bodily harm. Again, actions by third-persons cannot estop Officer Turriglio from asserting Plaintiff's failure to exhaust as a legal defense. Moreover, because of the conspicuous absence of this factual allegation (regarding Inmate Montalvo's having been threatened for filing a grievance against Officer Turriglio) from Plaintiff's Complaint (which is otherwise quite specific as to why Plaintiff "fear[ed] retaliation" if he filed a grievance), I find that this factual allegation to be inconsistent with the factual allegations of Plaintiff's Complaint. Therefore, I find that this portion of Plaintiff's Opposition Affidavit may not serve to effectively amend Plaintiff's Complaint. (See, supra, note 17 of this Report-Recommendation [citing cases].)

Finally, in his affidavit, Plaintiff swears that he experienced several other adverse actions following the incident in question on May 31, 2007. As an initial matter, the vast majority of this asserted misconduct was committed by correctional officers at Greene C.F. other than Defendant.

More importantly, all of this misconduct occurred between July 24, 2007, and October 9, 2007-well after the expiration of the June 14, 2007, deadline by which he had to file a grievance regarding the incident giving rise to this action. (See Dkt. No. 18, Plf.'s Affid., ¶¶ 5[D]-[H].) Thus, it is impossible for this misconduct to have been the reason that Plaintiff chose not to file a grievance against Defendant between May 31, 2007, and June 14, 2007.

3. "Special Circumstances" Justifying Failure to Exhaust

With regard to the third inquiry (i.e., whether Plaintiff has plausibly alleged special circumstances justifying his failure to comply with the administrative procedural requirements), I answer this question in the negative, also based on even the most liberal of constructions of Plaintiff's Complaint. Plaintiff has not alleged that, during the time in question, he was laboring under any sort of physical infirmity, or reasonable misunderstanding of the law, which impeded his attempts to complain. Indeed, he has not even alleged, in his Complaint, that he attempted to complain, for example, by sending a letter of complaint directly to CORC, the DOCS' Commissioner, or a Deputy Commissioner (which prisoners occasionally do in analogous circumstances).

15 Moreover, even if (out of special solicitude to Plaintiff) I were to consider the factual allegations contained in Plaintiff's three aborted efforts at filing an amended or supplemental pleading, and the factual allegations contained in Plaintiff's papers in opposition to Defendant's motion, I would reach the same conclusion. None of those documents allege facts plausibly suggesting the existence of any special circumstances justifying Plaintiff's failure to pursue (and exhaust) his administrative remedies during the time in question (i.e., between the occurrence of the event in question, on May 31, 2007, and the expiration of the deadline by which to file a grievance 14 days later, on or about June 14, 2007). (See Dkt. No. 6 [Plf.'s Letter filed 6/22/07]; Dkt. No. 12 [Plf.'s Letter filed 8/8/07]; Dkt. No. 15 [Plf.'s Letter filed 8/29/07]; Dkt. No. 18 [Plf.'s Opposition Papers].) I note that Plaintiff swears that, between June 3, 2007, and June 5, 2007, he wrote letters of complaint to both the New York State Inspector General's Office, and the Superintendent of Greene C.F., regarding the incident on May 31, 2007. (See Dkt. No. 18, Plf.'s Affid., ¶¶ 5[B]-[C].) However, Plaintiff does not explain why the "letter of complaint" that he sent to the superintendent was not in the form of a grievance filed with the Greene C.F. IGRC, as required by 7 N.Y.C.R.R. § 701.2. Nor does Plaintiff explain why he failed to write to CORC, following whatever action the superintendent did or did not take with respect to the “letter of complaint.” Nor does Plaintiff allege that, during the time in question, he was laboring under any sort of physical infirmity, or reasonable misunderstanding of the law, which impeded his attempts to file a formal grievance with the Greene C.F. IGRC, or at least write a letter of complaint to CORC.

For all of these reasons, I recommend that, in the alternative, the Court dismiss Plaintiff's Complaint for alleging facts plausibly suggesting that he failed to exhaust his available administrative remedies following the incident on May 31, 2007.

C. Second Alternative Ground for Dismissal: Misrepresentations to Court

As stated above in this Report-Recommendation, Plaintiff has, in a sworn statement, falsely stated to the Court that, when the incident in question occurred on May 31, 2007, Plaintiff was aware that a fellow inmate (Shakeith Pigford) had been retaliated against for having filed a grievance against Officer Turriglio—a temporal impossibility since the event giving rise to Inmate Pigford's grievance had not even yet occurred as of May 31, 2007. (See, supra, Part III.B.2. of this Report-Recommendation.) This is not the only misrepresentation that Plaintiff has made to the Court.

As of the date he filed this action on June 16, 2007, Plaintiff had acquired two “strikes” for purposes of 28 U.S.C. § 1915's so-called “three strikes rule.” See McCloud v. D.O. C., 06-CV-14278 (S.D.N.Y.) (prisoner civil rights case filed by an inmate bearing New York City Department of Correction Identification Number 141-06-05253, with a date of birth of 9/1/74; dismissed sua sponte for failure to state a claim pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1915 on 12/8/06); McCloud v. D.O.C., 06-CV-14279 (S.D.N.Y.) (prisoner civil rights case by an inmate bearing New York City Department of Correction Identification Number 141-06-05253, with a date of birth of 9/1/74; dismissed sua sponte for failure to state a claim pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1915 on 12/8/06).

*16 Plaintiff failed to disclose these two cases in Paragraph 5 of his sworn Complaint, where he checked the box labeled “Yes” next to the question “Have you ever filed any other lawsuits in any state or federal court relating to his imprisonment?” but then listed only one such lawsuit (i.e., McCloud v. Buckhalter, 07-CV-4576 [S.D.N.Y.]) in response to the form complaint's directive: “If your answer to 5(a) is YES you must describe any and all lawsuits, currently pending or closed, in the space provided on the next page.”(Dkt. No. 1, ¶ 5 [Plf.'s Compl.].)

While a plaintiff is under no duty to provide this information in order to state an actionable civil rights claim, here, Plaintiff chose to answer a question on a form complaint calling for such information, and swore to the truthfulness of his answer. There is simply no excuse for making such a sworn misrepresentation to the Court. District Judges from this Court have indicated a willingness to sanction pro se litigants for making such misrepresentations. See, e.g., Standley v. Dennison, 05-CV-1033, 2007 WL 2406909, at *13-14 (N.D.N.Y. Aug. 21, 2007) (Sharpe, J., adopting, on de novo review, Report-Recommendation by Lowe, M.J., premised on alternative ground that the plaintiff should be sanctioned for making a material misrepresentation to the Court in his complaint); Muniz v. Goord, 04-CV-0479, 2007 WL 2027912, at *6 & n. 32 (N.D.N.Y. July 11, 2007) (McAvoy, J., adopting, on plain-error review, Report-Recommendation by Lowe, M.J., premised on alternative ground that the plaintiff should be sanctioned for making a material misrepresentation to the Court in his complaint) [collecting cases]. I have considered less drastic sanctions and have found them to be inadequate to curb this particular intentional and egregious litigation abuse.

For these reasons, I recommend that, in the alternative, the Court dismiss Plaintiff's Complaint sua sponte, under Fed.R.Civ.P. 11, as a sanction for making multiple sworn misrepresentations to the Court.

D. Third Alternative Ground for Dismissal: Unavailability of Relief Requested

As stated above in Part I.A. of this Report-Recommendation, as a result of the misconduct alleged in this action, Plaintiff is requesting three forms of relief: (1) a court order “secur[ing] [Plaintiff's] safety and mak[ing] sure there will be [] no[] retaliation from coworkers or staff”; (2) a court order directing that a search be performed of Defendant's “file to see if [a]ny complaints or grievances [have] been filed against him in the past concerning brutality”; and (3) “$1,000,000 for mental anguish and distress.”(Dkt. No. 1, ¶¶ 7, 9 [Plf.'s Compl.].)

I find that the first two forms of relief are able to be, and should be, denied on the alternative ground that Plaintiff has alleged no facts plausibly suggesting his entitlement to either form of relief. The first form of relief, which is essentially an injunction or temporary restraining order, must be supported by documents showing cause for the granting of the requested relief-which Plaintiff's Complaint does not do. See Fed.R.Civ.P. 65; N.D.N.Y. L.R. 65.1, 65.2, 7.1(f), 7.1(b) (2), 7.1(e). The second form of relief is merely a vehicle by which Plaintiff may embark on a fishing expedition to obtain facts that would enable him to assert an actionable legal claim against Defendant. Rule 8 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure-which requires that a plaintiff must assert enough facts in his complaint (and thus be in possession of such basic facts before he files the complaint) to give a defendant fair notice of the claim against him-does not permit such a "bootstrap" pleading.³⁵ Nor does Plaintiff even provide cause in support of what is essentially a request for discovery.

*17 For these reasons, I recommend that, in the alternative, the Court dismiss Plaintiff's Complaint sua sponte, under 28 U.S.C. § 1915(e)(2)(B)(ii) and 28 U.S.C. § 1915A(b),³⁶ to the extent that the Complaint requests, as relief for the constitutional violation(s) alleged, (1) a court order "secur[ing] [Plaintiff's] safety and mak[ing] sure there will be [no] retaliation from coworkers or staff," and (2) a court order directing that a search be performed of Defendant's "file to see if [a]ny complaints or grievances [have] been filed against him in the past concerning brutality." (Dkt. No. 1, ¶¶ 7, 9 [Plf.'s Compl.].)

ACCORDINGLY, for the reasons stated above, it is RECOMMENDED that Defendants' motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim (Dkt. No. 42) be GRANTED; and it is further

RECOMMENDED that, when dismissing Plaintiff's Complaint (Dkt. No. 1), the Court state that the dismissal constitutes a "strike" for purposes of 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g); and it is further RECOMMENDED that the Court certify in writing, for purposes of 28 U.S.C. § 1915(a)(3), that any appeal taken from the Court's final judgment in this action would not be taken in good faith.

Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1), the parties have ten (10) days within which to file written objections to the foregoing report. Such objections shall be filed with the Clerk of the Court. FAILURE TO OBJECT TO THIS REPORT WITHIN TEN (10) DAYS WILL PRECLUDE APPELLATE REVIEW. Roldan v. Racette, 984 F.2d 85, 89 (2d Cir.1993) (citing Small v. Sec 'y of Health and Human Servs., 892 F.2d 15 [2d Cir.1989]); 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1); Fed.R.Civ.P. 72, 6(a), 6(e).

DECISION and ORDER

Hon. GLENN T. SUDDABY, District Judge.

*1 The trial in this prisoner civil rights action, filed pro se by James Murray ("Plaintiff") pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983, began with an evidentiary hearing before the undersigned on March 1, 2010, regarding the affirmative defense of seven employees of the New York State Department of Correctional Services-R. Palmer, S. Griffin, M. Terry, F. Englese, Sergeant Edwards, K. Bump, and K.H. Smith ("Defendants")-that Plaintiff failed to exhaust his available administrative remedies, as required by the Prison Litigation Reform Act, before filing this action on August 14, 2003. At the hearing, documentary evidence was admitted, and testimony was taken of Plaintiff as well as Defendants' witnesses (Darin Williams, Sally Reams, and Jeffery Hale), whom Plaintiff was able to cross-examine through pro bono trial counsel. At the conclusion of the hearing, the undersigned indicated that a written decision would follow. This is that written decision. For the reasons stated below, Plaintiff's Second Amended Complaint is dismissed because of his failure to exhaust his available administrative remedies.

I. RELEVANT LEGAL STANDARD

The Prison Litigation Reform Act of 1995 ("PLRA") requires that prisoners who bring suit in federal court must first exhaust their available administrative remedies: "No action shall be brought with respect to prison conditions under § 1983... by a prisoner confined in any jail, prison, or other correctional facility until such administrative remedies as are available are exhausted."42 U.S.C. § 1997e. The PLRA was enacted "to reduce the quantity and improve the quality of prisoner suits" by "afford[ing] corrections officials time and opportunity to address complaints internally before allowing the initiation of a federal case."Porter v. Nussle, 534 U.S. 516, 524-25, 122 S.Ct. 983, 152 L.Ed.2d 12 (2002). In this regard, exhaustion serves two major purposes. First, it protects "administrative agency authority" by giving the agency "an opportunity to correct its own mistakes with respect to the programs it administers before it is haled into federal court, and it discourages disregard of the agency's procedures."Woodford v. Ngo, 548 U.S. 81, 89, 126 S.Ct. 2378, 165 L.Ed.2d 368 (2006). Second, exhaustion promotes efficiency because (a) "[c]laims generally can be resolved much more quickly and economically in proceedings before an agency than in litigation in federal court," and (b) "even where a controversy survives administrative review, exhaustion of the administrative procedure may produce a useful record for subsequent judicial consideration."Woodford, 548 U.S. at 89. "[T]he PLRA's exhaustion requirement applies to all inmate suits about prison life, whether they involve general circumstances or particular episodes, and whether they allege excessive force or some other wrong."Porter, 534 U.S. at 532.

In accordance with the PLRA, the New York State Department of Correctional Services ("DOCS") has made available a well-established inmate grievance program. 7 N.Y.C.R.R. § 701.7. Generally, the DOCS Inmate Grievance Program ("IGP") involves the following three-step procedure for the filing of grievances. 7 N.Y.C.R.R. §§ 701.5, 701.6\(g\), 701.7.¹ First, an inmate must file a complaint with the facility's IGP clerk within a certain number of days of the alleged occurrence.² If a grievance complaint form is not readily available, a complaint may be submitted on plain paper. A representative of the facility's inmate grievance resolution committee ("IGRC") has a certain number of days from receipt of the grievance to informally resolve the issue. If there is no such informal resolution, then the full IGRC conducts a hearing within a certain number of days of receipt of the grievance, and issues a written decision within a certain number of days of the conclusion of the hearing. Second, a grievant may appeal the IGRC decision to the facility's superintendent within a certain number of days of receipt of the IGRC's written decision. The superintendent is to issue a written decision within a certain number of days of receipt of the grievant's appeal. Third, a grievant may appeal to the central office review committee ("CORC") within a certain number of days of receipt of the superintendent's written decision. CORC is to render a written decision within a certain number of days of receipt of the appeal.

*2 Moreover, there is an expedited process for the review of complaints of inmate harassment or other misconduct by corrections officers or prison employees. 7 N.Y.C.R.R. § 701.8. In the event the inmate seeks expedited review, he or she may report the misconduct to the employee's supervisor. The inmate then files a grievance under the normal procedures outlined above, but all grievances alleging employee misconduct are given a grievance number, and sent immediately to the superintendent for review. Under the regulations, the superintendent or his designee shall determine immediately whether the allegations, if true, would state a "bona fide" case of harassment, and if so, shall initiate an investigation of the complaint, either "in-house," by the Inspector General's Office, or by the New York State Police Bureau of Criminal Investigations. An appeal of the adverse decision of the superintendent may be taken to the CORC as in the regular grievance procedure. A similar "special" procedure is provided for claims of discrimination against an inmate. 7 N.Y.C.R.R. § 701.9.

It is important to note that these procedural requirements contain several safeguards. For example, if an inmate could not file such a complaint within the required time period after the alleged occurrence, he or she could apply to the facility's IGP Supervisor for an exception to the time limit based on mitigating circumstances. If that application was denied, the inmate could file a complaint complaining that the application was wrongfully denied.³ Moreover, any failure by the IGRC or the superintendent to timely respond to a grievance or first-level appeal, respectively, can-and must-be appealed to the next level, including CORC, to complete the grievance process.⁴ There appears to be a conflict in case law regarding whether the IGRC's nonresponse must be appealed to the superintendent where the plaintiff's grievance was never assigned a grievance number.⁵ After carefully reviewing this case law, the Court finds that the weight of authority appears to answer this question in the affirmative.⁶ The Court notes that, if the plaintiff adequately describes, in his appeal to the superintendent, the substance of his grievance (or if the plaintiff attaches, to his appeal, a copy of his grievance), it would appear that there is something for the superintendent to review.

It is also important to note that DOCS has a separate and distinct administrative appeal process for inmate misbehavior hearings:

- A. For Tier III superintendent hearings, the appeal is to the Commissioner's designee, Donald Selsky, D.O.C.S. Director of Special Housing/Inmate Disciplinary Program, pursuant to 8 N.Y.C.R.R. § 254.8;
- B. For Tier II disciplinary hearings, the appeal is to the facility superintendent pursuant to 7 N.Y.C.R.R. § 253.8; and
- C. For Tier I violation hearings, the appeal is to the facility superintendent or a designee pursuant to 7 N.Y.C.R.R. § 252.6.

*3 "An individual decision or disposition of any current or subsequent program or procedure having a written appeal mechanism which extends review to outside the facility shall be considered nongrievable."7 N.Y.C.R.R. § 701.3\(e\)\(1\). Similarly, "an individual decision or disposition resulting from a disciplinary proceeding ... is not grievable."7 N.Y.C.R.R. § 701.3\(e\)\(2\). However, "[t]he policies, rules, and procedures of any program or procedure, including those above, are grievable."7 N.Y.C.R.R. § 701.3\(e\)\(3\); see also N.Y. Dep't Corr. Serv. Directive No. 4040 at III.E.

Generally, if a prisoner has failed to follow each of the required three steps of the above-described grievance procedure prior to commencing litigation, he has failed to exhaust his administrative remedies. Ruggiero v. County of Orange, 467 F.3d 170, 175 (2d Cir.2006) (citing Porter, 534 U.S. at 524). However, the Second Circuit has held that a three-part inquiry is appropriate where a defendant contends that a prisoner has failed to exhaust his available administrative remedies, as required by the PLRA. Hemphill

v. State of New York, 380 F.3d 680, 686, 691 (2d Cir.2004), accord, Ruggiero, 467 F.3d at 175. First, “the court must ask whether [the] administrative remedies [not pursued by the prisoner] were in fact ‘available’ to the prisoner.” Hemphill, 380 F.3d at 686 (citation omitted). Second, if those remedies were available, “the court should ... inquire as to whether [some or all of] the defendants may have forfeited the affirmative defense of non-exhaustion by failing to raise or preserve it ... or whether the defendants' own actions inhibiting the [prisoner's] exhaustion of remedies may estop one or more of the defendants from raising the plaintiff's failure to exhaust as a defense.” Id. [citations omitted]. Third, if the remedies were available and some of the defendants did not forfeit, and were not estopped from raising, the non-exhaustion defense, “the Court should consider whether ‘special circumstances’ have been plausibly alleged that justify the prisoner's failure to comply with the administrative procedural requirements.” Id. [citations and internal quotations omitted].

With regard to this third inquiry, the Court notes that, under certain circumstances, an inmate may exhaust his administrative remedies by raising his claim during a related disciplinary proceeding. Giano v. Goord, 380 F.3d 670, 678-79 (2d Cir.2004); Johnson v. Testman, 380 F.3d 691, 697 (2d Cir.2004).⁷ However, in essence, the circumstances in question include instances in which (1) the inmate reasonably believed that his “only available remedy” was to raise his claim as part of a tier disciplinary hearing,⁸ and (2) the inmate articulated and pursued his claim in the disciplinary proceeding in a manner that afforded prison officials the time and opportunity to thoroughly investigate that claim.⁹ Some district courts have found the first requirement not present where (a) there was nothing objectively confusing about the DOCS regulations governing the grievability of his claim,¹⁰ (b) the inmate was specifically informed that the claim in question was grievable,¹¹ (c) the inmate separately pursued the proper grievance process by filing a grievance with the IGRC,¹² (d) by initially alleging that he did appeal his claim to CORC (albeit without proof), the inmate has indicated that, during the time in question, he understood the correct procedure for exhaustion,¹³ and/or (e) before and after the incident in question, the inmate pursued similar claims through filing a grievance with the IGRC.¹⁴ Other district courts have found the second requirement not present where (a) the inmate's mention of his claim during the disciplinary hearing was so insubstantial that prison officials did not subsequently investigate that claim,¹⁵ and/or (b) the inmate did not appeal his disciplinary hearing conviction.¹⁶

*4 Finally, two points bear mentioning regarding exhaustion. First, given that non-exhaustion is an affirmative defense, the defendant bears the burden of showing that a prisoner has failed to exhaust his available administrative remedies. See, e.g., Sease v. Phillips, 06-CV-3663, 2008 WL 2901966, *4 (S.D.N.Y. July 25, 2008). However, once a defendant has adduced reliable evidence that administrative remedies were available to Plaintiff and that Plaintiff nevertheless failed to exhaust those administrative remedies, Plaintiff must then “counter” Defendants' assertion by showing exhaustion, unavailability, estoppel, or “special circumstances.”¹⁷

Second, the Court recognizes that there is case law from within the Second Circuit supporting the view that the exhaustion issue is one of fact, which should be determined by a jury, rather than by the Court.¹⁸ However, there is also case law from within the Second Circuit supporting the view that the exhaustion issue is one of law, which should be determined by the Court, rather than by a jury.¹⁹ After carefully reviewing the case law, the Court finds that the latter case law—which includes cases from the Second Circuit and this District—outweighs the former case law.²⁰ (The Court notes that the latter case law includes cases from the Second Circuit and this District.)²¹ More importantly, the Court finds that the latter cases are better reasoned than are the former cases. In particular, the Court relies on the reasons articulated by the Second Circuit in 1999: “Where administrative remedies are created by statute or regulation affecting the governance of prisons, ... the answer depends on the meaning of the relevant statute or regulation.” Snider v. Melindez, 199 F.3d 108, 113-14 (2d Cir.1999). The Court relies also on the several reasons articulated by Judge Richard A. Posner in a recent Seventh Circuit decision: most notably, the fact that the exhaustion-of-administrative-remedies inquiry does not address the merits of, or deadlines governing, the plaintiff's claim but an issue of “judicial traffic control” (i.e., what forum a dispute is to be resolved in), which is never an issue for a jury but always an issue for a judge. See Pavey v. Conley, 544 F.3d 739, 740-42 (7th Cir.2008) (en banc), cert. denied, --- U.S. ---, 129 S.Ct. 1620, 173 L.Ed.2d 995 (2009). The Court notes that the First, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh Circuits appear to agree with the ultimate conclusion of the Second and Seventh

Circuits that the exhaustion issue is properly decided by a judge, not a jury.²²

II. ANALYSIS

As an initial matter, Plaintiff argues that he exhausted his administrative remedies regarding the claims at issue in this action, by filing a grievance regarding those claims, and then appealing the non-response to that grievance all the way to CORC. Because the Court rejects this argument based on the evidence adduced at the hearing, the Court proceeds to an analysis of the three-step exhaustion inquiry established by the Second Circuit.

A. Availability of Administrative Remedies

*5 New York prison inmates are subject to an Inmate Grievance Program established by DOCS and recognized as an “available” remedy for purposes of the PLRA. See Minges v. Nelson, 96-CV-5396, 2004 WL 324898, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. Feb.20, 2004) (citing Mojias v. Johnson, 351 F.3d 606 (2d Cir.2003), and Snider v. Melindez, 199 F.3d 108, 112-13 [2d Cir.1999]). There are different circumstances under which the grievance procedure is deemed not to have been available to an inmate plaintiff. Hemphill, 380 F.3d at 687-88. For example, courts have found unavailability “where plaintiff is unaware of the grievance procedures or did not understand it or where defendants’ behavior prevents plaintiff from seeking administrative remedies.” Hargrove v. Riley, 04-CV-4587, 2007 WL 389003, at *8 (E.D.N.Y. Jan.31, 2007) (internal citations omitted). When testing the availability of administrative remedies in the face of claims that undue influence from prison workers has caused a plaintiff inmate to forego the formal grievance process, courts employ an objective test, examining whether “a similarly situated individual of ordinary firmness [would] have deemed them available.” Hemphill, 380F.3d at 688 (quotations and citations omitted); see Hargrove, 2007 WL 389003, at *8.

Here, after carefully considering the evidence submitted at the hearing in this action on March 1, 2010, the Court finds that administrative remedies were “available” to Plaintiff during the time in question. The Court makes this finding for the following four reasons.

First, in his sworn Complaint (which has the force and effect of an affidavit), Plaintiff stated, “Yes,” in response to the question, “Is there a prisoner grievance procedure at this facility .”(Dkt. No. 1, ¶ 4.a.)²³ Second, both Darin

Williams (the corrections officer in charge of the special housing unit during the relevant time period) and Sally Reams (the Inmate grievance program supervisor during the relevant time period) testified credibly, at the exhaustion hearing, that there was a working grievance program at Great Meadow Correctional Facility during the time in question. (Hearing Tr. at 10, 12, 14-21, 40-54.) Third, Plaintiff testified, at the exhaustion hearing that, during this approximate time period (the August to November of 2000), he filed at least three other grievances Great Meadow Correctional Facility, to which he received responses from the inmate grievance clerk, the Superintendent, and CORC. (Id. at 154, 157-58, 169-70; see also Hearing Exs. D-4, D-5, P-8, P-13, P-14.)²⁴ Fourth, the Court finds the relevant portions of Plaintiff’s hearing testimony regarding the grievance at issue in this action to be incredible due to various omissions and inconsistencies in that testimony, and his demeanor during the hearing. (Id. at 127-34.)²⁵

B. Estoppel

After carefully considering the evidence submitted at the hearing in this action on March 1, 2010, the Court finds that Defendants did not forfeit the affirmative defense of non-exhaustion by failing to raise or preserve it, or by taking actions that inhibited Plaintiff’s exhaustion of remedies. For example, Defendants’ Answer timely asserted this affirmative defense. (Dkt. No. 35, ¶ 17.) Moreover, Plaintiff failed to offer any credible evidence at the hearing that Defendant s in any way interfered with Plaintiff’s ability to file grievances during the time in question. (Hearing Tr. at 127-34, 157-58, 169-70.) Generally, a defendant in an action may not be estopped from asserting the affirmative defense of failure to exhaust administrative remedies based on the actions (or inactions) of other individuals.²⁶

C. Special Circumstances

*6 There are a variety of special circumstances that may excuse a prisoner’s failure to exhaust his available administrative remedies, including (but not limited to) the following:

(1) The facility’s “failure to provide grievance deposit boxes, denial of forms and writing materials, and a refusal to accept or forward plaintiff’s appeals-which effectively rendered the grievance appeal process unavailable to him.” Sandlin v. Poole, 575 F.Supp.2d 484, 488 (W.D.N.Y.2008) (noting that “[s]uch facts support a finding that defendants are estopped from relying on the exhaustion defense, as well as “special circumstances” excusing plaintiff’s failure to exhaust”);

(2) Other individuals’ “threats [to the plaintiff] of physical retaliation and reasonable misinterpretation of the statutory requirements of the appeals process.” Clarke v. Thornton, 515 F.Supp.2d 435, 439 (S.D.N.Y.2007) (noting also that “[a] correctional facility’s failure to make forms or administrative opinions “available” to the prisoner does not relieve the inmate from this burden.”); and

(3) When plaintiff tries “to exhaust prison grievance procedures[, and] although each of his efforts, alone, may not have fully complied, together his efforts sufficiently informed prison officials of his grievance and led to a thorough investigation of the grievance.” Hairston v. LaMarche, 05-CV-6642, 2006 WL 2309592, at *8 (S.D.N.Y. Aug.10, 2006).

After carefully considering the issue, the Court finds that there exists, in this action, no “special circumstances” justifying Plaintiff’s failure to comply with the administrative procedural requirements. Construed with the utmost of special leniency, Plaintiff’s hearing testimony, and his counsel’s cross-examination of Defendants’ witnesses, raise the specter of two excuses for not having exhausted his available administrative remedies before he (allegedly) mailed his Complaint in this action on August 14, 2003:(1) that exhaustion was not possible because of the administrative procedures that DOCS has implemented regarding inmate grievances; and/or (2) that an unspecified number of unidentified corrections officers (who are not Defendants in this action) somehow interfered with the delivery of his grievance and appeals. For example, Plaintiff testified at the exhaustion hearing that he handed his grievance and appeals to various corrections officers making rounds where he was being housed, and that, if his grievance and/or appeals were never received, it must have been because his letters were not properly delivered. (Hearing Tr. at 126-36.)

With regard to these excuses, the Court finds that, while these excuses could constitute special circumstances justifying an inmate’s failure to exhaust his available administrative remedies in certain situations,²⁷ these excuses are not available to Plaintiff in the current action because, as stated in Part II.A. of this Decision and Order, the credible testimony before the Court indicates that Plaintiff did not hand his grievance and appeals to various corrections officers with regard to the claims in question. See, supra, Part II.A. of this Decision and Order.²⁸

*7 For all these reasons, the Court finds that Plaintiff’s proffered excuse does not constitute a special circumstance justifying his failure to exhaust his available administrative remedies before filing this action.

ACCORDINGLY, it is

ORDERED that Plaintiff’s Second Amended Complaint (Dkt. No. 10) is DISMISSED in its entirety without prejudice for failure to exhaust his available administrative remedies before filing this action, pursuant to the PLRA; and it is further ORDERED that the Clerk of the Court shall enter judgment for Defendants and close the file in this action.

- 7 The Court recognizes that the Supreme Court's decision in Woodford v. Ngo, 548 U.S. 81, 126 S.Ct. 2378, 165 L.Ed.2d 368 (2006), may have changed the law regarding possible exceptions to the exhaustion requirement (and thus the possibility that exhaustion might occur through the disciplinary process). Specifically, in Woodford, the Supreme Court held that the PLRA required "proper" exhaustion as a prerequisite to filing a section 1983 action in federal court. Woodford, 548 U.S. at 93. "Proper" exhaustion means that the inmate must complete the administrative review process in accordance with the applicable procedural rules, as a prerequisite to bringing suit in federal court. Id. at 88-103 (emphasis added). It is unclear whether Woodford has overruled any decisions that recognize "exceptions" to the exhaustion requirement. Out of special solicitude to Plaintiff, the Court will assume that Woodford has not overruled the Second Circuit's Giano-Testman line of cases.

[citation omitted]. The Court joins the above-described two requirements in the conjunctive because the Second Circuit has recognized that mere notice to prison officials through informal channels, without more, does not suffice to satisfy the PLRA procedural exhaustion requirement. 23 The Court notes that, in his Complaint, Plaintiff also swore that his “grievance was denied.” (Dkt. No. 1, ¶ 4.b.ii.) However, during the exhaustion hearing, Plaintiff testified that he never received a response to his grievance from any member of DOCS.

24 In addition, the documentary evidence adduced at the hearing establishes that, in actuality, Plaintiff filed ten other grievances during this time period (and several appeals from the denials of those grievances). The first of these grievances (Grievance Number GM-30651-00), filed on August 25, 2000, regarded Plaintiff's request for medications. (Hearing Exs. D-4, D-5.) The second of these grievances (Grievance Number GM-30691-00), filed on September 1, 2000, regarded Plaintiff's request for copies. (Hearing Ex. D-4.) The third of these grievances (Grievance Number GM-30729-00), filed on September 11, 2000, regarded the use of full restrains against Plaintiff. (Id.; see also Hearing Ex. P-14.) The fourth of these grievances, filed on October 19, 2000 (Grievance Number GM-30901-00), regarded Plaintiff's request for the repair of his cell sink. (Hearing Exs. D-4, D-5.) The fifth of these grievances (Grievance Number GM-30901-00), also filed on October 19, 2000, regarded Plaintiff's request for the clean up of his cell. (Hearing Ex. D-4.) The sixth of these grievances (Grievance Number GM-31040-00), filed on November 17, 2000, regarded the review of records. (Id.) The seventh of these grievances (Grievance Number GM-31041-00), also filed on November 17, 2000, regarded Plaintiff's request for medical attention. (Id.; see also Hearing Ex. P-13) The eighth of these grievances (Grievance Number GM-31048-00), filed on November 20, 2000, regarded the rotation of books. (Hearing Ex. D-14) The ninth of these grievances (Grievance Number GM-31040-00), filed on November 27, 2000, regarded the review of records (and was consolidated with his earlier grievance on the same subject).(Id.) The tenth of these grievances (Grievance Number GM-31070-00), filed on November 27, 2000, regarded Plaintiff's eyeglasses. (Id.)

25 For example, Plaintiff was unable to identify the corrections officers to whom he handed his grievance and appeals for mailing. (Id. at 127-34.) Moreover, Plaintiff did not convincingly explain why the grievance and appeals at issue in this action did not make it through the mailing process, while his numerous other grievances and appeals did make it through the mailing process. (Id. at 154-171.) In addition, Plaintiff acknowledged that it was his belief, during this time period, that an inmate was not required to exhaust his administrative remedies in matters involving the use of excessive force; yet, according to Plaintiff, he decided to exhaust his administrative remedies on his excessive force claim anyway. (Id. at 148-49.)

26 See Ruggiero v. County of Orange, 467 F.3d 170, 178 (2d Cir.2006) (holding that defendants were not estopped from asserting the affirmative defense of non-exhaustion where the conduct plaintiff alleged kept him from filing a grievance—that he was not given the manual on how to grieve—was not attributable to the defendants and plaintiff “point[ed] to no affirmative act by prison officials that would have prevented him from pursuing administrative remedies”); Murray v.

Palmer, 03-CV-1010, 2008 WL 2522324, at *19 (N.D.N.Y. June 20, 2008) (Hurd, J., adopting Report-Recommendation of Lowe, M.J.) (“I have found no evidence sufficient to create a genuine issue of triable fact on the issue of whether Defendants, through their own actions, have inhibited Plaintiff exhaustion of remedies so as to estop one or more Defendants from raising Plaintiff’s failure to exhaust as a defense.”) [emphasis in original]; Shaheen v. McIntyre, 05-CV-0173, 2007 WL 3274835, at *16 (N.D.N.Y. Nov.5, 2007) (McAvoy, J. adopting Report-Recommendation of Lowe, M.J.) (finding defendants not estopped from raising Plaintiff’s non-exhaustion as a defense based on plaintiff’s allegation “that [he] was inhibited (through non-responsiveness) by [] unnamed officials at Cocksackie C.F.’s Inmate Grievance Program (or perhaps the Grievance Review Committee), and Cocksackie C.F. Deputy Superintendent of Security Graham” because plaintiff’s complaint and “opposition papers ... fail to contain any evidence placing blame on Defendants for the (alleged) failure to address his grievances and complaint letters”); Smith v. Woods, 03-CV-0480, 2006 WL 1133247, at *16 (N.D.N.Y. Apr.24, 2006) (Hurd, J. adopting Report-Recommendation of Lowe, M.J.) (finding that defendants are not estopped from relying on the defense of non-exhaustion because “no evidence (or even an argument) exists that any Defendant ... inhibit[ed] Plaintiff’s exhaustion of remedies; Plaintiff merely argues that a non-party to this action (the IGRC Supervisor) advised him that his allegedly defective bunk bed was not a grievable matter.”); cf. Warren v. Purcell, 03-CV-8736, 2004 WL 1970642, at *6 (S.D.N.Y. Sept.3, 2004) (finding that conflicting statements [offered by a non-party]-that the prisoner needed to refile [his grievance] and that the prisoner should await the results of DOCS’s investigation-estopped the defendants from relying on the defense on non-exhaustion, or “[a]lternatively, ... provided ... a ‘special circumstance’ under which the plaintiff’s failure to pursue the appellate procedures specified in the IGP was amply justified.”); Brown v. Koenigsmann, 01-CV-10013, 2005 WL 1925649, at *1-2 (S.D.N.Y. Aug.10, 2005) (“Plaintiff does not assert that Dr. Koenigsmann personally was responsible for [the failure of anyone from the Inmate Grievance Program to address plaintiff’s appeal]. [However,] Ziemba [v. Wezner], 366 F.3d 161 (2d Cir.2004)] does not require a showing that Dr. Koenigsmann is personally responsible for plaintiff’s failure to complete exhaustion [in order for Dr. Koenigsmann to be estopped from asserting the affirmative defense of failure to exhaust administrative remedies], as long as someone employed by DOCS is. If that reading of Ziemba is incorrect, however, ... then the circumstances here must be regarded as special, and as justifying the incompleteness of exhaustion, since a decision by CORC is hardly something plaintiff could have accomplished on his own.”).

27 See, e.g., Sandlin v. Poole, 575 F.Supp.2d 484, 488 (W.D.N.Y.2008) (noting that “refusal to accept or forward plaintiff’s appeals ... effectively render[s] the grievance appeal process unavailable to him”).

28 The Court notes that, even if Plaintiff did (as he testified) hand to a corrections officer for mailing a letter to the Superintendent on September 13, 2000, appealing from the IGRC’s failure to decide his grievance of August 22, 2000, within nine working days (i.e., by September 5, 2000), it appears that such an appeal would have been filed two days too late under DOCS Directive 4040, which requires that appeal to be filed within four working days of the IGRC’s failure to decide his grievance (i.e., by September 11, 2000). (See Hearing Tr. 127-34; Hearing Ex. P-1, at 5-7 [attaching ¶¶ V.A, V.B. of DOCS Directive 4040, dated 6/8/98].)

ORDER and REPORT-RECOMMENDATION

ANDREW T. BAXTER, United States Magistrate Judge.

*1 This matter has been referred to me for Report and Recommendation, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636(b) and Local Rules N.D.N.Y. 72.3(c), by the Honorable Thomas J. McAvoy, Senior United States District Judge.

In this civil rights complaint, plaintiff alleges that defendant Rosner denied plaintiff constitutionally adequate medical care when he refused to prescribe orthopedic boots for plaintiff. (Compl. ¶ 6; Dkt. No. 1). Plaintiff subsequently filed a substantial number of documents in support of his complaint. (Dkt. No. 13). Plaintiff seeks injunctive as well as substantial monetary relief. (Compl. ¶ 8).

Presently before the court is defendant's motion to dismiss this action pursuant to Fed.R.Civ.P. 12(b)(6). (Dkt. No. 16). Plaintiff has responded in opposition to the motion to dismiss and has filed a separate motion for appointment of counsel. (Dkt.Nos.19, 20). For the following reasons this court will recommend granting defendant's motion and dismissing this action without prejudice to plaintiff re-filing the action. The court will also order the denial of plaintiff's motion for appointment of counsel without prejudice.

DISCUSSIONI. Facts

In his complaint, plaintiff alleges that he is a Type II diabetic, who has had skin grafts taken from the soles of his feet, leaving him with abnormally thin skin on the bottom of his feet. (Compl. Facts ¶¶ 2–3). Plaintiff states that he is in constant discomfort due to his condition, and in May of 2011, while he was incarcerated at Oneida Correctional Facility, he was referred to Dr. Baldauf, a podiatrist, who determined that plaintiff suffered from plantar fasciitis. (Id. ¶¶ 8–9). Plaintiff states that Dr. Baldauf recommended that plaintiff be fitted for orthopedic boots. (Id. ¶ 11). Impressions of plaintiff's feet were taken while he was still at Oneida, and the boots were ordered in July of 2011. (Id. ¶ 12).

Prior to receiving his boots, plaintiff was transferred to Watertown Correctional Facility, where he was examined by defendant Dr. Rosner. (Id. ¶¶ 13–15). Plaintiff states that he made several requests, but was never given the boots. (Id. ¶ 14). Dr. Rosner, who is not a podiatrist, conducted his own examination of plaintiff's feet and determined that plaintiff did not require orthopedic boots. (Id. ¶ 16). Plaintiff claims that the medical records supporting Dr. Baldauf's diagnosis and prescription of orthopedic boots was missing from plaintiff's file. (Id. ¶ 20). Plaintiff believes that defendant Rosner has intentionally destroyed or hidden these records. (Id. ¶ 21).

Plaintiff states that defendant Rosner refused to locate these records, even though plaintiff filed a grievance. (Id. ¶ 22). Plaintiff also claims that defendant Rosner “deflects” all investigations by stating that plaintiff refused new state-issued boots, but never mentions that these “new” boots were not the orthopedic boots that plaintiff had been prescribed at Oneida. (Id. ¶ 23).

II. Motion to DismissA. Legal Standards

*2 To survive dismissal for failure to state a claim, the complaint must contain sufficient factual matter, accepted as true, to state a claim that is “plausible on its face.” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678, 129 S.Ct. 1937, 173 L.Ed.2d 868 (2009) (quoting Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 570, 127 S.Ct. 1955, 167 L.Ed.2d 929 (2007)). “[T]hreadbare recitals of the elements of a cause of action, supported by mere conclusory statements,” do not suffice. Id. (citing Bell Atl. Corp., 550 U.S. at 555). Plaintiff's factual allegations must also be sufficient to give the defendant “fair notice of what the ... claim is and the grounds upon which it rests.’ “ Bell Atl. Corp., 550 U.S. at 555 (citation omitted).

When ruling on a motion to dismiss, the court must accept as true all of the factual allegations contained in the complaint and draw all reasonable inferences in the non-movant's favor. Erickson v. Pardus, 551 U.S. 89, 94, 127 S.Ct. 2197, 167 L.Ed.2d 1081 (2007) (citations omitted); Int'l Audiotext Network, Inc. v. Am. Tel. & Tel. Co., 62 F.3d 69, 71 (2d Cir.1995). The court must heed its particular obligation to treat pro se pleadings with liberality. Phillips v. Girdich, 408 F.3d 124, 128 (2d Cir.2005); Tapia-Ortiz v. Doe, 171 F.3d 150, 152 (2d Cir.1999) (per curiam).

To survive dismissal for failure to state a claim, the complaint must contain sufficient factual matter, accepted as true, to state a claim that is “plausible on its face.” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678, 129 S.Ct. 1937, 173 L.Ed.2d 868 (2009) (quoting Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 570, 127 S.Ct. 1955, 167 L.Ed.2d 929 (2007)). “[T]hreadbare recitals of the elements of a cause of action, supported by mere conclusory statements,” do not suffice. Id. (citing Bell Atl. Corp., 550 U.S. at 555). Plaintiff's factual allegations must also be sufficient to give the defendant “ ‘fair notice of what the ... claim is and the grounds upon which it rests.’ ” Bell Atl. Corp., 550 U.S. at 555 (citation omitted).

When ruling on a motion to dismiss, the court must accept as true all of the factual allegations contained in the complaint and draw all reasonable inferences in the non-movant's favor. Erickson v. Pardus, 551 U.S. 89, 94, 127 S.Ct. 2197, 167 L.Ed.2d 1081 (2007) (citations omitted); Int'l Audiotext Network, Inc. v. Am. Tel. & Tel. Co., 62 F.3d 69, 71 (2d Cir.1995). The court must heed its particular obligation to treat pro se pleadings with liberality. Phillips v. Girdich, 408 F.3d 124, 128 (2d Cir.2005); Tapia-Ortiz v. Doe, 171 F.3d 150, 152 (2d Cir.1999) (per curiam).

In deciding a motion to dismiss, the court may review documents integral to the complaint upon which the plaintiff relied in drafting his pleadings, as well as any documents attached to the complaint as exhibits and any statements or documents incorporated into the complaint by reference. Rothman v. Gregor, 220 F.3d 81, 88 (2d Cir.2000); Int'l Audiotext Network, Inc. v. Am. Tel. & Tel. Co., 62 F.3d at 72 (the court may take into consideration documents referenced in or attached to the complaint in deciding a motion to dismiss, without converting the proceeding to one for summary judgment).

B. Application

*3 Subsequent to the filing of his complaint, plaintiff submitted documents in support of the complaint, including a substantial number of medical records, many of which address the issue of his request for special boots. (Dkt. No. 13). Among the records submitted by plaintiff are his grievance documents. (Dkt. No. 13 at 34–43). Plaintiff also included a complaint that he made to the New York State Department of Health, Office of Professional Misconduct,¹ regarding defendant's denial of orthopedic boots and a complaint to the New York State Office of the Inspector General. (Dkt. No. 13 at 44–47, 48). On October 25, 2012, plaintiff filed a letter, attaching a copy of the final response to his grievance by the Central Office Review Committee. (Dkt. No. 15). This court may consider all of the documents attached to the complaint, or submitted in conjunction with the complaint in its decision, although it need not consider all of them in order to decide this motion.

III. Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies

A. Legal Standards

The Prison Litigation Reform Act, (PLRA), 42 U.S.C. § 1997e(a), requires an inmate to exhaust all available administrative remedies prior to bringing a federal civil rights action. This requirement applies to all inmate suits about prison life, whether they involve general circumstances or particular episodes, and regardless of the subject matter of the claim. See Giano v. Goord, 380 F.3d 670, 675–76 (2d Cir.2004) (citing Porter v. Nussle, 534 U.S. 516, 532, 122 S.Ct. 983, 152 L.Ed.2d 12 (2002) (exhaustion requirement applies, inter alia, to excessive force claims)). Inmates must exhaust their administrative remedies even if they are seeking only money damages that are not available in prison administrative proceedings. Id. at 675.

The failure to exhaust is an affirmative defense that must be raised by the defendants. Jones v. Bock, 549 U.S. 199, 216, 127 S.Ct. 910, 166 L.Ed.2d 798 (2007); Johnson v. Testman, 380 F.3d 691, 695 (2d Cir.2004). As an affirmative defense, it is the defendants' burden to establish that plaintiff failed to meet the exhaustion requirements. See, e.g., Key v. Toussaint, 660 F.Supp.2d 518, 523 (S.D.N.Y.2009) (citations omitted).

The Supreme Court has held that in order to properly exhaust an inmate's administrative remedies, the inmate must complete the administrative review process in accordance with the applicable state rules. Jones v. Bock, 549 U.S. at 218–19 (citing Woodford v. Ngo, 548 U.S. 81, 126 S.Ct. 2378, 165 L.Ed.2d 368 (2006)). In Woodford, the Court held that “proper” exhaustion means that the inmate must complete the administrative review process in accordance with the applicable procedural rules, including deadlines, as a prerequisite to bringing suit in federal court. 548 U.S. at 90–103. In Neal v. Goord, 267 F.3d 116, 122 (2d Cir.2001), overruled on other grounds by Porter v. Nussle, 534 U.S. 516, 122 S.Ct. 983, 152 L.Ed.2d 12 (2002), the Second Circuit specifically held that completion of the administrative review process includes receiving the decision on the final appeal of a grievance prior to filing the federal action.

*4 The grievance procedure in New York is a three-tiered process. The inmate must first file a grievance with the Inmate Grievance Resolution Committee (IGRC). N.Y. Comp. Codes R. & Regs., tit. 7 §§ 701.5(a)(1) and (b). An adverse decision of the IGRC may be appealed to the Superintendent of the Facility. Id. § 701.5(c). Adverse decisions at the Superintendent's level may be appealed to the Central Office Review Committee (CORC). Id. § 701.5(d). The court also notes that the regulations governing the Inmate Grievance Program encourage the inmate to “resolve his/her complaints through the guidance and counseling unit, the program area directly affected, or other existing channels (informal or formal) prior to submitting a grievance.” Id. § 701.3(a) (Inmate's Responsibility).

At the same time that the Second Circuit decided Giano, it also decided four other related cases, clarifying the law in the Second Circuit regarding the PLRA's exhaustion requirement, and specifying various instances in which the requirement could be waived or excused.² Based on these cases, the Second Circuit developed a “three part inquiry” to determine whether an inmate has fulfilled the PLRA exhaustion requirement. See Brownell v. Krom, 446 F.3d 305, 311–12 (2d Cir.2006) (citing Hemphill, 380 F.3d at 686). The inquiry asks (1) whether the administrative remedies were available to the inmate; (2) whether defendants' own actions inhibiting exhaustion estops them from raising the defense; and (3) whether “special circumstances” justify the inmate's failure to comply with the exhaustion requirement. Id.

Although the Second Circuit has not explicitly held that Hemphill remains good law after Woodford, it has applied the three-part inquiry in recent cases. See, e.g., Macias v. Zenk, 495 F.3d 37 (2d Cir.2007); Davis v. State of New York, 311

F. App'x 397, 399 (2d Cir.2009); Snyder v. Whittier, 428 F. App'x 89, 91 (2d Cir.2011).³

2. Application

Defendant argues that plaintiff has admittedly failed to exhaust his administrative remedies. In his complaint, signed on June 10, 2012, and filed on June 13, 2012, plaintiff states that he filed his grievance on April 2, 2012, received an adverse decision and appealed to the Superintendent on April 26, 2012. (Compl.

¶ 4(b)(i)). Plaintiff states that he appealed the Superintendent's decision to the CORC on May 4, 2012, but that “[n]o decision [was] rendered to date.” (Id. ¶ 4(b)(ii)). Plaintiff specifically states that the “appeal [is] still pending at CORC in Albany.” (Id.) Thus, at the time plaintiff filed his complaint, he had not exhausted his administrative remedies.

In the complaint, plaintiff cited no reason for failing to wait for the CORC's decision. The first two Brownell factors do not apply to this case. Plaintiff does not claim that the grievance procedure was not “available,” nor does he claim that defendant's actions prevented plaintiff from utilizing the available procedures. Thus, the court must consider whether there are “special circumstances” justifying plaintiff's failure to exhaust. Based on the facts in this case, the inquiry will be whether there are special circumstances justifying plaintiff's failure to await the CORC decision.

*5 Plaintiff ultimately received a decision by the CORC, dated September 26, 2012, accepting his grievance to the extent that “a referral was submitted for a consult for special boots for the grievant on 9/18/12.” (Dkt. No. 15). Plaintiff filed the CORC decision with the court on October 25, 2012. (Id.) While it is true that this decision means that plaintiff has now exhausted his administrative remedies, the Second Circuit has held that a plaintiff must exhaust his remedies before filing his federal action, and that the court must dismiss plaintiff's complaint notwithstanding his subsequent exhaustion. 267 F.3d at 122–23.

In plaintiff's response to the motion to dismiss, he argues that he did everything he could to exhaust his remedies, and that he should be excused from obtaining the final decision of the CORC because he had already filed the appeal to the CORC when he filed his federal action, and there were “extenuating medical circumstances.” (Dkt. No. 19 at 1–2). The court understands that plaintiff claims he was in pain, however, he received the CORC decision before the court even had an opportunity to rule on any of the merits of his claims. Thus, plaintiff's premature filing of this federal action did not benefit plaintiff or solve his medical problem. The CORC noted that plaintiff was referred for his medical boots in September of 2012. In fact, if plaintiff had waited, he would not have had to request injunctive relief because it appears that he will be afforded his special boots if medically appropriate.

Because plaintiff failed to exhaust his administrative remedies by failing to wait for the CORC's decision, this court is constrained to recommend dismissing this complaint without prejudice. Plaintiff may immediately re-file his action for damages because he has now exhausted his remedies. As in Neal, plaintiff may find that requiring him to initiate a new law suit is "judicially inefficient." 267 F.3d at 123. However, the Second Circuit specifically rejected such an argument, finding that "if during the pendency of a suit, the administrative process were to produce results benefitting plaintiff, the federal court will have wasted its resources adjudicating claims that could have been resolved within the prison grievance system at the outset." Id. The scenario envisioned by the court in Neal occurred in this case, even before the CORC accepted the grievance because plaintiff received the referral to the specialist in September of 2012. This is true, notwithstanding that plaintiff may still file a complaint for damages alone if he chooses to do so.

IV. Appointment of Counsel

Footnotes

- 1 This set of documents includes plaintiff's complaint, the Department's response, plaintiff's letter objecting to the Department's conclusion, and the Department's review of its action. (Dkt. No. 13 at 44–47).
- 2 See Hemphill v. State of New York, 380 F.3d 680 (2d Cir.2004) (remanding case to determine if defendant's alleged threats constituted "special circumstances" justifying plaintiff's failure to exhaust); Abney v. McGinnis, 380 F.3d 663 (2d Cir.2004) (whether failure to exhaust may be justified because plaintiff obtained favorable rulings on his grievances, but the relief that he was supposed to obtain was never forthcoming); Johnson v. Testman, 380 F.3d 691 (2d Cir.2004) (whether including claims in a disciplinary appeal may suffice for the exhaustion requirement); Ortiz v. McBride, 380 F.3d 649 (2d Cir.2004) (complete dismissal is not required when plaintiff brings both exhausted and unexhausted civil rights claims).
- 3 This court also notes that, based upon the concurring opinion in Woodford, it appears that the Second Circuit decisions have not been overruled in that respect. In his concurring opinion in Woodford, Justice Breyer specifically noted that two circuits, the Second Circuit and the Third Circuit that have interpreted the PLRA "in a manner similar to that which the [Supreme] Court today adopts [in Woodford] have concluded that the PLRA's proper exhaustion requirement is not absolute." Woodford, 548 U.S. at 104 (citing Spruill v. Gillis, 372 F.3d 218, 232 (3d Cir.2004); Giano v. Goord, 380 F.3d 670, 677 (2d Cir.2004)) (Breyer, J. concurring). Justice Breyer then stated that on remand, the lower court should "similarly" consider any claims that the inmate might have concerning whether his case "falls into a traditional exception

Because this court is recommending dismissal without prejudice at this time, plaintiff's motion for appointment of counsel (Dkt. No. 20) is denied as moot. If plaintiff re-files his action, he may request appointment of counsel at the appropriate time.

WHEREFORE, based on the findings above, it is

6 RECOMMENDED, that defendant's motion to dismiss (Dkt. No. 16) be GRANTED, and the complaint DISMISSED WITHOUT PREJUDICE TO REILING, and it is further ORDERED, that plaintiff's motion for appointment of counsel (Dkt. No. 20) is DENIED AS MOOT AT THIS TIME.

Hon. Eric T. Schneiderman, Office of the Attorney General, Charles Quackenbush, Esq., Assistant Attorney General, of Counsel, Albany, NY, for Defendant.

REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION

DAVID E. PEEBLES, United States Magistrate Judge.

*1 Plaintiff Pernorris Taylor, a former New York State prison inmate who is proceeding pro se and in forma pauperis, has commenced this action pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983 alleging deprivation of his civil rights. In his complaint, though vague and sparse in terms of factual allegations, Taylor appears to claim that the defendant, a physician employed at the prison in which he was confined at the relevant times, failed to provide him with proper medical care and to exempt him from working in the facility mess hall due to his physical condition, in violation of his rights under the Eighth Amendment to the United States Constitution.

In response to Taylor's complaint, defendant has moved seeking its dismissal on two grounds. Defendant maintains that plaintiff's claims are procedurally barred based upon his failure to avail himself of the internal prison system grievance process before commencing suit. Defendant additionally argues that in any event plaintiff's claims lack merit based upon his failure to allege a plausible medical indifference cause of action. For the reasons set forth below, I recommend that plaintiff's complaint be dismissed as both procedurally barred and lacking in substantive merit.

II. BACKGROUND¹

Plaintiff is a former prison inmate recently released from the custody of the New York State Department of Corrections and Community Supervision ("DOCCS"); at the times relevant to his claims, Taylor was designated to the Ogdensburg Correctional Facility ("OCF"), located in Ogdensburg, New York. See generally Amended Complaint (Dkt. No. 6); see also Dkt. Entry dated August 31, 2011. Plaintiff claims to be physically disabled as a result of being struck by a motor vehicle in June of 2008 and suffering resulting back and knee injuries. Amended Complaint (Dkt. No. 6) § II(D). Plaintiff also suffers from a testicular cyst. Id. at § III.

Upon his arrival at Ogdensburg, plaintiff was assigned to work in the facility mess hall. Amended Complaint (Dkt. No. 6) § II(D); Statement of Case (Dkt. No. 18) p. 1. Plaintiff complained to prison officials claiming that he was unable to perform the duties required at the mess hall in light of his limitations in bending, lifting, and standing for long periods of time resulting from his physical injuries. Id.

Though not clear from his complaint, as amended, it appears that plaintiff's claims go beyond his mess hall assignment to the alleged failure of Dr. M. Chalom, who is a prison physician at Ogdensburg, to provide him with adequate medical treatment, including to order x-rays desired by the plaintiff. Statement of Case (Dkt. No. 18) p. 1. Plaintiff also complains that Dr. Chalom, though aware of his condition from having received medical records of his treatment from Nassau County Medical University Hospital, nonetheless failed to remove him from mess hall duty.² Statement of Case (Dkt. No. 18) p. 2. Taylor further complains that Dr. Chalom did not provide him with an elastic support for his right knee. Id.

II. PROCEDURAL HISTORY

*2 Plaintiff commenced this action on December 10, 2010, and, at the directive of the court, filed an amended complaint on March 8, 2011 providing somewhat greater elaboration regarding his claims. Dkt. Nos. 1, 4, 6. In his complaint plaintiff names Dr. M. Chalom as the sole defendant and appears to assert a deliberate medical indifference claim under the Eighth Amendment, seeking an award of monetary damages. Id.

In lieu of answering plaintiff's complaint, defendant has moved to dismiss plaintiff's claims both for failure to state a claim upon which relief may be granted and on the ground that the action is procedurally barred based upon the plaintiff's failure to exhaust available administrative remedies before commencing suit. Dkt. No. 15. That motion, which plaintiff has opposed, see Dkt. Nos. 18, 19, is now ripe for determination and has been referred to me for the issuance of a report and recommendation, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1)(B) and Northern District of New York Local Rule 72.3(c). See Fed.R.Civ.P. 72(b).

III. DISCUSSION

A. Dismissal Motion Standard

A motion to dismiss a complaint, brought pursuant to Rule 12(b) (6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, calls upon a court to gauge the facial sufficiency of that pleading, utilizing as a backdrop a pleading standard which, though unexact in its requirements, “demands more than an unadorned, the-defendant-unlawfully-harmed me accusation” in order to withstand scrutiny Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 129, —, 129 S.Ct. 1937, 1949 (2009) (citing Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 554, 555, 127 S.Ct. 1955, 167 L.Ed.2d 929, —, (2007)). Rule 8(a)(2) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure requires that a complaint contain “a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief.” Fed.R.Civ.P. 8(a)(2). Id. While modest in its requirement, that rule commands that a complaint contain more than mere legal conclusions; “[w]hile legal conclusions can provide the framework of a complaint, they must be supported by factual allegations.” Iqbal, 129 S.Ct. at 1950.

To withstand a motion to dismiss, a complaint must plead sufficient facts which, when accepted as true, state a claim which is plausible on its face. Ruotolo v. City of New York, 514 F.3d 184, 188 (2d Cir.2008) (citing Twombly, 550 U.S. at 570, 127 S.Ct. at 1974). As the Second Circuit has observed, “[w]hile Twombly does not require heightened fact pleading of specifics, it does require enough facts to ‘nudge [plaintiffs]’ claims across the line from conceivable to plausible.” “In re Elevator Antitrust Litig., 502 F.3d 47, 50 (2d Cir.2007) (quoting Twombly, 550 U.S. at 570, 127 S.Ct. at 1974).

In deciding a Rule 12(b)(6) dismissal motion, the court must accept the material facts alleged in the complaint as true and draw all inferences in favor of the non-moving party. Cooper v. Pate, 378 U.S. 546, 546, 84 S.Ct. 1723, 1734 (1964); Miller v. Wolpoff & Abramson, LLP, 321 F.3d 292, 300 (2d Cir.2003), cert. denied, 540 U.S. 823, 124 S.Ct. 153, 157 L.Ed.2d 44 (2003); Burke v. Gregory, 356 F.Supp.2d 179, 182 (N.D.N.Y.2005) (Kahn, J.). However, the tenet that a court must accept as true all of the allegations contained in a complaint is inapplicable to legal conclusions. Iqbal, 129 S.Ct. at 1949. In the wake of Twombly and Iqbal, the burden undertaken by a party requesting dismissal of a complaint under Rule 12(b)(6) remains substantial; the question presented by such a motion is not whether the plaintiff is likely ultimately to prevail, “ ‘but whether the claimant is entitled to offer evidence to support the claims.’ ” “Log On America, Inc. v. Promethean Asset Mgmt. L.L.C., 223 F.Supp.2d 435, 441 (S.D.N.Y.2001) (quoting Gant v. Wallingford Bd. of Educ., 69 F.3d 669, 673 (2d Cir.1995)) (citations and quotations omitted).

*3 When assessing the sufficiency of a complaint against this backdrop, particular deference should be afforded to a pro se litigant whose complaint merits a generous construction by the court when determining whether it states a cognizable cause of action. Erickson, 127 S.Ct. at 2200 (“ ‘[A] pro se complaint, however inartfully pleaded, must be held to less stringent standards than formal pleadings drafted by lawyers’ ”) (quoting Estelle v. Gamble, 429 U.S. 97, 106, 97 S.Ct. 285, 292, 50 L.Ed.2d 251 (1976) (internal quotations omitted)); Davis v. Goord, 320 F.3d 346, 350 (2d Cir.2003) (citation omitted); Donhauser v. Goord, 314 F.Supp.2d 119, 121 (N.D.N.Y.2004) (Hurd, J.). In the event of a perceived deficiency in a pro se plaintiff's complaint, a court should not dismiss without granting leave to amend at least once if there is any indication that a valid claim might be stated. Branum v. Clark, 927 F.2d 698, 704–05 (2d Cir.1991); see also Fed.R.Civ.P. 15(a) (leave to amend “shall be freely given when justice so requires”).

B. Failure to Exhaust

In his motion defendant Chalom argues that plaintiff's claims are procedurally barred based upon his failure to file and pursue a grievance through the DOCCS internal administrative process prior to commencing this action.

The Prison Litigation Reform Act of 1996 (“PLRA”), Pub.L. No. 104–134, 110 Stat. 1321 (1996), which imposes several restrictions on the ability of prisoners to maintain federal civil rights actions, expressly requires that “[n]o action shall be brought with respect to prison conditions under section 1983 of this title, or any other Federal law, by a prisoner confined in any jail, prison, or other correctional facility until such administrative remedies as are available are exhausted.” 42 U.S.C. § 1997e(a); see Woodford v. Ngo, 548 U.S. 81, 84, 126 S.Ct. 2378, 2382, 165 L.Ed.2d 368 (2006);

Hargrove v. Riley, No. CV-04-4587, 2007 WL 389003, at *5-6 (E.D.N.Y. Jan.31, 2007).³ “[T]he PLRA’s exhaustion requirement applies to all inmate suits about prison life, whether they involve general circumstances or particular episodes, and whether they allege excessive force or some other wrong.” Porter v. Nussle, 534 U.S. 516, 532, 122 S.Ct. 983, 992, 152 L.Ed.2d 12 (2002) (citation omitted). In the event a defendant named in such an action establishes that the inmate plaintiff failed properly to exhaust available remedies prior to commencing the action, his or her complaint is subject to dismissal. See Pettus v. McCoy, No. 04-CV-0471, 2006 WL 2639369, at *1 (N.D.N.Y. Sept. 13, 2006) (McAvoy, J.); see also Woodford, 548 U.S. at 94-95, 126 S.Ct. at 2387-88 (holding that the PLRA requires “proper exhaustion” of available remedies). “Proper exhaustion” requires a plaintiff to procedurally exhaust his or her claims by “compl[ying] with the system’s critical procedural rules.” Woodford, 548 U.S. at 95, 126 S.Ct. at 2388; see also Macias v. Zenk, 495 F.3d 37, 43 (2d Cir.2007) (citing Woodford).⁴

*4 In a series of decisions rendered since the enactment of the PLRA, the Second Circuit has crafted a three-part test for determining whether dismissal of an inmate plaintiff’s complaint is warranted for failure to satisfy the PLRA’s exhaustion requirement.⁵ Macias, 495 F.3d at 41; see Hemphill v. New York, 380 F.3d 680, 686 (2d Cir.2004). Under the prescribed algorithm, a court must first determine whether administrative remedies were available to the plaintiff at the relevant times. Macias, 495 F.3d at 41; Hemphill, 380 F.3d at 686. If such a remedy existed and was available, the court must next examine whether the defendant has forfeited the affirmative defense of non-exhaustion by failing to properly raise or preserve it or whether, through his own actions in preventing the exhaustion of plaintiff’s remedies, he should be estopped from asserting failure to exhaust as a defense. Macias, 495 F.3d at 41; Hemphill, 380 F.3d at 686. In the event the proffered defense survives these first two levels of scrutiny, the court lastly must examine whether special circumstances nonetheless exist and “have been plausibly alleged” to justify the plaintiff’s failure to comply with the applicable administrative procedural requirements.⁶ Macias, 495 F.3d at 41; Hemphill, 380 F.3d at 686.

Ordinarily, failure to exhaust is an affirmative defense which must be pleaded and established by the defendant. See Arnold v. Goetz, No. 01 Civ. 8993, 2003 WL 256777, *2-3 (S.D.N.Y. Feb.4, 2003) (collecting cases); Torrence

v. Pesanti, 239 F.Supp.2d 230, 231 (D.Conn.2003) (citing Jenkins v. Haubert, 179 F.3d 19 (2d Cir.1999)). For this reason, dismissal under Rule 12(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure for failure to exhaust is not always appropriate. See Kasim v. Switz, 756 F.Supp.2d 570, 574 (S.D.N.Y.2010). Such a dismissal is proper, however, when a plaintiff’s failure to exhaust under the PLRA is “readily apparent” or “unambiguously established in the record,” provided that the plaintiff has had notice of the argument and an opportunity to respond. Torrence, 239 F.Supp.2d at 231-32 (citing Snider v. Melindez, 199 F.3d 108, 111-14 (2d Cir.1999)).

New York prison inmates are subject to an Inmate Grievance Program (“IGP”) established by the DOCS and recognized as an “available” remedy for purposes of the PLRA. See Mingues v. Nelson, No. 96 CV 5396, 2004 WL 324898, at *4 (S.D.N.Y. Feb.20, 2004) (citing Mojias v. Johnson, 351 F.3d 606 (2d Cir.2003) and Snider, 199 F.3d at 112-13). The IGP consists of a three-step review process. First, a written grievance is submitted to the Inmate Grievance Review Committee (“IGRC”) within twenty-one days of the incident.⁷ 7 N.Y.C.R.R. § 701.5(a). The IGRC, which is comprised of inmates and facility employees, then issues a determination regarding the grievance. Id. §§ 701.4(b), 701.5(b). If an appeal is filed, the superintendent of the facility next reviews the IGRC’s determination and issues a decision. Id. § 701.5(c). The third level of the process affords the inmate the right to appeal the superintendent’s ruling to the Central Office Review Committee (“CORC”), which makes the final administrative decision. Id. § 701.5(d). Ordinarily, absent the finding of a basis to excuse non-compliance with this prescribed process, only upon exhaustion of these three levels of review may a prisoner seek relief pursuant to section 1983 in a federal court. Reyes v. Punzal, 206 F.Supp.2d 431, 432 (W.D.N.Y.2002) (citing, inter alia, Sulton v. Greiner, No. 00 Civ. 0727, 2000 WL 1809284, at *3 (S.D.N.Y. Dec.11, 2000)).

*5 In response to the questions posed in the printed form utilized to file his complaint, plaintiff has acknowledged that his claim arose during the course of his confinement, and that there is a grievance procedure available at Ogdensburg, but that he did not file a grievance utilizing that procedure. Amended Complaint (Dkt. No. 6) § IV. Plaintiff notes instead that he informed his counselor, Mr. M. Stoner, of the claim. Id. In his submission in opposition to the motion, plaintiff reiterates having informed his counselor concerning his grievance and states that his counselor did not advise him of the need to file a grievance, instead informing him that he should sign up for sick call to address the issue.⁸ Statement of Case (Dkt. No. 18) p. 3.

The second prong of the Hemphill analysis focuses upon “whether the defendants may have forfeited the affirmative defense of non-exhaustion by failing to raise or preserve it, or whether the defendants’ own actions inhibiting the inmate’s exhaustion of remedies may estop one or more of the defendants from raising the plaintiff’s failure to exhaust as a defense.” Hemphill, 380 F.3d at 686 (citations omitted). In this instance defendant has properly raised the issue, and plaintiff fails to allege any conduct on the part of the defendant that deterred or inhibited his filing of a grievance.

The third, catchall factor to be considered under the Second Circuit’s prescribed exhaustion rubric focuses upon whether special circumstances have been plausibly alleged which, if demonstrated, would justify excusing a plaintiff’s failure to exhaust administrative remedies. Hemphill, 380 F.3d at 689; see also Giano v. Goord, 380 F.3d 670, 676–77 (2d Cir.2004); Hargrove, 2007 WL 389003, at *10. Among the circumstances potentially qualifying as “special” under this prong of the test include where a plaintiff’s reasonable interpretation of applicable regulations regarding the grievance process differs from that of prison officials and leads him or her to conclude that the dispute is not grievable. Giano, 380 F.3d at 676–77; see also Hargrove, 2007 WL 389003, at *10 (quoting and citing Giano).

Based upon plaintiff’s response to the motion, it does not appear that this narrow exception applies in this instance. Taylor states that he made his complaints regarding Dr. Chalom known to his counselor, who nonetheless failed to advise him of a need to file a grievance and instead directed him to sick call to address his issue. See Statement of Case (Dkt. No. 18) pp. 3, 5. Plaintiff does not allege that his counselor informed him that his complaint was not grievable, a circumstance which could potentially implicate a recognized exception to the otherwise steadfast statutory requirement of exhaustion. Brown v. Koenigsmann, No. 01 Civ 10013(LMM), 2005 WL 1925649, at *1 (S.D.N.Y. Aug. 10, 2005). Similarly, plaintiff cannot claim an estoppel from raising an exhaustion defense since it was not Dr. Chalom, but another prison official who, he intimates, dissuaded him from filing a grievance. Id.

*6 Under these circumstances, plaintiff’s claims are procedurally barred based upon his failure to file and pursue a grievance related to the claims raised in his complaint.

C. Deliberate Indifference

In his motion Dr. Chalom also argues that plaintiff’s complaint fails to assert a plausible deliberate medical indifference claim. In support of that contention defendant asserts that the plaintiff has neither pleaded facts demonstrating the existence of a serious medical need, nor has he established a plausible claim of subjective deliberate indifference on the part of Dr. Chalom to any such need.

Claims that prison officials have intentionally disregarded an inmate’s medical needs fall under the umbrella of protection from the imposition of cruel and unusual punishment afforded by the Eighth Amendment. Estelle v. Gamble, 429 U.S. 97, 102, 104, 97 S.Ct. 285, 290, 291, 50 L.Ed.2d 251 (1976). The Eighth Amendment prohibits punishment that involves the “unnecessary and wanton infliction of pain” and is incompatible with “the evolving standards of decency that mark the progress of a maturing society.” Id.; see also Whitley v. Albers, 475 U.S. 312, 319, 106 S.Ct. 1078, 1084, 89 L.Ed.2d 251 (1986) (citing, inter alia, Estelle). While the Eighth Amendment does not mandate comfortable prisons, neither does it tolerate inhumane treatment of those in confinement. Farmer v. Brennan, 511 U.S. 825, 832, 114 S.Ct. 1970, 1976, 128 L.Ed.2d 811 (1994) (citing Rhodes v. Chapman, 452 U.S. 337, 349, 101 S.Ct. 2392, 2400, 69 L.Ed.2d 59 (1981)). To satisfy their obligations under the Eighth Amendment, prison officials must “ensure that inmates receive adequate food, shelter, and medical care, and must take reasonable measures to guarantee the safety of inmates.” Farmer, 511 U.S. at 832, 114 S.Ct. at 1976 (quoting Hudson v. Palmer, 468 U.S. 517, 526–27, 104 S.Ct. 3194, 3200, 82 L.Ed.2d 393 (1984)) (internal quotations omitted).

A claim alleging that prison officials have violated the Eighth Amendment by inflicting cruel and unusual punishment must satisfy both objective and subjective requirements. Wright v. Goord, 554 F.3d 255, 268 (2d Cir.2009); Price v. Reilly, No. 07–CV–2634 (JFB/ARL), 2010 WL 889787, at *7–8 (E.D.N.Y. Mar.8, 2010). Addressing the objective element, to prevail a plaintiff must demonstrate a violation sufficiently serious by objective terms, “in the sense that a condition of urgency, one that may produce death, degeneration, or extreme pain exists.” Hathaway v. Coughlin, 99 F.3d 550, 553 (2d Cir.1996). With respect to the subjective element, a plaintiff must also demonstrate that the defendant had “the necessary level of culpability, shown by actions characterized by ‘wantonness.’ “ Blyden v. Mancusi, 186 F.3d 252, 262 (2d Cir.1999). Claims of medical indifference are subject to analysis utilizing this Eighth Amendment paradigm. See Salahuddin v. Goord, 467 F.3d 263, 279–81 (2d Cir.2006).

1. Objective Requirement

Analysis of the objective, “sufficiently serious,” requirement of an Eighth Amendment medical indifference claim begins with an inquiry into “whether the prisoner was actually deprived of adequate medical care ...”, and centers upon whether prison officials acted reasonably in treating the plaintiff. Salahuddin, 467 F.3d at 279. A second prong of the objective test addresses whether the inadequacy in medical treatment was sufficiently serious. Id. at 280. If there is a complete failure to provide treatment, the court must look to the seriousness of the inmate’s medical condition. Smith v. Carpenter, 316 F.3d 178, 185–86 (2d Cir.2003). If, on the other hand, the complaint alleges that treatment was provided but was inadequate, the seriousness inquiry is more narrowly confined to that alleged inadequacy, rather than focusing upon the seriousness of the prisoner’s medical condition. Salahuddin, 467 F.3d at 280. “For example, if the prisoner is receiving on-going treatment and the offending conduct is an unreasonable delay or interruption in treatment ... [the focus of] the inquiry is on the challenged delay or interruption, rather than the prisoner’s underlying medical condition alone.” Id. (quoting Smith, 316 F.3d at 185) (internal quotations omitted). In other words, at the heart of the relevant inquiry is the seriousness of the medical need, and whether from an objective viewpoint the temporary deprivation was sufficiently harmful to establish a constitutional violation. Smith, 316 F.3d at 186. Of course, “when medical treatment is denied for a prolonged period of time, or when a degenerative medical condition is neglected over sufficient time, the alleged deprivation of care can no longer be characterized as ‘delayed treatment’, but may properly be viewed as a ‘refusal’ to provide medical treatment.” Id. at 186, n. 10 (quoting Harrison v. Barkley, 219 F.3d 132, 137 (2d Cir.2000)).

*7 Since medical conditions vary in severity, a decision to leave a condition untreated may or may not raise constitutional concerns, depending on the circumstances. Harrison, 219 F.3d at 136–37 (quoting, inter alia, Chance v. Armstrong, 143 F.3d 698, 702 (2d Cir.1998)). Relevant factors informing this determination include whether the plaintiff suffers from an injury or condition that a “ ‘reasonable doctor or patient would find important and worthy of comment or treatment’ “, a condition that “ ‘significantly affects’ “ a prisoner’s daily activities, or “ ‘the existence of chronic and substantial pain.’ “ Chance, 143 F.3d at 702 (citation omitted); Lafave v. Clinton County, No. CIV. 9:00CV774, 2002 WL 31309244, at *3 (N.D.N.Y. Apr.3, 2002) (Sharpe, M.J.) (citation omitted).

Plaintiff’s complaint is devoid of specifics regarding his back and knee injuries, or his testicular cyst; rather, he merely alleges in a conclusory fashion that he has pain and soreness in both knees, back pain, and a great deal of “pain and suffering” from his cyst. Plaintiff’s complaint does not contain any allegations as to what, if any, treatment he received for those conditions while at Ogdensburg. Instead, while noting that Dr. Chalom retrieved plaintiff’s medical records from an outside medical facility where he apparently received treatment for his injuries, he alleges that Dr. Chalom did not arrange for x-rays or provide him with elastic support for his knee, and argues that the defendant “had the authority to remove [sic] from the mess hall” implying that he should have but did not do so.⁹ See Plaintiff’s Opposition (Dkt. No. 18) p. 2 of 7. These allegations are insufficient to satisfy the objective prong of the deliberate indifference test. Plaintiff’s complaint provides no information concerning the alleged inadequacy of treatment received for his medical conditions, and instead appears only to assert plaintiff’s disagreement with the course of diagnosis and treatment followed by Dr. Chalom, a matter which is not cognizable under the Eighth Amendment. See Rosales v. Coughlin, 10 F.Supp.2d 261, 264 (W.D.N.Y.1998) (citation omitted); Amaker v. Kelly, No. 9:01–CV–877, 2009 WL 385413, at *14–16 (N.D.N.Y. Feb.9, 2009) (Scullin, S.D.J. and Peebles, M.J.).

2. Subjective Element

The second, subjective, requirement for establishing an Eighth Amendment medical indifference claim mandates a showing of a sufficiently culpable state of mind, or deliberate indifference, on the part of one or more of the defendants. Salahuddin, 467 F.3d at 280 (citing Wilson v. Seiter, 501 U.S. 294, 300, 111 S.Ct. 2321, 2325, 115 L.Ed.2d 271 (1991)). Deliberate indifference, in a constitutional sense, exists if an official “knows of and disregards an excessive risk to inmate health or safety; the official must both be aware of facts from which the inference could be drawn that a substantial risk of serious harm exists, and he [or she] must also draw the inference.” Farmer, 511 U.S. at 837, 114 S.Ct. at 1979; Leach v. Dufraim, 103 F.Supp.2d 542, 546 (N.D.N.Y.2000) (Kahn, J.) (citing Farmer); Waldo v. Goord, No. 97–CV1385, 1998 WL 713809, at *2 (N.D.N.Y. Oct. 1, 1998) (Kahn, J. and Homer, M.J.) (same). Deliberate indifference is a mental state equivalent to subjective recklessness as the term is used in criminal law. Salahuddin, 467 F.3d at 280 (citing Farmer, 511 U.S. at 839–40, 114 S.Ct. 1970, 128 L.Ed.2d 811).

*8 Plaintiff's complaint is similarly deficient in that it does not allege facts plausibly demonstrating that Dr. Chalom was deliberately indifferent to Taylor's condition. While the complaint does not specify the nature of actions or inactions by Dr. Chalom forming the basis for plaintiff's claims against him, his submission in opposition to the motion provides some degree of clarification. That document reveals that rather than ignoring plaintiff's medical condition, Dr. Chalom instead made efforts to secure his medical records. Again, while plaintiff asserts his belief that x-rays should have been ordered and that he was in need of surgery to his right knee, these allegations, which allege nothing more than a mere disagreement with the treatment he received, are insufficient to plausibly satisfy the subjective element of the deliberate indifference test. See Rosales, 10 F.Supp.2d at 264; Amaker, 2009 WL 385413, at *14–16.

IV. SUMMARY AND RECOMMENDATION

Plaintiff's complaint, which sets forth a deliberate medical indifference claim in only skeletal form, devoid of factual allegations which would permit the court to assess whether plaintiff has met the objective and subjective prongs necessary to plead a cognizable deliberate medical indifference cause of action, is subject to dismissal on the merits. In addition, because it appears clear from his complaint and submissions in opposition to defendant's motion that he failed to file and pursue to the CORC a grievance concerning his medical complaints, plaintiff is procedurally barred from maintaining this action.

Ordinarily, a pro se complaint should not be dismissed without leave to amend unless it appears clear that the plaintiff is unable to set forth any facts that would support a plausible cause of action. See Gomez v. USAA Federal Savings Bank, 171 F.3d 794, 796 (2d Cir.1999); Brown v. Peters, 95–CV–1641, 1997 WL 599355, at *1 (N.D.N.Y. Sept.22, 1997) (Pooler, J.) (“[T]he court need not grant leave to amend where it appears that amendment would prove to be unproductive or futile.”). In this instance, however, because plaintiff has already amended once, and since it seems clear that he is procedurally barred from raising the claims set forth in his complaint based upon his failure to exhaust available internal administrative remedies, I recommend against permitting further amendment. See Cortec Indus. Inc. v. Sum Holding L.P., 949 F.2d 42, 48 (2d Cir.1991).

It is therefore hereby respectfully

RECOMMENDED that defendant's dismissal motion (Dkt. No. 15) be GRANTED, and that plaintiff's complaint be dismissed in all respects, without leave to replead.

NOTICE: Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1), the parties may lodge written objections to the foregoing report. Such objections must be filed with the clerk of the court within FOURTEEN days of service of this report. FAILURE TO SO OBJECT TO THIS REPORT WILL PRECLUDE APPELLATE REVIEW. 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1); Fed.R.Civ.P. 6(a), 6(d), 72; Roldan v. Racette, 984 F.2d 85 (2d Cir.1993).

*9 It is hereby ORDERED that the clerk of the court serve a copy of this report and recommendation upon the parties in accordance with this court's local rules; and it is further.

- 4 While placing prison officials on notice of a grievance through less formal channels may constitute claim exhaustion “in a substantive sense”, an inmate plaintiff nonetheless must meet the procedural requirement of exhausting his or her available administrative remedies within the appropriate grievance construct in order to satisfy the PLRA. Macias, 495 F.3d at 43 (quoting Johnson v. Testman, 380 F.3d 691, 697–98 (2d Cir.2004) (emphasis omitted).
- 5 Whether the Hemphill test survives following the Supreme Court’s decision in Woodford, has been a matter of some speculation. See, e.g., Newman v. Duncan, NO. 04–CV–395, 2007 WL 2847304, at *2 n. 4 (N.D.N.Y. Sept. 26, 2007) (McAvoy, S.J. and Homer, M.J.).
- 6 In practicality these three prongs of the prescribed test, though perhaps intellectually distinct, plainly admit of significant overlap. See Hargrove, 2007 WL 389003, at *8 n. 14; see also Giano v. Goord, 380 F.3d 670, 677 n. 6 (2d Cir.2004).
- 7 The IGP supervisor may waive the grievance timeliness requirement due to “mitigating circumstances.” 7 N.Y.C.R.R. § 701.6(g)(1)(i)(a)-(b).
- 8 In support of his motion defendant Chalom has submitted an affidavit from Jeffrey Hale, the Assistant Director of the DOCS Inmate Grievance Program (“IGP”), in which he states that a search of records of the DOCCS Central Office Review Committee (“CORC”) failed to reveal submission of any grievance appeal by Taylor to the CORC during the period of his incarceration at Ogdensburg. See Hale Decl. (Dkt. No. 15–2) ¶¶ 1–4. Because this issue is being addressed on a motion to dismiss pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6), I have not considered the Hale affidavit in making my recommendation. See, e.g., Friedl v. City of New York, 210 F.3d 79, 83–84 (2d Cir.2000) (“a district court errs when it considers affidavits and exhibits submitted by defendants, or relies on factual allegations contained in legal briefs or memoranda in ruling on a 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss.”) (internal quotation marks, citations and alteration omitted).
- 9 While plaintiff alleges that Dr. Chalom did not provide him with an elastic support for his knee, he also asserts that another physician, Dr. Aley, did provide him with the desired support. Plaintiff’s Motion Opposition (Dkt. No. 18) p. 2 of 7.
